JUNIORS TO TAKE PART IN PRESENTATION OF COMEDY

Miss Vera Brooke, Who Will Give the Epilogue in the Class Play

For the very first time in the history of Occidental college, a real play will be given by one of the classes. Friday evening at Cunnock hall, Gosmith's comedy "The Stoops to Conquer" will be presented by the junior class of that institution. Many of the most popular students in the college will take leading parts in the production and the feeling is that the presentation will be the first of many to follow. Miss Florence A. Dunham is training the class and under the leadership of one of the most capable directors of amateur productions, the play should be one of the most delightful of the season. The students are looking forward to

Friday evening with much interest, and it will be made one of the social affairs of the college term. An interesting feature of the evening will be the class song, which was composed by Clyde Wolfe, a junior. The orchestra of the First Congregational church will furnish the music. Miss Fairy Means will have the leading role of Miss Hardcastle, and it is safe to prophesy that she will give a clever performance. Miss Mamie Daniel, another of the popular young women, will have an important part, that of Miss Neville, Harry Dukes will be seen as Young Marlon, the bashful lover, and Clarence Spaulding will essay the role of Young Hastings.
