HE WITTS WARNS AGAINST CAHUENGA BOUNDARY LINE VAGUE; SUITS MAY FOLLOW

City Attorney Joins Chamber of Commerce in Opposing Annexation at This Time Because of Complications Not only will the coming election to annex the Cahuenga district have the opposition of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce, but it is likely that the board of public works and the city attorney's office will line itself up with the water board in opposing the proposed annexation at this time.

TRIES TO HELP FRIEND AND LOSES A "ROLL"

It is probable that John Haines, a negro coachman, who rooms at 2020 Central avenue, will be rather careful about trusting his friends hereafter, for as a result of his experience Thursday night he is $25 out. Haines did not have the money when he was called to the Central avenue toward his room early in the evening, when a man accosted him whom he recognized as an old friend.

HE WITTS WARNS AGAINST CAHUENGA

BOUNDARY LINE VAGUE; SUITS MAY FOLLOW

City Attorney Joins Chamber of Commerce in Opposing Annexation at This Time Because of Complications

Not only will the coming election to annex the Cahuenga district have the opposition of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce, but it is likely that the board of public works and the city attorney's office will line itself up with the water board in opposing the proposed annexation at this time.

Sentiment has changed in Los Angeles, say officials, and it will be best to defer the big move until Los Angeles gets her Owens river water supply.

City Attorney Leslie R. Hewitt told The Herald last night that from a legal standpoint the proposed election would invite much trouble for Los Angeles because of the uncertainty that exists and complications likely to grow out of the indefinite and vague boundary lines marking the territory which seeks to be joined to Los Angeles.

"This annexation was started before I became city attorney," said Mr. Hewitt, "and I simply did my share of the work as it was laid before me.

"I caused proceedings to be delayed until voters of the newly annexed San Pedro territory were given their right to vote, which oversight would have invalidated the election at that time.

"With what descriptions we had at hand we did our best in defining the Cahuenga boundaries, but over this question much litigation would inevitably result.

"There is no fixed geographical division now and there are other uncertainties which should be corrected in future this problem of defining the boundaries confronts us again.

"From the resolutions of the chamber of commerce I judge that there will be strong opposition at the coming election, and as a citizen I am merely pointing out the legal obstacles which confront the proposition."

The East Hollywood and other residents have spent several thousand dollars in preparing for the coming election, but in some quarters even there it is stated that it is largely the work of certain real estate men who see in an annexation an opportunity to make money regardless of the fact that there are reasons at this time why Los Angeles should move slowly with annexing this strip which drains its name too copious water supply and offers no harbor in return, as would the San Pedro scheme.
