HEARD AROUND THE CORRIDORS BY THE EAVESDROPPER

ALMOST INVISIBLE SCAR SPOILS MATRIMONIAL CHANCES Guests at the Angelus hotel and men about town who have met George Marshall, a Canadian who travels for a Chicago firm and drops in Los Angeles every little while, are speculating as to the valuation which the said Mr. Marshall would place upon his person. Mr. Marshall is at the present time suing the Southern Pacific Railway company for $5000 for injuries received while riding upon one of the trains of that company.

One of his claims for damages is $1000 based upon a small scar on the little finger of his left hand. The scar, one that would hardly be noticed unless the owner deliberately called attention to it, but Mr. Marshall declares, and in all seriousness, too, that it would harm his chances for getting a wife. He is a widower who admits being the father to six children and his wife has been dead about a year and a half. He frankly and without a blush declares he is looking for another wife and says that the scar would injure his chances of finding her.

Women don't like men with blemishes, says Mr. Marshall, and he evidently thinks $1000 would be a good inducement to rid a woman in overlooking this little defect.

He also says that one of the reasons it is so important that his hands be beautiful is because he plays the piano and he feels quite confident that the scar is always in evidence when he is seated at the instrument.

SENIOR CLASS IN DENTISTRY GIVES BANQUET AT ANGELUS Members of the senior class of the dental department of the University of Southern California had a banquet at the Angelus hotel last night. Covers were laid for forty at a large table in the banquet room, which was beautifully decorated in the class colors. Charles E. Rice was toastmaster and Eugene E. Osenburg class valedictorian. Grad was repeated by Rev. E. A. Healy of the University Methodist church and the toast to the graduating class was given by Ray D. Johnson. James R. Ross made the response for the class and "Our Growth and Your Growth" was the subject of a toast by Lewis E. Ford.

Hayward Cashier Going J. Y. Bedell, cashier and room clerk at the Hayward, will leave Saturday night for Galveston, Texas, where he goes to take charge of the Tremont hotel. He was formerly manager of that house and left it to take a position on the staff of the Majestic in San Francisco. His wife and a very beautiful little daughter, Bernice, who have made many friends in Los Angeles, will remain here during the summer.

Personal Mention J. B. Blackman, a wealthy mining man of New York, who has been in Mexico looking at some properties, and William J. Heney and his sister, Miss M. C. Heney of Magdalena Bay, Mexico, are at the Westminster. Mr. Heney is associated in mining interests with the New Yorker.
