Special Cable to The Herald.

WARSAW, Oct. 20.—The famous report of Muraviev, the "Butcher of Warsaw," to the czar, "L'ordre regne a Varsovie," is no longer true. "Le desordre regne a Varsovie," it would hardly be exaggeration to say that anarchy prevails. The population is being held down by a force of something like 50,000 troops, which keep up a reign of terror in the Polish capital.

The government fears the Jews more than they do the Poles, for the Jews are of a superior intelligence. Every Jew can read and write, and 80 per cent of them speak German in addition to Polish and Russian. They can, therefore, more easily communicate with foreign countries. As they are all engaged in commercial pursuits it is they who carry out all the smuggling of arms and propagandist literature. For years past the necessities of their condition drove them to combine for mutual protection. They have been forced by the oppression to which they were subjected to reduce the art of bribing functionaries to a fine art. They knew the price of every man in authority and how he was to be reached. The obtaining of passports and government permits of all kinds was with a section of them a regular business.

Their knowledge of the workings of the official machine and the influence they possess in various ways made them most dangerous conspirators. The only failing is that they are not entirely trusted by their Polish co-workers. The Jewish aims and those of the Poles are not the same. The Jews want to remove the disabilities under which they live, and these once granted they regard Polish and Russian national aspirations with equal indifference. It will therefore always be possible for the government to detach a great proportion of the Jews from the P. P. S. by giving concessions to them which would be of no value to their Polish allies. Fortunately for the Polish-Jewish alliance, the government has shown no intelligence in its dealing with either party, and relies on a policy of brute force, which, of course, only increases the existing exasperation.

Good Move Made

A good impression has been caused throughout Russia by an order issued to the effect that all Jewish candidates for admission as students to Odessa university shall be received, whatever their number. M. Stolypin has prepared a whole series of reforms, which will be drafted, sanctioned and realized before the elections, and among those will be the abolition, once for all, of the Pale of Settlement, beyond which the Jews were, with some insignificant exceptions, forbidden to reside.

After the promulgation of the new measure which is not yet definitely drafted, the Jews will be free to move about without let or hindrance, and will be emancipated from several other disabilities now weighing heavily upon them.

The firm hope is entertained that this abolition of the mediaeval state of things will be welcomed by the czar's Hebrew subjects, and will induce many of those among them now fighting in the ranks of the revolutionists to return to their allegiance and devote themselves to the arts of peace. It is further believed that when this project has become a law of the empire foreign members of the Hebrew community who have during the past couple of years been contributing generously and continuously to those organizations which seemed best calculated to benefit their Russian co-religionists will endeavor to persuade the Jews in this country to abandon revolution for evolution and useful competition with their Christian fellow-subjects. Whether these hopes are grounded or not, the projected measure which is engendering them will prove the most momentous reform undertaken by the crown since the promulgation of the October charter. The restrictions now enforced against foreign Jews desirous of traveling in Russia will be also removed, and these visitors will be treated in the same way as the Christian subjects of foreign states.

One Jew Slain

Details of a recent execution show that the terrorist executed was a Jew named Tarle. He was 22 years of age. He killed a policeman who was endeavoring to arrest him. He fled, and fired on his pursuers, killing a dvornik and wounding two more policemen. He himself received five shots in the body, and was arrested and put in prison.

The field court martial, composed of six high officers, whose names have not been divulged, sat at the prison, and after a short deliberation sentenced the prisoner to death. Tarle, whose condition was hopeless owing to loss of blood, was put into a litter, carried to the prison yard and tied to a post. His last words were, "Dying, I send you, my assassins, my contempt and curse. You pitious, blind fools, you fancy that you have shot down the whole of young Russia with your pogroms and field court martial; but be sure that there are bombs and revolvers enough to deliver our unfortunate country from your bloodstained hands. Now, fire."

The soldiers fired three volleys, and Tarle fell dead.

A young man approached a police officer on duty in the street here the other day and, after some conversation, offered him a pair. The officer at the rear, and immediately afterward fell to the ground in a state of collapse. He was taken to the hospital, where he was found to have been poisoned.

CURED ME"

Another Remarkable Statement from a Young Medical Student

It affords me great pleasure to state that after losing my health in my studies and effort to secure a medical education, and after consulting my professors at the medical school at which I was in attendance, and they universally advised me to desist and discontinue my studies, and said as plainly as words could speak by both words and action that I was a victim of the great army of the White Plague, pulmonary consumption, you may imagine my gratitude after consulting Dr. H. Russell Burner to hear him say: "Young man, if you will let me control you, that is if you will let me dictate your diet, habit, exercise and control your life, I can cure you. It is not medicines you want; it is better and more carefully selected diet, more sunlight and open air, more rest, and care of your body and mind. Come live with me at my sanatorium, and I will make you well." Need I say I went and lived with the doctor, and instead of, as I would naturally expect from my knowledge of the science of medicine that he would expect me to remain six, nine or twelve months, in just six weeks he discharged me as a cured man; and among other things said to me: "Young man, go back to your professors at your medical college and tell them to make a careful, physiological and chemical analysis of your body and its secretions and your expectations, and if they find a single tubercle bacillus tell them I will pay them one thousand dollars for the first one they find and $500 for each additional one that they can find." I will further state I gained in these six weeks 22 pounds in flesh; all my debility passed away; my night sweats and cough stopped in less than three weeks, and I today am in perfect health. For the benefit of all sufferers from disease of the throat and lungs I would say go and consult Dr. Burner; believe just what he tells you; accept his treatment and be cured.
