

SPRING RACES

EIGHT GOOD SPRINTERS TO GO SEVEN FURLONGS

Five Selling Races and One Purse

Affair Form Ascot Attractions Today—Card is a Good One

By Jay Davidson

Six races of more than ordinary attractiveness are offered as the Ascot card for today, and the fields in each event are of fair class, which assures better racing and more successful performances than is usually the case on Mondays.

As usual the baby racers will furnish the opening event and an even dozen are named to face the barrier. This race is a selling affair at four furlongs.

Ether B is the only one in the bunch that has been returned a winner and she will be usually done in which she has beaten practically all on form races against her today and will race figures to win.

Wagnagootis, despite the fearful burden of the name, which is equal to a hundred pounds, stands out as the most dangerous babe in the bunch, and may give the winner some trouble.

Mrs. Mathews is said to be a track burner from away down the line and the young widow gets away with the leaders she may be hard to beat. Game Bird has belied the name so often and consistently that little should be expected today. Penamah, Cutaneous, Ed Tracy and Agro have outside chances.

The expectations that may be realized upon are as follows: Ether B, Wagnagootis, Mrs. Mathews.

Fourteen players will have another opportunity of paying for their board and lodging in the second event, which is at one mile and fifty yards.

El Chihuahu won so easily Friday and came to the local track with a brace of brackets about his neck, but it is probable this one will be favorite and there is not much room for doubting that he deserves the honor.

Miss figures to be the contestant and a dangerous one at that. She is on edge now and ready to run miles in 1:41, which will just about win in this company.

Preservator may run more kindly than he usually does in which event he has a royal chance for first money.

Sheriff Bell has up too much weight and the distance is nearly a mile too far for him. Red Dandy has been a false alarm for some time and nothing should be expected of her at present.

Old Mike should be going over the jumps or to the bonnyard, as he does not seem to be worth thirty cents in counterfey money.

Probably the end will be in this order: El Chihuahu, Miss Betty, Preservator.

Eight alleged sprinters will go to the post in the third race and while there are no Handzarras, Bearcatchers nor Borghesis in the bunch the field comprises an evenly balanced and somewhat consistent set of sprinters.

Prince Magnet has been doing everything against him today and if he does not win in sprague style he should be assassinated at the wire.

Charles Green won his last out, but in slow time on a fast track, and from an ordinary bunch of cheaper ones than those against him today.

Red Tape may be able to run into the money, but has shown nothing that really encourages the hope. Col. B. Bremer was 39 to 1 his last out and should be equally as good today, with no takers. Creston Boy is about due to perform for another "killing," but forecasting the exact cycle upon which this event is to become history is difficult.

It may be that the end will be Prince Magnet, Charles Green, Red Tape.

Print is Feature

The fourth race, the only purse offering of the day, and hedged in by five selling races, will be the feature event and eight good sprinters of some pretensions to class will go seven furlongs.

Prince Silverwings, La Londe and Sunray give promise of one of the most exciting duels through the stretch that has been witnessed at Ascot this season, as these good ones are evenly matched and the right arrangement of the field for great race.

The Durnell candidate is running to his best form now and is ripe and ready. If he does not win he will give the winner one of the warmest arguments of the season.

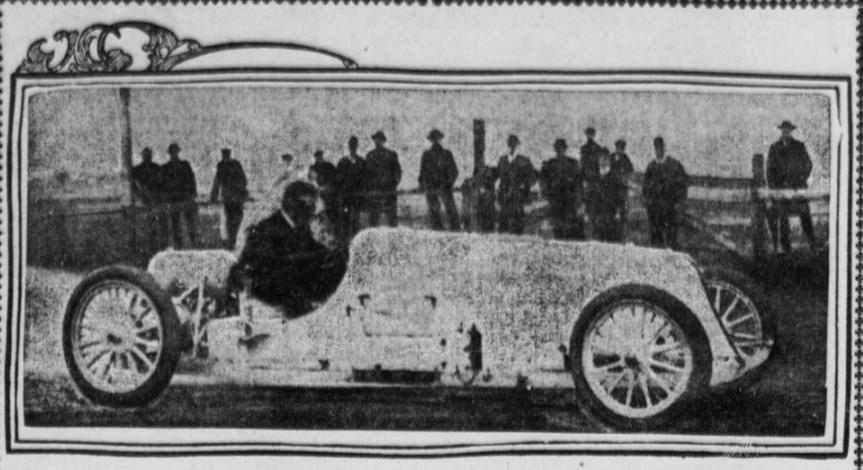

La Londe was easily beaten by Prince Silverwings when they last met, but the shifts in weights will give the Cushing & Barbee filly an even break and a good chance for first money.

When she was 39 to 1 his last out, she carried seven pounds more weight than she will have up today and beat Skeptic and Dr. McCarty in 1:26.4.

Sunray was left at the post in the last race, but he is in the money and is probably going to "Boots" Durnell's recent purchase, The Huguenot.

This one has been running consistently for several weeks and has forced other horses to the back track race to beat him. With a good jockey up today, he will be hard to beat.

WHISTLING BILLY HOLDS THE BLUE RECORD

In This Car Webb Jay, the Famous Auto Driver, Plunged Through a Fence, Narrowly Escaping With His Life

This one beat Cutter not so very long ago at this distance and at practically the same weights.

Golden Buck is in light and at his distance. While hardly good enough to beat Cutter, if the latter is good, Golden Buck should be in the money.

Willie Greg should run in the money, if the Texas wonder runs back to his last winning race.

The end may be Tramator, Golden Buck, Willie Greg.

WOMEN CAPTURE BOOK AGENT

Lock Him in a Room and Hold Him Till Arrested—Court Dismisses Charges

Special to The Herald.

A NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 4.—A book agent, Isaac Salz, who is only twenty years old, called at the home of Mrs. Baronsky, at Perth Amboy, yesterday, to sell some books.

A company has been selling books through agents in this section of the country for some time at ten cents each. The scheme is on the track stamp plan. After a person has bought fifty-five of the books at ten cents each he is supposed to get a premium.

Mrs. Baronsky had purchased a lot of the books and had expected that the premium would be a gold watch. She heard nothing more of her premium. So, when Salz appeared yesterday morning and tried to sell her some more books on the same plan, she politely asked him into the house and the agent thought he was good for a large order. He had never met Mrs. Baronsky before. After she ushered him into a room she locked the door. Then she called in some of her women neighbors and they stood guard at the door but one who ran to police headquarters. It took four hours to get a policeman. When he did arrive, he escorted all hands, the woman and the youthful agent, to the station house. Salz was discharged when it was learned that he was not the agent from whom Mrs. Baronsky had bought books before.

HERMAN AND HERRERA AWAIT TAP OF GONG

Little Battlers Brimming With Confidence of Decisive Victory Friday Night—Great Battle In Prospect

The battle between Aurelio Herrera and Kid Herman, which is scheduled for Friday night, is attracting unusual attention and interest throughout the country and is regarded as one of the most important events in pugilism for many moons, as the winner will be considered the logical opponent of Britt in the qualifying rounds for the next battle in which Battling Nelson will be the star attraction.

Both boys are training in strenuous fashion and neither will have a legitimate excuse to offer on this score in event of defeat. Each is brimming with confidence and can think of nothing but a decisive victory at an early stage of the scheduled twenty rounds of milling.

Herrera has shown gradual improvement during the last few months and in his boxing bouts ever seen at the Los Angeles arena has demonstrated his right to be seriously considered by any of the lightweight topnotchers.

The principal fault with Herrera has been his reluctance to industriously train and fit himself for going at his best city, but he did not overlook one feature of training in his preparation for the battle with Young Corbett and probably was in better trim for that bout than he ever was in his life before.

Young Corbett's mighty rushes and lightning-like jabs and the cool demeanor of the Bakersfield boy in all emergencies, when the battle seemed going against him, raised him in the estimation of the fans and he is regarded as one of the best little ring generals in training at this time.

Herrera has shown Los Angeles fans that terrific right which played him with Kid Broad and destroyed his usefulness as an attraction in the ring. He showed to better advantage in his bout with Young Corbett than he did with Eddie Hanlon because he was in better condition, and Young Corbett fought him at his own style, bluff-bang, at which game few have any advantage over Herrera.

Changes have been handed back and forth and the men occupying the training and that he may not enter the ring Friday night in the fine condition that he should, but the Mexican declines to apologize for taking his nip and says that he has always indulged in the same extent that he is now doing.

However, fight fans do not accept with any great degree of confidence the touted good effects which follow dissipation by any battler. They cite the careers of Young Corbett and John L. Sullivan as instances of blighted careers because of their fights with the finish with the champion of champions, Johnny Barleycorn.

Herrera supporters would be greatly encouraged by reports that the mule-kicking Mexican boy had ceased pulling corks until after the battle Friday night.

Herman is Ready

Kid Herman is now fit and ready to enter the ring and assures his admiring friends that he will duplicate his last performance, when he put an end to the aspirations of Eddie Hanlon in pugilism.

The miniature John L. made good with Los Angeles fans in a hurry when he defeated The Pride in one of the prettiest exhibitions of real grueling ever witnessed in the southwest and the feature of the exhibition was the footwork, generally overlooked by the Chicago boys, who hit Hanlon at will and always raised a blister, while cleverly avoiding punishment in return.

The styles of Herman and Herrera are alike and should put up one of the best boxing bouts ever seen at the Naud Junction pavilion. They do very little fancy fighting, sparring and boxing, but are given to the more strenuous efforts of the born battler, and it will be surprising to see an early termination of the argument without the aid of the referee.

Herman realizes that if he can win from Herrera in decisive fashion he will have accomplished something that Battling Nelson and other topnotchers have failed at.

The victory for the Chicago boy would make him the logical opponent of Nelson when the Dane next engages in a championship contest.

Equally as important to Herrera is the result and the manner by which it is obtained. Herman is highly regarded throughout the country as one of championship caliber, and if Herrera can beat him in such a manner as to leave no doubt as to the relative merits of the two boys, he will be a star in the ring with any of them.

The boys are thoroughly impressed with the importance attaching to their battle and neither is underrating the job assigned to him. Well filled with confidence in their abilities each is overlooking no training stunt that is regarded as essential in getting them to the acme of perfect condition.

Manager McCarty is wearing a perpetual smile these days because of the prospect of the best house since the McCoy-Sullivan battle. Los Angeles has the reputation of being the best paying city in the world when it comes to consideration of the door receipts.

The Hanlon-Herrera battle drew a bigger house and more money than did the Sullivan-Gardner battle in the north. The Herrera-Young Corbett mill drew as much as did the Sullivan-Gans battle in the north.

LOVE AT A LUNCH COUNTER

Entranced With a Waitress, Man Pops the Question While Eating a Steak

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 4.—Love over a lunch counter is a love story of Jesse Moore, a fireman on the Union Pacific west from here. While sitting at the U. P. restaurant in this city about Christmas time Moore saw for the first time Miss Jessie Lloyd, a pretty waitress, and their marriage yesterday was the culmination of such a love story.

Moore did not wait for the preliminary courtship, but after ordering his first steak, engaged Miss Lloyd in conversation, and before the steak was finished had asked her to become his wife. She promptly fell for the proposal, which she had in her hand, but a "yes" was forthcoming. They could not, however, agree on a date, when Moore took out his watch to ascertain the time, and noting that the number on the case to be 114, interpreted it to mean the 14th day of the first month, and that accordingly was fixed for the wedding day.

RARE BREEDS TO BE SHOWN

Madison Square Bench Exhibit Will Include Strange Varieties of Canines

The thirtieth annual bench show of canines will be held at Madison Square gardens under the auspices of the Westminster Kennel club, February 22, 13, 14 and 15.

Any dog who aspires to social pretensions in the barking world will be entered in at least one of the many classes.

A feature at the exhibition will be the appearance of two new breeds of dogs, hitherto unknown at American shows. They are the Rosemeath terriers, the Papillon or Butterfly spaniel. The Rosemeath are very like the Scottish terrier, with an exception of the color, which is white. The Papillon will no doubt create a sensation, for the breed is extremely rare. Few are in existence and these are owned by multimillionaires. The dogs are a cross between squirrel spaniels because of the fact that the ears stand out from the head like the wings of a butterfly and the tail, which is heavily feathered, curls around the back like the appendage of the squirrel. The color is mahogany red, ruby or chestnut.

The spectacular event of the show will occur on the last day, when the packs of hunters are to be put through their paces by the master of hounds. Temporary walls and fences will be erected for a miniature hunt.

Among those who have offered special prizes are: Harry Payne Whitney, Center Hitchcock, Charles S. Guthrie, Dr. H. E. Thomas, J. Lewis A. Eldridge, Robert V. McKim, S. De Forest, Gould Brook and others.

REWARD FOR STOPPING CAR

Motorman Facing a Chicago Blizzard Astonished by a Midnight Passenger

Special to The Herald.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—Edward E. Russell, an Elston avenue trolley car motorman, is slowly recovering from an amazing experience which menaced him with heart disease. It happened shortly before midnight Sunday, when he was speeding his car in the direction of the city, it being his last trip from Mayfield.

An icy wind swept Elston avenue, chilling the motorman to the bone, despite his thick layers of clothing.

At Irving Park boulevard a man and woman wildly signaled the onrushing car. He was brought to a standstill as promptly as the trolley could stop, and work the ice-fettered brake. On boarding the car the woman hurried to a seat, while the man fished out a roll of bills from an inside pocket, stripped off a new twenty-dollar note and strode to the rear platform.

"Here's $20 for you, my friend," said the new passenger, shoving the bank note into the astonished motorman's hand. "It is a little token of my deep appreciation for your having stopped the car to take my wife and me aboard."

"Right busy got Mr. Lewis upon his arrival and went forth to tell what they think of his protégé in dear old Chicago. He declares that Herman is a worker par excellence and for this reason he will endeavor to get him among the wilds of California without a keeper.

Lewis brings the good word that eastern ring fans are waxing more than enthusiastic over the coming fray in which Herman will endeavor to successfully put Herrera out of the present running, and Chicago will be thrice jubilant should the Kid bring off the coup.

"I don't believe the bout will excite as much interest out here as back where we are up against it for respectable ring exhibitions. Everyone thinks that Herman will be the next legitimate champion and any doubt of his ability to best Nelson will disappear provided we win against Herrera. The right of the Mexican is talked a good deal about and that is reason why he is considered at all dangerous for Herman."

"One thing we will try to do above all and that is to knock Herrera out, for no one else has yet accomplished it. Battling Nelson couldn't do it and I would be a convenient thing to use for an argument to get him into the ring. I don't believe we'll have any trouble about that though, because Nolan has promised me that he will give the Kid a chance if he gets away with Herrera."

The question was put to Lewis concerning the opinion beyond the Rockies preceding the Corbett-Herrera go. "Well, to be candid, we thought Corbett would win that battle and it was a great surprise when we heard that had happened in the fifth round."

According to Lewis Joe Gans will be at the ringside on next Friday night to challenge the winner. "I talked with Joe just before leaving Chicago, and he promised to be on hand to challenge the winner."

"Yes, it will be bad for Nelson if he refuses to match with Gans. The public are clamoring for it and the Dane is already having it put to him regarding his willingness to go on with the negro."

Herman is to ease off in his training and nothing but light gymnasium work will be the order of things from now on.

NEWSIES WINAGAIN FROM JOCKS

The Newsies baseball team completely routed the Jockies yesterday afternoon, and won by a score of 11 to 1. About four hundred spectators gathered at the Prager park track to witness the match.

FAUN FACE ON FONT

Decoration on Architect's Gift to a Church is the Subject of a Strong Controversy

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 4.—Are the faces on the new baptismal font of the Methodist church at St. Mary's, a gargoyle? If they are, what significance does this Greek emblem have upon an orthodox church service, is a question some of the members of the congregation are asking. The Rev. Dr. Charles Mitchell, pastor of the church, says he doesn't know which they are, and goes no further than that Professor A. D. Severance of the Western Reserve university says the faces are images of the Roman god Faunus, corresponding to the Greek satyr.

The font, a beautiful piece of work, is a gift to the church from J. Mill Dyer, the architect of the edifice. It is an extremely ornate affair, of Carrara marble, five feet high and carved in Italy. The decorative scheme is of the renaissance style. The decorations are in low relief.

"I don't know whether the faces are representative of," said the Rev. Dr. Charles Bayard Mitchell, pastor of the church, last evening. "They are either gargoyle or satyr. As I understand the gargoyle is a figure with the face of a devil and is usual on pieces of architecture. No, I have never observed them on baptismal fonts, I believe. The pointed ears seem to give a cast of countenance suggestive of the satyr."

"I should say that the face was that of a satyr," said Professor A. D. Severance when first shown a picture of the font. Professor Severance is an authority on medieval architecture and for several years has been instructor at Adelbert college in medieval tombs and usages. He has made many trips abroad and studied intimately.

The satyr sometimes has a horned head. Now it appears to me that the pointed ears and the ears of the profile in these faces indicate the satyr directly." Dr. Severance consulted several authorities. Finally he gave it as his opinion that the face was that of the Roman god Faunus.

SPOOKS HAUNT BUILDING

Police Are Called and Hear Strange Sounds, but Find No Living Things

Special to The Herald.

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 4.—Uncanny noises for three nights in a vacant building which has been locked up since the death of a man in the office building, have compelled three families to leave their homes on 113 West Fifth street to seek the aid of the police in solving the problem. They say that no sooner are the noises made by the building in the vacant room on the ground floor, which was occupied for several years as a saloon.

For three nights the noises have continued, it is declared. Members of the families who were in the building, told Lieut. Schulte of the police department today that the racket begins at 10 o'clock at night and continues intermittently until midnight.

On being pressed to describe the sounds, the complainants, among whom are Oswald Tweed, a young married man, and his wife, said that the noises were like those which ensue when heavy boxes or crates are dragged along the floor, accompanied by the sounds of metallic, small articles thrown violently against the wooden wainscoting. After a lull of a few seconds, they say, the sounds of footsteps of several persons walking hurriedly across the floor are heard. At such times, and the noise is almost deafening.

Arising from their beds on Friday night, from which they had been driven by the din, two tenants of the upstairs rooms summoned Officer William O'Neil from his post in an investigation. He heard the noise from the second floor, and calling another officer, whom he stationed at the rear as a guard, he entered the front door with a key, which he had procured from the agent of the building. There was no person in the room and it was vacant, with the exception of the front and back bar fixtures, a safe, icebox and telephone.

The noise was resumed shortly after the door was closed. The woman, who was murdered, it is said, by Charles E. Henderson in the adjoining building June 1, 1902, and some of the superstitious tenants of the rooms over 123 are said to be convinced that the tragedy with the strange sounds, investigations will be made by the police.
