QUIET PLAYS IS GRAND OFFERING

LITTLE BLOOD AND THUNDER, BUT AUDIENCES LIKE IT

"A Great Temptation" Proves Popular, Despite Its Lack of Pistol Play. Florence Barker Delightful in Sympathetic Role

The Ulrich stock company is surprising Grand opera houses into really enjoying plays that are plays. "A Great Temptation" this week is one of this class. It gives the Ulrich players something else to think about besides doing hard work.

Florence Barker is very well placed in the character of a young southern girl, very shy and pretty, but with a mind and will of her own in the everyday affairs of life in love matters also. She plays the part in the real life manner characteristic of this petite leading woman. Charles Gunn presents the "gentleman" gambler, a type that is not yet extinct, and is quite as much gentleman as gambler. Lule Warrenton is so real a "mammy" that she ought to have a similar role every week. She is the one really laughable character in the play, though there are two others that are supposed to have comical roles.

It is all about a plantation down in Kentucky, which a foolish old man has gambled away and Don Spencer, the "gentleman" gambler, has won back and presented to the old man's daughter as her rightful inheritance. The card-crazy old gentleman would sell it again for money to gamble with, but his daughter refuses and Spencer upholds her in her rebellion against parental authority.

Finding every effort to get at the old gentleman's property blocked by the gambler, the steamboat captain and the misguided young man who is his accomplice intend to kill Spencer, but instead the old man falls to their pistols. His daughter witnesses the murder and the fleeing pair carry her with them. They are captured and the scene closes the play with everybody happy who is entitled to happiness.

There are three very effective acts in "A Great Temptation," and the other two are naturally "feeders" for the climax. The first scene is the card game in the cabin of a Mississippi steamboat, where the plantation is lost and won again. This with the escape of Cecily Willoughby (Florence Barker) from the ruined mill, and the closing scene in the limestone cave tell the story of the play.

Blood and red fire is not so much in evidence at the Grand this season as in the past. Director of the Grand apparently believes that his audiences can be reached by other means than the loud noise.

"BEFORE AND AFTER" WILL BE PRODUCED BY THE BELASCO TONIGHT

"Before and After," a farce now running like a scared rabbit at the Astor theater, New York, will get its first presentation on any other stage at the Belasco tonight. It is not often that a New York success reaches here so quickly, especially while its run is still on there, but Manager Blackwood has secured it, and the principal roles show he could find, and promises that beside it even the burning sands will be chilly. The Shriners own the house two nights.

"WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER" TO RUN AT BURBANK ANOTHER WEEK

The second week of "When Knight-hood Was in Flower," at the Burbank, opened yesterday with the usual record-breaking throngs, and it now looks as if the drama might run indefinitely. Miss Blanche Hall is still the charming Mary Tudor and the cast remains practically unchanged.

"ROBIN HOOD" TO START ITS SECOND WEEK AT THE AUDITORIUM THIS EVENING

The Californians' big production of "Robin Hood" is now running perfectly and will enter its second week tonight. A few minor changes in the cast have strengthened it, but the principal roles are still in the same competent hands. It now makes a fascinating evening's entertainment.

PAPINTA TO REMAIN AS ONE OF THE ORPHEUM'S PRINCIPAL ATTRACTIONS

Papinta, the fire dancer, will remain as one of the Orpheum's principal attractions this week. Essie Wynn of the "Walkies" fame, the four Harveys, Linton and Lawrence and the Rialto comedy four are the other new numbers.

WALKER WHITESIDE TO MAKE HIS CALIFORNIA BOW AT THE MASON

Walker Whiteside, an actor highly lauded in the east, but new to California, will make his bow at the Mason tonight in "The Magic Melody." Much interest is manifested in his engagement, as California has long wanted to know him.

Mrs. Fiske to Come Shortly

It was given out last night that Mrs. Fiske, perhaps the greatest of American actresses and the only star independent of the syndicate, would appear in Los Angeles shortly. It is understood that she will play in the Burbank stock company laying on for three or four weeks, which would indicate either quite a Fiske season or the advent of other Independents, probably some of Belasco's stars. Mrs. Fiske's play will be "The New York Idea."

Mrs. Leslie Carter Coming

Mrs. Leslie Carter will be seen at the Mason Opera house on May 27 for a week in "DuBarry," by David Belasco. Mrs. Carter is directing her own company with Ernest Ramirez at Second and Main streets. The latter boy is aged 10 years and has been missing from his home at 237 North Figueroa street for a week. Both boys were sent to the detention home for the night.

"The Lucky Girl" at Fischer's

Fischer's new show, going on tonight, is "The Magic Girl," one of Harry Montague's musical comedies. All the popular players will be in the cast.

Unique Changes Bill

The Unique will have an especially strong bill this week, with Hunter and White heading it. The comedy company will produce "A Victim of Circumstances."

CORNER STONE OF Y. W. C. A. PLACED

ASSEMBLAGE HEARS AN ELOQUENT SERMON

With Impressive Ceremonies Great Granite Block is Put Into Place by Governor James N. Gillett

At the usual vesper hour of 4 o'clock the Young Women's Christian association held its cornerstone laying exercises in the main assembly room of the association headquarters in the Pacific Mutual Life building. The main room was augmented by the large dining room, during the week and by the surrounding rooms, all of which were filled with a large congregation, hundreds of people attending the exercises.

"All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name!" was the opening hymn, which was followed by a selection by the Y. W. C. A. choral club, "Lift Thine Eyes," by the "Priests' March," by the Y. W. C. A. orchestra. Rev. E. A. Healy, pastor of the University Methodist church, offered prayer and Rev. J. J. Wilkins, dean and rector of St. Paul's pro-cathedral, read the Scripture lesson.

Rev. Hugh K. Walker, pastor of the Immanuel Presbyterian church, extended the greetings of the Los Angeles churches to the young women's Christian association, laying and congratulated them upon the work achieved. Miss Florence Simms, national secretary of the association, extended greetings from the national board of the Y. W. C. A.

Arthur Letts, president of the Young Men's Christian association, tendered greetings from that body and said that he hoped the two associations would work in harmony and that while they would be rivals in doing good, they would work for the same end.

Comprehensive Christianity

Rev. William Horace Day, pastor of the First Congregational church, delivered the address of the afternoon on the topic, "Comprehensive Christianity." His said in part:

"St. Paul was a builder. He aimed to make the church a satisfactory building on the only adequate foundation, for other foundation can no man make than that which is laid which is Jesus Christ. When Christianity covers this whole foundation it is comprehensive. The Y. W. C. A. presents comprehensive Christianity because it is as broad as the spirit of Christ. The religious life to be centered here is comprehensive because it is catholic, social and spiritual."

"For 1200 or more years followers of the Master have been saying, 'I believe in the holy Catholic church.' Nearly every church has been reciting the thought, using either the great word, catholic or its Latin equivalent, universal. Greek, Nestorian Gregorian, Roman Lutheran or reformed all have believed that the church of Jesus could never be right till real union should prevail. Because wholesome emulation has degenerated into the hanging his head while the adversary laughs. Each would be satisfied if the other churches could be swallowed by his own, but while it is being determined just what shall be swallowed here is a practical example of catholicity which inspires us all. In spite of deep seated differences we meet here on the one foundation. The beautiful catholicity of Whittier permeates this occasion:

"O Lord and Master of us all
Whatever our name or sign
We own Thy sway, we hear Thy call,
We test our lives by Thine."

Women Teach Lesson

The splendid effectiveness of service realized by these women cannot be taught us a lesson when we are buried in the dry dust of theological discussion. We are made nothing like the professor who was said to be able to dive into a subject deeper, and stay under longer and come up dryer than any man of his time, and yet both association and church need to remember the vital link between the two.

"We, as churches, may share in the inspiration of the success and of the burdens if we never forget this is our work. I wish every church might try what we have found valuable. We have written on our church sign board, 'Institutional Work for Women at the Y. W. C. A. Hill and Third Streets.' When some fine worker is drafted into service down here we rejoice because it is our work, and when over $200,000

Is raised we are proud because it is our own. We love this part of the life of the church universal.

It Must Be Social

"A comprehensive Christianity must be social. It not only represents the church catholic, but is a 'good thing' to the whole of life. With Van Dyke we know

"They who tread the path of labor follow where Christ's feet have trod. They who work without complaining Where the weary toil together there am I among my own.

Where the tired workman sleeps, there am I with him alone.

This is the gospel of labor—ring it ye bells of the kirk.

The word which came down from above to live with the men who work."

"When the extension department cooperates with managers and workers in a great store and can promote a new harmony in meeting the needs of the employed, in safeguarding the moral and the social nature of the young women who needs nothing quite so much as a true Alma Mater foster mother, when the association fills that high place her service is precious beyond rubies. Many a homeless girl dwells here in peace and surety because the church of Christ has believed in the social message of this place."

Spiritual Life

"The association presents a comprehensive gospel because she has learned that a great building must have adequate foundation. That you cannot have living flowers without roots.

"Four fishermen in Galilee were doing well in business, but were dissatisfied with life; they followed a man who spoke new word of authority to the sick soul and there they found the abundant life, and he went by night to the same Teacher and life for Nicodemus was new.

"Many a woman here today has discovered a newness in life because the evangel met her here and she lives in relationship with Christ. For men to be a leader alike the conference gives the quiet time in which the soul may gain new peace for the rush of life. This new building is to shelter a comprehensive Christianity which is catholic, social and spiritual."

At the close of the formal exercises the congregation repaired across the street, where Governor Gillett laid the stone.

Miss Cora L. Tatham, general secretary, gave a historical statement and the contents put in the box, which was placed in position by Mrs. Z. D. Mathews, chairman of the building committee. Mrs. Frank A. Dewey, president of the association, assisted the governor in placing the stone in position. Rev. Robert Burdette offered prayer and Rev. Herbert J. Weaver led the responses by the congregation. The service was closed with the singing of America and benediction by Rev. J. P. McKnight.

THREATS OF A GENERAL STRIKE LABOR COUNCIL IS CALLED INTO TROUBLE

Teamsters Will Know Tonight if They Will Have Support of Affiliated Unions in Open Shop Warfare

An industrial warfare such as has never before occurred in the history of Los Angeles may face the citizens of this city before the end of the week, as representatives of twenty-nine labor unions at a meeting last night at union labor headquarters agreed to place the cause of the striking teamsters before their respective organizations and request a vote of the members as to whether they would obey the call for a sympathetic strike.

Early yesterday morning all was peace and quiet and the union men were confident that the strife existing between the members of the Draymen's association and their employees was at an end. The thing which prompted them to these thoughts was the fact that at a meeting of the strikers it had been decided to have all disagreements in regard to the recognition of the union by the draymen and return to work if granted a raise of 25 cents a day of twelve hours and 1 cent an hour for overtime.

It was thought by the teamsters that this would end the strike and a committee was appointed to visit the members of the Draymen's association and notify them of the action of the union.

Teamsters' Terms Refused

Early yesterday morning, according to the officers of the teamsters' union, the committee was met by Mr. Cochran and an agreement was made that the teamsters should return to work, providing the members of the association would sign an agreement granting the increased wages and pay for overtime. The draymen are said to have refused to sign any agreement whatsoever, but to have insisted that they would deal with the teamsters as individuals only, and that no organized body would be recognized. In other words, that no agreement would be signed with any union and that the fight for an open shop would be continued.

A report was at once made to the members of the miscellaneous council and a meeting of that body was called for last night.

At the meeting the members of the committee which had waited on the officers of the Draymen's association reported their failure to come to a settlement with the draymen, and stated they were confident that the members of the association were determined to carry on the fight for an open shop to the finish.

Propose Sympathetic Strike

It was then proposed that a sympathetic strike be called and that all unions affiliated with the teamsters be called out to assist them in winning their battle against the draymen. It was stated that it would be unnecessary to call out the members of the union of the building trades or the printers, but nearly every other union in the city was said to be ready to go out to assist the strikers.

It was then decided to have the representatives of the different unions meet at a meeting tonight to discuss the subject before their unions at once and report at a meeting tonight the result of their conferences. It was decided to have them propose to their unions a sympathetic strike and learn the sentiments of their comrades on the question.

It is said that the majority were in favor of going on strike the matter could be reported at the meeting tonight and decision reached, and the members of the union which is now on strike could then be assured of support and know just how many of the affiliated unions could be depended upon to stand by them.

The Draymen's Side

The members of the Draymen's association stated yesterday that the members of the unions were taking views of the matter which were all wrong. They stated that the calling of a sympathetic strike was unnecessary, and said that the strikers were only injuring their own cause by talking of it.

"We have determined that we are going to stand for an open shop and nothing they can do will make us change our minds," said Fred Zucker, a prominent member of the Draymen's association, last night. "We hope that a sympathetic strike will not be called, as it will injure Los Angeles in the eyes of our visitors and will also work unionism great injury."

"The matter, boiled down, comes to simply this: For years we have been dictated to by the members of the unions and have suffered all kinds of injuries in consequence. The members have carried things with a high hand, told us who we should and should not hire and we have found that they were really in the bosses and not us."

Have Good Support

"This matter has been carefully considered by us for some time, and we have been assured of the support of every organization interested in the welfare of the city. Even the smaller merchants have hurried to us with expressions of support and assurances that all possible assistance would be given to our side. We have been told not to worry if we could not deliver goods to them promptly, and that if necessary they would close their stores in order to support us."

"We are very grateful for these assurances and feel confident every fair-minded and fair-minded every fair-minded man will do all in his power to help us win this battle against those who wish to be our masters."

"I don't feel that I can say much at present," said Secretary Smith of the Teamsters' union last night, "for the case is now out of our hands and it is up to the associated unions as to what we shall do."

"I hoped yesterday that a settlement would be made, and had it not been for the Jobbers' association it is almost cer-
