Little Giant to Speak

Walter Thomas Mills, known as "the great agitator" and "the Little Giant," will speak in Simpson auditorium Monday and Tuesday, either at 8 o'clock, 24 and 25 at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Socialist party.

Funeral Will Be Held

The funeral of B. W. Edwards, who was killed Thursday evening by a street car, will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the chapel of Pierce Bros. The interment will be in Odd Fellows' cemetery. The Odd Fellows will have charge of the funeral service.

Boys Rob Store

The confectionery store of D. Conter, 1601 Brooklyn avenue, was entered Friday night and four boxes of cigars were stolen. Mr. Conter thinks the theft was done by boys, as entrance was made through a narrow window, and some candy was taken.

Candy Seller's Grievance J. C. Packer, who sells candy in front of the Unique theater, made complaint at the city hall that some policeman had told him there was a city ordinance prohibiting the sale of candy on the streets between 6 a.m. and 6 p. m., and prevented him from carrying on his sales. He says he has now discovered that no such ordinance exists.

Is Found Dead

Henry Owen, a gardener, was found dead in his little cottage at the rear of 750 Beacon street yesterday morning. Mr. Owen was 35 years of age. The cause of death was tuberculosis. The funeral will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock from the chapel of Pierce Bros. The interment will be at Evergreen cemetery. Mr. Owen had no relatives in Los Angeles.

Will Celebrate New Year

Preliminary to the Jewish new year celebration next Wednesday, a service will be held at Simpson auditorium this morning at 6:45 o'clock by Rabbi Myers, assisted by Rev. Marcel Katz, cantor. At 8 o'clock Wednesday evening the services will commence, which will be largely choral. Rabbi Myers expects to organize a permanent congregation during the holidays.

Fined for Stabbing S. Carmona was fined $150 yesterday in Justice Chambers' court for an assault which he committed last Tuesday night on a man named Marshall in front of the Pico House, North Main street. Carmona stabbed Marshall while the latter stood as a witness in a trial in which Carmona was engaged with another man. He was allowed to plead guilty to a charge of battery rather than assault with a deadly weapon.

Dies Suddenly

Joseph C. Davis, brother of W. C. Davis of the insurance trust company, died suddenly last Tuesday morning at the Hotel Lyons, following a severe hemorrhage. Mr. Davis was formerly of Chicago. The funeral will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock from 222 Inglewood street, the interment to be at Rosedale cemetery. Rev. Robert J. Burdette will officiate. Mr. Davis leaves a mother, three brothers and one sister.

M'KEAG IN NEW CITY BERTH

Mayor McAleer Names His Office Aid as Fire Commission Secretary

Charles McKeag, secretary to Mayor McAleer, has been appointed secretary of the fire commission, and Tuesday evening will be confirmed as secretary of the police commission.

This is a new position recently created by ordinance of the council and pays a salary of $150 a month. It is a civil service position, and Mr. McKeag passed the examination with flying colors. He was the only one to take the examination and there are no others on the eligible list to succeed him if he should choose to resign the place at any time.

The mayor's secretary has heretofore acted as secretary of these two commissions without extra pay, except as secretary of the police and fire pension funds he has received $25 a month from each. He will act as secretary of these two funds as heretofore in connection with his commission work. He will continue to be secretary to the mayor without extra pay until the expiration of McAleer's term.

The growth of the city and the extra work demanded of the fire and police commissions is given as the reason for creating the new position by the council. As secretary to these two commissions and secretary to the mayor Mr. McKeag has been kept so busy that he was compelled to devote long hours to the work. As all other commissions are provided with secretaries, the council deemed it only fair that the police and fire commissions be given the same privilege.

"So, Mrs. Growler has got that mean, cross husband of hers tamed, has she?" "Tamed! Why, she's got him so that she can take money from his hand without his snapping at her."

HELP IS DESIRED OF DEMOCRATS

Efforts Are Being Made to Select a Ticket Before Meeting of the Democratic Convention Next Thursday

Strenuous efforts are being made by the Citizens' county executive committee to complete a ticket before September 20.

On this date will be held the Democratic county convention, and the non-partisans hope to complete their nominations in time to present the ticket to the Democratic convention and ask the endorsement of that body.

Whether the Democrats will endorse the Citizens' ticket or nominate a straight Democratic ticket rests solely with the Democratic convention.

Democratic Recognition Desired On the other hand, fears have been expressed by workers in the Democratic party that the party will not have sufficient recognition on the independent ticket to warrant a complete endorsement of the Citizens' ticket.

It is believed, however, that a large majority of the Democrats of the county are in favor of the independent movement, and that the county convention will endorse the independent ticket in its entirety.

Another meeting of the executive committee of the Citizens' county committee was held yesterday in the headquarters in the Merchants Trust building, and at its conclusion Secretary North stated that gratifying progress had been made toward the completion of the Citizens' ticket.

Ward Is Confident "The Gazette is going to do what it can for the election of Ben E. Ward, the independent candidate for county assessor."

"In doing this the paper is but representing the almost unanimous sentiment of the community. Mr. Ward's supporters are not any particular class or confined to any particular party. His supporters here are Republicans and Democrats and temperance people, and the belief prevails that he will receive 95 per cent of the votes of the precinct. That seems like a broad statement, but nevertheless it is a true one."

"Our people believe that Mr. Ward is trying to make the corrupt corporations pay their just proportion of the taxable burden; and the fact that the board of supervisors controlled by the gang, while not willing to support Ward's valuations and reduce the corporations' assessments more than eleven million dollars, yet did endorse his policy of assessment, but was too cowardly to order it into effect."

"If Ward was wrong he was wrong, and the board only augmented the sentiment among the people to put a stop to the slave ownership of their board of supervisors by the corrupt corporations, represented by Fathard Parker, self-styled the Republican boss."

"It is not often that a Ward is elected to office these days, but when one is the people soon find him out. His policy for a square deal is repugnant to the corruptionists, the grafters and the bosses, and they soon set up a howl. The people know by that they have elected an honest man to office, and they certainly would be ungrateful if they did not re-elect him when the officer wished to carry out the policy of reform."

"Mr. Ward may be eccentric, as the grafters and bosses say, but if he is, he is incorruptibly honest. "The machine has brought out Carl Hettwell of Pasadena, a chronic office-holder who is at present county recorder, to defeat Mr. Ward. Our people should make Ward's contest a personal one, and if the rest of the county will do as well as this precinct, Ben Ward will be elected by the greatest majority ever given by any candidate in this county."

LOS ANGELES' UNLUCKIEST BOY IN VENTURA WRECK, OF COURSE

YOUNG RUDISILL GOES OVER CLIFF IN COACH

Youth Falls Wit. Roller Skates, Steps on Spike, Stops Horse's Kick, Blows Up With Tank and Tumbles With Train

Wrapped and swathed in bandages until the tip of his nose is about all of his person visible to his many friends who call upon him, Frank Rudisill, 14 years of age, who without doubt is the unluckiest boy in Los Angeles, rests in one of the wards of the Sisters' hospital slowly recovering from terrible injuries received in the recent Southern Pacific wreck at the Sea Cliff stretch just north of Ventura.

The boy is the son of H. T. Rudisill of 2903 East Sixth street. The elder Rudisill is one of the most expert mining men of the west and lives a life of retirement at his beautiful home on Euclid Heights.

His two boys, DuBarth and Frank, are as different as day and night when the question of luck is concerned. DuBarth, although only 16 years of age, is over six feet in height, and his brother Frank is not much smaller.

Both boys are unusually bright and it is probably to their inventive genius that they owe what accidents have befallen them.

Win Their Spurs DuBarth has been in narrow escapes, close enough to turn an ordinary man's half gray.

Frank has also been in narrow escapes, but unlike his elder brother he has invariably gotten in the way of flying debris or been near the business end of some belligerent animal when the animal took a notion to kick.

As a result Frank Rudisill has won the name of being the unluckiest boy in Los Angeles when it comes to getting hurt and about the luckiest in the rapidly with which he recovers from his injuries.

Four weeks ago it was Frank's luck to be fixing the strap of a skate when a heavy horse stumbled and fell on him. He got out of bed following the accident just in time to superintend a fancy exhibition at a neighbor's house where in a tank of acetylene gas blew up with him in the road of the tank.

He went to bed for the second time, recovered quickly from frightful injuries, hurried to Santa Barbara to meet his relatives and return to Los Angeles with them, and in doing so, happened to take the first section of the south bound train just in time to go over the cliff in the wreck.

What Next? Now he is resting easily at the Sisters' hospital, recovering from what were considered fatal injuries, and wondering whether or not he will get mixed up in an earthquake as soon as his crushed ribs have knitted and allowed him to leave the hospital.

Ever since he was a little bit of a boy, according to the statements of his relatives, Frank Rudisill has been unlucky.

His father before him had, to a certain degree, the peculiar habit of being physically unlucky, but everything he touched in the business world turned into, if not gold, at least silver, and he became rather well off.

While at West Point the elder Rudisill was injured many times but none of the mishaps ever disabled him and he is today a prominent member of the Los Angeles Athletic club.

Frank Rudisill's inventive genius, inherited from his father, caused him to be restless, to his cost. He has an investigating spirit, hard to subdue.

Roller Skates' Fall

About two months ago he was injured while doing fancy stunts on roller skates.

He recovered, and then accidentally jumped on a spike and drove it through his foot. Tetanus, thought the doctors as they looked at the injured boy, Rudisill grinned and his foot healed and he went forth seeking new worlds to conquer.

He promptly found excitement when he got too close to a restive horse. The horse attempted to shy, stumbled and fell on the lad, causing internal injuries. For a second time Frank went to bed, grinning over the mishap. He tossed about for several days, laughed at the doctors and their terrifying theories and then got up.

"A most remarkable cure," said the physicians, looking wise. With the grim hand of ill luck close by him, young Rudisill went over to a neighbor's home on Euclid avenue. The son of the neighbor was experimenting with an engine and a tank of gas. The elder Rudisill used the tank for assaying purposes, but the boys managed to arrange a scheme to perfect some of their plans.

Up Goes the Tank They secured a can of carbide and a quart of water and were putting their inventive genius to the test before examining the tank and forgot to see whether there was any air in the tank. Incidentally 97 per cent air and 3 per cent acetylene gas makes a dangerous explosive. It required about an eighth of a second for the explosion to occur and then the neighbors rushed in.

A hole had been blown through the foundation of the house and pieces of the mutilated tank were found all over the neighborhood. Frank's companion had escaped. But young Rudisill had been in the way.

When the rescuers found him he was a mass of cuts, abrasions and bruises, and it was thought his eyes would be ruined, but he escaped.

In the meantime some of his relatives went north. As soon as he recovered he hurried north to meet them. They started to return and by some accident Frank Rudisill became separated from the rest and he boarded the ill fated first section.

Over a Cliff He was enjoying the scenery along the sea cliff last Monday morning when the engine, going at a rate of fifty-five miles an hour, bumped a soft spot, left the track and switched the cars last passenger coaches with Frank Rudisill on board over the edge of the cliff to the beach, fifty feet below.

The rescuers lifted a limp figure from the debris. It was the body of a youth and the clothing was torn and the garments soaked with blood, but a pair of unusually bright eyes smiled out on the men.

They sent him to the Sisters' hospital and the doctors looked grave. Several ribs were gone, internal injuries, wrenched back and crushed chest. A small list of injuries for a fourteen-year-old boy, but it was enough to keep Frank in bed and out of harm's way for a while.

Now he is recovering and his only answer to the queries of friends is: "Feeling fine. Oh, I'll be out pretty soon."

CAPILANO IS A GOOD CHIEF Every Offender of Tribe Is Brought Before Him and He Deals Out Justice Impartially Special to The Herald. VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 15.—Chief Joe Capilano, who is now in London "to see the king," is the head of one of the most remarkable Indian communities in North America. He is the hereditary ruler of the redskins who inhabit the Capilano reserves, on the north side of Burrard inlet, opposite the city of Vancouver. He rules the people more directly than Edward VII governs his subjects from the great tepee in St. James park. Every man accused of a crime within the limits of the reserve is brought up before his deputy, to see that the sentence is properly carried out. Erring women are dealt with gently. At the first offense they are put in charge of the older members of the tribe, women who make it their business to bring the sinner one back to virtue's ways. BILLBOARD MAN FREE TO ROAM

POLICE REFUSE TO ARREST "SANDWICH" MAN

Prohibitionists Whose Placards He Carries Are Anxious to Have the Legal Phases Threshed Out Finally

John E. Main, known as the Prohibition "billboard man," was the center of a curious crowd at the Central police station yesterday afternoon, when with a placard about his neck admonishing the public against the pitfalls of liquor, he came to the station to be arrested.

He says Officer Babe Whalen took him in charge this morning for parading the streets with his signboard, and by appointment, he was to come to the station at 2 o'clock to give himself up for arrest.

Promptly at 1:45 he made his appearance in company with E. Leardonson, state chairman of the Prohibition party, and C. J. Hall, county chairman.

Soon after Whalen arrived, which was at once the occasion for a hot and lengthy argument between the Prohibition people and the representative of the law.

Officer Whalen contended that to bear signs through the streets without a license, was a violation of the city ordinance.

Already Settled The Prohibition people said that the question had already been settled in Judge Austin's court, when it was decided that it was no more illegal to carry a signboard through the public thoroughfares, when the sign did not announce any event or advertise any ware, than it was to wear a lodge pin or a boy or girl to wear any ornament.
