BONIFACE CAUSES PIANIST'S ARREST

ALLEGES ROBBERY AGAINST THE MUSICIAN

Proprietor Guenther of Murietta Hot Springs Comes to Los Angeles to Take Action Against Former Employee

Walter A. Quinck, a pianist and music teacher living at 3422 South Flower street, was arrested yesterday morning by Detectives Chapman and Rice, upon complaint of Fritz Guenther, proprietor of the Murietta hot springs in Riverside county, from whom he is said to have stolen $38.75.

Quinck had been playing the piano at Guenther's summer resort and on September 7 or thereabouts he is accused of having secretly taken $55 in gold from a safe and $43.75 from a cash drawer. He is said to have come to Los Angeles to deposit the money and was found here yesterday endeavoring to get the full benefit of the proceeds of his recent hotel engagement. Quinck denies the charges.

JAILS HOTEL CLERK SUSPECT

Charles S. Phillis, formerly night clerk at the St. Elmo hotel on North Main street, was arrested about 4:30 yesterday morning on a charge of grand larceny. A man whose name could not be learned last night was put to bed in a supposedly intoxicated state by Phillis Saturday night. Later Phillis returned to the man's room, and as all his money, which is not thought to be more than $20, was alleged to be missing, his arrest followed. Phillis denies his guilt.

Police Seize Bombs

WARSAW, Sept. 16.—The police today discovered the headquarters of the revolutionaries in Lesens street and seized a supply of bombs and weapons and important documents. Two terrorists were executed in the citadel Saturday.

CONSCIENCE ALSO NEEDS TRAINING

PRESIDENT GLASS TALKS TO ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE

"We Place the Hopes We Have in the Future in Our Schools," Said the Reverend Speaker

The scholastic year at St. Vincent's college was formally opened with a solemn mass of devotion yesterday morning, at which Rev. H. M. Murtaugh, C. M., was celebrant; Rev. H. O'Connor, C. M., deacon, and Rev. Carl Osthoff, C. M., sub-deacon. Edward Callahan acted as master of ceremonies.

Very Rev. Dr. Joseph S. Glass, C. M., president of the college, preached an eloquent sermon on "The Need of Christian Education." Dr. Glass dwelt at length upon the training of the conscience and accountability of God with that of the intellect. He said in part: "We are upon the threshold of another scholastic year. Our schools have just opened.

"We believe in the school and we place the hopes we have in the future in our schools. For them we permit ourselves to be taxed and are willing to make the sacrifice for that generation which, after a while, will take our places.

"Education is what we hear on all sides. "Education has been the cry of the last century and it is the cry of today. We Americans look down in pity upon those who have not had the opportunities we have in this great country of ours.

"And yet there is something more—that character of our citizenship shall be elevated. "Our men and women who are to realize the destiny of our city, state and country shall be of high ideals, believing in God as well as men. They shall be a benefit not only to themselves but to fellow-men, to society and to the state.

"We have had time to study our schools and what do we behold? "In a recent number of the Advance, a prominent Congregational paper, the writer of an article asks the question why it is that although our schools are increasing, crime is also increasing? Why it is that the character of our citizenship, even though our schools are more numerous, is not higher? Are the schools teaching crime and transgression of the law? No.

"Neglect the Conscience "The writer answers that we insist on mental culture and we neglect the culture of the conscience. We are long on head and short on conscience. It there not some truth in this? "Are we not crying for education and mean only a partial education? "Are we not crying for mental culture, leaving out heart, conscience and personal accountability? "There, I think, is the great fault in a purely secular education, where the conscience is not an element, neither the heart. Only the mental power is to be blessed with knowledge. "A child goes to the purely secular school; he is taught arithmetic, sciences and to read and write. They can and do teach these things. But what else is there? "Where do we find the thing that points to the standard that is to give a guide to conscience? Where do we find the teaching of personal responsibility? "Not long ago a prisoner, condemned to death, was given some books on religion. He said to his jailer: 'This is the first time I have had the chance to know of God, conscience and the truth.'

"Something Wanting" "Very often, too commonly, the poor fellow that goes to prison is not ignorant. The man who robs you, the banker who takes your money by the thousands and hundreds of thousands, is not ignorant. The man who trespasses the moral law is not ignorant. His mental culture may be of the first class. There is something wanting. It is that merely of conscience, not of the mind, but of the will and the heart.

"So we contemplate today a state of affairs that is well nigh appalling. The figures of crime are terrible. We even in crime. Year before last the statistics for murder in Europe, and Canada made us suffer by comparison. In Canada to three murders there were in our one hundred, and twenty-nine in our one thousand. This is merely an indication of a general condition of our country. Yet we are not powerless. We can help this state of affairs.

"I speak especially to you as Catholics who know the truth. In Judea, Christ didn't teach science only. He spoke of conscience and the heart. He promised them a hundredfold in this world and everlasting happiness in the world to come, and his doctrine was of the heart.

"Parental Duty "The church, the mother of the people, will save the people if they will. It is the duty of the Catholic parents to see that their sons and daughters attend a Catholic school and, thanks be to God, there are Catholic schools to teach not merely the sciences but the conscience and the relations of the students to God and where they are not ashamed of the name of God.

"We are God's creatures, and can we say at any moment that we are not dependent absolutely on Him? Can we say God rests there and I will go and attend to my business? "We do not need to be ashamed of our church or her history. From the time of Christ his church has stood the leader among mankind. When sciences and art were driven out by the barbarians it was the church which saved them and today if you have the classics she, it was she who saved them and gave them not only to her own children but to all men who came and asked for them."

"Accident at Rink J. W. Schermerhorn, a Pasadena plumber, fell while skating at the Panorama rink at 11 o'clock last night and broke his right arm. His collar bone was sprained. The accident occurred while one of the "fast" periods was in progress.

"Soldiers' Home Victim Charles Middlebrook, an employe at the Soldiers' home at Savelle, was struck by a street car last evening about 11:35 on San Pedro street. He sustained slight injuries to his legs and arms, the greater part of his injuries consisting of a severe shaking up.

NINTH STREET COTTAGE DESTROYED BY FIRE

The five-room cottage of Mrs. D. A. Lenard at 2445 East Ninth street was destroyed by fire last evening about 9 o'clock. The blaze was originated by a coal oil lamp, which exploded. The loss is estimated at $350 for the house and $250 for the contents, making a total loss of $600. There was no insurance. No one was injured in the fire.

REV. DR. BURDETTE RESUMES PULPIT IN BEREAN HALL

Man Who Lives Much Alone With God Is Given Prophetic Insight Into Coming of Everlasting Kingdom According to Dr. John Brodick three things are necessary to produce a great sermon—the occasion, the congregation and the preacher.

With this trio yesterday morning Dr. Robert J. Burdette preached a sermon to the Temple Baptist congregation unsurpassed in strength and eloquence. For five weeks Dr. and Mrs. Burdette had been passing their vacation at a quiet little place in Santa Cruz county, returning to Los Angeles Wednesday. During his absence Dr. Burdette did no preaching and spent his time in recuperating from the strenuous exertions of the past year, incidental to the three changes the church made during that time.

The congregation was one to gladden any preacher's heart. Berean hall, the home of the church on Olive street, was filled to overflowing with a happy, thankful crowd of worshippers who were out to welcome their returning pastor.

"Immense Congregation The hall was taxed to its fullest capacity. The steps of the pulpit were crowded with many who could not find head and shoulders in the balcony to the balcony.

The corridor was filled and more than 100 were turned away for lack of room. As the doctor leaned back in his chair and scanned the welcoming faces of his happy flock a smile of recognition in the audience followed the path of his eyes.

"It is difficult for one to understand the love and reverence his parishioners have for Dr. Burdette unless one knows the man," said one visitor. "But a close contact with the great preacher simply leads one to the realization that like attracts like; the affection of people for pastor is the natural outcome of the pastor's affection for his people."

"Packed Chorus In point of excellence the music was in keeping with the rest of the service. A packed chorus rendered Stainer's well known 'O Zion, Bring Good Tidings.' In a marvellously sympathetic voice that seemed to draw the congregation into sympathy with the singer Miss Harriet Longstreet sang 'Jesus, Lover of My Soul.' Following this, the choir rendered a Chopin nocturne came from the piano at which Prof. Kingsley was playing.

Following this, Dr. Burdette preached on the topic, 'The Kingdom of God is at Hand.' The text was Luke 17:20. 'The kingdom of God cometh not with observation.' He said: "Not the scholar absorbed in the study of human nature, the close observer of the affairs of men and human governments, but the man who lives much alone with God is given prophetic insight into the coming of the everlasting kingdom.

"Napoleon's Relief "God fights on the side of the heaviest battalions," said the great Napoleon. And his firm belief in that fallacy led him straight to Waterloo. The believer in majesties and the careful student of human strength would have prophesied the triumph of the Armada and the utter destruction of the Mayflower.

"The student of history would have declared the defeat of George Washington's army and the freezing army at Valley Forge and the splendid victories of the fourth crusade.

"Mr. Gladstone was certainly a deep student of human affairs. He was a profound and careful observer, an intimate student of history. And he wrote a letter to Jefferson Davis congratulating him because he had 'founded a new nation.'

"And today the one undivided and only American nation thanks God that Mr. Gladstone didn't know anything about it.

"Elijah, in the wilderness of Carmel; Moses, in the mountain pastures of the Jordan hills—these men walking alone with God, entered into his secret. Not with signs and portents, but with prayer and faith and the vigils of the soul cometh the kingdom. Not in the shock of the earthquake, nor in the roar of the tempest, nor in the terror of the fire, but in 'the still, small voice.'

"Thy kingdom come! Into the ways of human woe. Where pains and heart-aches come and go. Where the wild storms of sorrow sweep. Where anxious souls their vigils keep. Where eyes with weeping ache and burn.

"Where longing hearts for daybreak yearn— Shine with the brightness of thy face, Gleam with the glory of thy grace— Thy kingdom come!

"O'er war's red field, rough plowed by fire; In lives weed-grown with foul desire; In souls of men, ice-hard and cold, Chilled by the deathlike lust of gold; In eyes that stare upon a heaven bright— Dry-rotted hearts of selfishness; In the pleasures, vain and light, Into the shame-rotted halls of night— Shine with thy glory from above, The pure white light of saving love— Thy kingdom come!

ALASKAN SPHERES BAPTIST DIVINE

SEES SERMON IN WHITE OF THE ETHERAL SNOWS

Man's Wonderful Energy Everywhere Manifest in Country Where Many Lives Paid Forfeit for Impossible Ambitions

Having just returned from his summer vacation, Rev. Arthur S. Phelps, preached last night at Central Baptist church, Alvarado and Pico streets, on "What I Saw in Alaska." He said: "The Bible says 'The meek shall inherit the earth,' but at present it belongs to the tourist.

"Thomas Fuller said 250 years ago: 'Know most of the rooms of thy native country before thou goest over the threshold thereof.' "This is a great country. The Yankees, in the national boundary test, said: 'The United States is bounded on the north by the aurora borealis, on the east by the rising sun, on the south by the procession of the equinoxes, and by the procession of the day of judgment.' I don't wonder Marie Corelli felt sorry for Satan; the poor fellow had no vacation.

"See Hand of Providence "Everywhere on our Alaskan trip and vacation travels, which covered 5000 miles and took us on eight steamboat rides, we saw the touch of God's fingers. "Alaska! Alaska! thy falls and thy mountains, thy walls and thy fountains, world famed in story, all speak of one greater, thy mighty Creator, who touched thee with glory.

"As our vessel steamed out, under the soft light of the full moon, over a sea broken into little ruffles, and gradually left behind the brilliantly lighted city, I tried to my comfortable state-city, at peace with all the world.

"The whole trip was inland, among 20,000 islands. "The phosphorescent glow of the water at night reminded me that God's glory is often seen only in the dark.

"The last day north from Juneau to Skaguay revealed scenery of unrivaled splendor. 'Live glaciers,' like live Christians, are those which reach the outside world; while 'dead glaciers' are those cut off by moraines.

"Soul in the Beautiful "There is a soul in things beautiful. White is the most attractive color in nature, the white of the eternal snow, of the shifting clouds, of the crystal waterfall and breaking surf, of the orchard in bloom, of the swan on the lake; most beautiful because it is the color of purity, and because it is ephemeral.

"Nature is full of inspiration. Like glorious Mt. Shasta, a great life rises from the general level into the upper heights, giving a vision of the ideal among the real.

"The surging tide, running through Seymour Narrows at times with a sense of the power of the Creator. It rises under the bridge in Victoria, B. C., and creates a fall of seven feet.

"When in the Gulf of Georgia two companions said 'I carried out from shore by wind and tide, swam against these forces, almost exhausted, I thought what a powerless thing is man fighting against the laws of his Maker.

"Sunday in Victoria "Sunday is better observed in Victoria than here. They publish no Monday newspaper, close all postoffice all day, and some of the restaurants. "Man's wonderful energy is everywhere manifest in Alaska. At Skaguay I thought of the sacrifice of hopes and lives for golden prospects, so few of which come to realize. Like the salmon, which one sees fall lifeless in Ketchikan river, in their vain attempt to ascend the impossible current, so many a life has paid the forfeit of an impossible ambition.

"Next Sunday night Mr. Phelps will speak on "Totem Poles," illustrating with one he brought from Skaguay. He is writing his trip, with illustrations, for "Outdoor Life."

ASKS INFORMATION ABOUT A BROTHER

C. F. Barnes, a broker of 2584 Washington street, Boston, Mass., has written to Chief Able asking for information concerning his brother, William H. Barnes, formerly of Bucksport, Maine, who disappeared from his home about forty-seven years ago, and has never been heard about since.

He is supposed to be in Los Angeles according to a letter which Mr. Barnes has received from the chief of police of San Francisco, who says that his brother has been known to live in Los Angeles recently. Mr. Barnes has been addressed letters to his brother here but has failed to receive any response. The police, too, have made many inquiries about the man but no information has been elicited so far.

MEXICANS OVERCOME BY INDEPENDENCE "SPIRIT"

Yesterday was Mexican independence day and the occasion for hilarity was evident at the Central police station.

From the Plaza, Alameda street and Fifty-second, and other centers of Mexican celebrations, the patrol wagons kept constantly unloading at the central station sons of Mexico who had become quite empowered by the "spirited" of the day.

Out of twenty-eight men brought to the station drunk twenty-two were Mexican celebrators, and they all seemed proud of their "load."

Falls From Car

William Buchanan, aged 59, living at 1367 Elwood street, fell from a car last evening at Fifth and Spring streets and sustained severe bruises to his right arm and head. He stated that the Universal car upon which he was riding started suddenly as he was about to alight, throwing him upon his head and arm. He was taken to the receiving hospital and treated by Police Surgeon C. W. Cook.

STANDS TOO CLOSE TO CAR

Iron Steps Brush Chinese, Whose Arm is Amputated as a Result

Long Kick Go, a Chinese vegetable vander living on the outskirts of the city, was struck by a Jefferson avenue car near Western avenue at midnight.

The accident is supposed to have resulted because the Chinese stood too close to the track while waiting to board the car. The step struck him and he was knocked to the ground. His right arm was fractured above the elbow, his left hip dislocated and his entire body generally bruised.

At the receiving hospital yesterday morning it was found necessary to amputate his arm, and he was later sent to the Good Samaritan hospital.

SERVICE ONLY TEST IN PIETY

PASTOR SMITHER TALKS ON REAL CONSECRATION

"It is the Power We Have, the Possession Committed to Our Hands, That God Wants Us to Use" At the First Christian church yesterday morning Rev. A. C. Smither spoke from the apostle's words: "What I have that I give." He spoke in part: "This beautiful incident of the healing of the lame man at the beautiful gate of the temple is most suggestive and helpful in its application to modern Christian work.

"These apostles had a gift from God. God's gifts are varied and bountiful and are discovered in most unexpected places. "He has poured his wealth into the great prairies. He has expended his riches in the mountains. He has not withheld his bounty from the desert.

"With flower and fruit, with metal and mineral, with water and wind, he scatters his gifts everywhere. "So with man, God has left upon man of every age, rank and condition divine endowments.

"These gifts are as varied as the stars in the sky, and as useful as the fruit produced by the earth.

"Genuine Consecration "These apostles consecrated their gift of healing to the need of man, to the good of the race. This is genuine consecration. "To set apart to separate uses and purposes, to turn our powers and possessions to the service of the race, to the uplifting of mankind, to the alleviation of human suffering, is the highest kind of consecration.

"Many people confuse pious pretension and somber ejaculations with piety. "Service is the only true test and proof of consecration. These apostles gave of their heaven derived power to minister relief to the needy sufferers.

"These apostles used the powers they had—'What I have that I give.' "God only expects men to use such gifts as they individually possess and not such as may be the heritage of their neighbors.

"Rod and Harp "Moses had but a rod, but when dedicated to the need of his people, it wrought a genuine and lasting service. "David had but a harp, but with his song brought comfort and helpfulness to human hearts in all subsequent generations.

"The widow had but two pennies but with these she has given tribute to generosity and a rebuke to stinginess in all ages of the church. "Dorcas had but a needle, but with it clothed the poor and made for herself a robe of imperishable glory.

"The power we have, the possession committed to our hands, that God wants us to use. The smallest power possessed by man's standard can often render the largest service according to the divine standard.

"Valuable as Used "These gifts were valuable only as they were used. Use is the ultimate purpose of all endowments. "The diamond attains its value only as it sparkles in the necklace of service. "God challenges all men to bring their endowments onto the field of service.

"These gifts resulted in this lame man being lifted up and placed on his feet with his heart filled with gladness and song. Such is the service we owe our unfortunate fellow men. We are to lift them up, are to add cheer to their lives, are to put a song upon their lips.

"The man whose life is thus spent is he who has caught to the fullest the spirit of his Master. "How many are the lame, the maimed, the halt, morally and spiritually, who await the helping hand, who need the cheering word? Lead a hand, brother, and help this old world up to God."

Cut in Brawl

G. A. Maner, a negro, was cut upon both hands last evening while engaged in a brawl in a San Pedro street lodging house. He was arrested by Officer Humphrey and taken to the central station and booked on a charge of disturbing the peace. His injuries were treated by Police Surgeon C. W. Cook.
