

MUSIC TO WHILE AWAY LONG HOURS

CONCERTS ENLIVEN TEDIOUS TRAVEL

Masonic Quartet of Minneapolis, One of the Most Famous of Shriner Organizations, to Sing During Conclave

Among Mystic Shriners on pleasure bent music plays an important part, and on the way to the Los Angeles oasis, a little more than two weeks away, measured by the slow-moving caravan of camels across the scorching sands, there will be concerts galore. Nearly every temple has its pet band of musicians, its star singer or clever performer.

Members of Quartet The personnel of the present quartet is: E. P. Browning, first tenor; W. B. Heath, second tenor; W. S. Marshall, baritone, and F. H. Forbes, bass.

Headquarters at Hollenbeck When the nobles and ladies from Ballut Abyad temple reach Los Angeles, after their lavish hospitality to their visitors at Albuquerque, they will make their headquarters at the Hollenbeck hotel and hold a reception there on the evening of May 7.

Will Stop at Salt Lake A daylight ride through the canyons of the Rocky mountains will be one of the features of the trip.

At Colorado Springs there will be another stop, affording time for a trip to the Garden of the Gods, Manitou and Pike's peak.

The train is due to arrive in Los Angeles Saturday evening, May 4. The return trip will be made by way of San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and Spokane.

Ballut Abyad temple of Albuquerque, N. M., which includes in its membership many of the prominent public officials and business men, has made elaborate preparations for entertaining Shriner pilgrims passing through Albuquerque May 1 to 3, inclusive.

QUARTET OF SWEET-SINGERS FROM MINNEAPOLIS

W. S. MARSHAL E. P. BROWNING W. B. HEATH F. H. FORBES

The Santa Fe is already booked twelve special trains for these dates. New Mexico Shriners are noted for their good fellowship and hospitality and are eager to extend a true Arabian greeting to pilgrims bound for the Southern California Mecca.

All managers of hotels, boarding houses and rooming places have been requested by W. H. Harrison, chairman of the hotel committee, to file a list of their available rooms.

The committee has learned that persons supposed to represent certain bureaus have been soliciting rooms for the Shriners and have charged a commission for the service.

With the exception of the long established floral parade, which will this year discount all expectations, the first night parade, to be held on the evening of May 7, will be the crowning feature of Fiesta week.

The Shriners committee publicly announces that commissions will not be allowed in a.v.c case and have asked the proprietors to report any such solicitation.

Upon this occasion miles of wire, dividing streets from sidewalks, will be strung along the line of march. This will permit uninterrupted execution of evolutions by the various Arab patrols, who will comprise a most interesting feature of the affair.

EDITORS EAT AND DISCUSS PROBLEMS

TWO HUNDRED MEMBERS OF ASSOCIATION MEET

Southern California Pencil Pushers Will Be Entertained at Bakersfield by the Board of Trade

Members of the Southern California Editorial association to the number of 200 attended the banquet last night which closed the annual session of the association.

At the morning and afternoon sessions held in Symphony hall there was also a large attendance, and many topics of interest to the country editor were discussed.

For three days the men who wield the pencil in Southern California have left the implements of their profession far behind them and are enjoying themselves to the best of their ability.

The first address made at the morning session was by Mrs. J. J. Penny of the Long Beach Telegraph. Mrs. Penny was one of the women who made the trip to Hawaii with the association, and she told many interesting details of this expedition.

Talks of Advertising The Development of the Local Advertising Field was the subject of a paper by J. P. Baumgartner of the Santa Ana Register.

The Weekly Newspaper, Its Place and Its Opportunities, furnished subject matter for an interesting paper by G. W. Glover of the South Pasadena News.

Professional Newspaper Work was the subject of a paper by E. F. Howe of the Imperial Valley Standard.

The banquet last night was held in the banquet room at Levy's, which was decorated with ferns and carnations.

Mr. Gates spoke on the "Influence of the Press for the Upbuilding of Country and Character."

"Honesty and Courage in Public and Private Affairs" was Byron Oliver's topic, and Rev. Baker P. Lee spoke on "The President of the United States."

Gives Thanks to Press In speaking in response to the allotted theme, "The Newspaper as an Agency of Promotion," Rufus P. Jennings, chairman of the California Promotion committee, expressed his appreciation of the good work done by the press of the state and said it had been a most valued agency for development and progress.

"I want to express my appreciation in this public manner for the co-operation had in the work we have had in hand. This co-operation has been splendid from one end of the state to the other, and it has exercised fresh endeavor in all localities of the state.

"The criticism I am going to make is that some editors still seem to think that the only way to build up their localities is by disparaging other localities in California."

Mr. Jennings here read a number of clippings taken from newspapers published in San Francisco, the San Joaquin valley, Los Angeles and other parts of the state, in which invidious comparisons were made about other parts of California. He then continued:

Does any one for a moment imagine that such articles as these do any one or any locality any good? They are intended to do harm to a part of California, and if successful in so doing can but act as a boomerang on the localities where the articles were inspired.

He read extracts from papers speaking well of other parts of the state and pointed out how much better was this friendly way.

"All the states on the Pacific coast are linked together by close affiliations, and no matter under what names or forms of government, the interests of the entire Pacific coast are interdependent."

In speaking of the power of the press for good he said: "The newspapers have it in their power to change the attitude of the people of California or of those who do not yet understand the value of co-operation, by refusing to publish incorrect and unkind statements regarding any part of the state, and on the other hand to make it a point to publish news of a friendly character of other than their own localities."

Advices Co-operation He strongly advised co-operation of the press with the local organizations of the state and said: "So I urge upon the newspapers to strongly support the local organization, and all these 175 organizations, with the backing of the press, make a force that is bringing continued and increased prosperity to all."

Mr. Jennings extended an invitation to the members of the association to attend the next semi-annual meeting of the promotion committee of the California Promotion committee, which will be held at Petaluma on June 7. The meeting will be devoted to the subject of forestry and irrigation.

At the close of the banquet the editors left for Bakersfield, where they will be the guests of the board of trade. Sylvester C. Smith, who is in charge of arrangements for the entertainment at Bakersfield, sent word that there would be "lots doing" when the delegation arrived there.

A miner, accompanied by his mate, who was rather deaf, was walking along the railway line the other day near Motherwell. A train approached and on hearing the men it gave forth an ear-piercing shriek. A smile broke over the deaf man's face.

"Man," he said, "that's the first robin I've heard this spring."—Tit-Bits.

LOG SAVES A BURIED MAN

Strange Fate of a Great Northern Flagman in Frozen Drifts

CASHMERE, Wash., April 13.—Strange tale comes from Chiwankum of the almost miraculous escape from death of a flagman on the Great Northern railroad, near that place. He was buried by a snowslide and lay for five hours crushed down by the snow. No one knew of the disaster that had overtaken him. A rotary was sent to clear away the slide and penetrated it some distance when it was stopped by a log across the track.

Workmen who were set to digging the log out discovered what they supposed was the dead body of a man buried in the snow beside the log on the opposite side from the rotary. It proved to be the flagman, who was in a semi-conscious condition from the cold and the weight of the snow. He soon revived and except for a few scratches and bruises seemed little the worse for his awful experience. He said that he could hear the rotary coming and thought it was all up with him, but owing to his benumbed condition the apparent nearness of death caused him but little agitation. The log which saved his life proved to be the only one in the slide.

On account of the unusually deep snow a good many horses belonging to Indians are starving to death on the range. George Salusean has lost twenty-five, Dan Nason, "Doctor Jim," and others have lost a like number. The snow is so deep now that they could not get those still alive down out of the hills if they tried to do so.
