back of the San Diego boat, but seemed to be holding her position.

About fifteen miles out from the breaker The Herald dispatch boat, which had run away from the rest of the fleet, overhauled the Lurline.

"Any message to Los Angeles and Honolulu people? Yes, have The Herald tell Los Angeles people we are going to win the cup. The Los Angeles boat and crew will bring home the blue ribbon. As for Honolulu, tell my friends there I will be on the schedule; put the kettle on the fire and go and take a look for the Lurline. I'll keep my dinner engagement."

The skipper looked forward and glanced aloft and smiled with confidence and satisfaction. The handicap is a big one, but the weather will tell the tale.

Alongside the Gwendolyn II, Captain Dean B. Johnson gave the whistle to Navigator Joe Redfern and came to the rail.

Thanks South Coast Club

"Thank South coast yachtsmen, San Pedro people and all Los Angeles for the way they have treated and entertained us. Send a message to our people at Seattle. Just tell them we're here," said the captain, while the crew looked at the wide stretch of water between the Seattle yawl and the Hawaii and the pride of San Diego and laughed heartily.

"We're here because we're here, and that's because we can beat them all if they will train down to our weight. The Lurline is climbing some, but she is not losing us an inch under the handicap. Tell Seattle folks we have high hopes of winning the race. Elliott Bay Yacht club men should see us putting it over Honolulu and San Diego. We may do that to Los Angeles, too. Our love to the folks at home."

NECKLACE, LOST TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS, RETURNED

Dying Woman Made Her Friend Promise Faithfully That It Should Be Given to the Rightful Owner

NEW YORK, July 4.—Mrs. Antone Fuerst of Waverly avenue and Kipp street, Newark, displayed yesterday to her friends a necklace and cross of gold and related the story of a romantic restoration of the trinket after it had been lost to her for twenty-seven years.

One day last week a woman called upon a daughter-in-law of Mrs. Fuerst and asked her if she remembered losing a necklace and cross many years ago. The younger Mrs. Fuerst said she remembered that her husband's mother had sustained such a loss.

The stranger produced the necklace and asked that it be restored to its owner. She then told Mrs. Fuerst that a friend had given her the necklace and cross ten years ago. The friend, she said, was on her deathbed at the time. Her promise to restore the trinket made to the dying woman was not kept, the stranger said, only because she had been unable to find the owner.

Recently while at the grave of the woman who had enjoined her to restore it the stranger recalled the promise. She entered into a conversation with a gravedigger and mentioned the name of Mrs. Fuerst. The gravedigger knew a family of that name and through the information he gave the rightful owner was found.

The elder Mrs. Fuerst identified her property. She recalled that she lost it in 1811. She had advertised for its return and it is believed that it was through seeing the advertisement that the finder learned who the owner was.

GROW WILD OVER FIREWORKS BUT THEY DON'T KNOW WHY

BY HOWE WILLIAMS

That the observation of the Fourth of July, with its yearly slaughter, has ceased to be an act of patriotism and has become a national habit without significance of meaning to many is a conclusion often expressed.

The celebration of the Fourth yesterday in Los Angeles was simply an excuse for the discharge of firearms contrary to city ordinance and for the careless handling by children of gun powder and other explosives with the natural result that the hospitals were taxed to their capacity to care for those who received burns, gunshot wounds and the peculiarly dangerous wound inflicted by the toy pistol. How many cases of lockjaw or tetanus the aftermath of every Fourth of July will develop and how many of these will prove fatal and the victims be sacrificed in the name of "patriotism" will not be known for some time. The germ of tetanus requires about nine days for its development.

In an effort to determine whether this annual sacrifice to the memory of 1776 is excusable a Herald reporter went from one quarter of the city to another yesterday. Wherever he found men, boys or girls discharging fireworks he stopped to question them.

Of the forty-seven men and boys and five girls who were questioned only twelve appeared to understand the real significance of the day they were celebrating. Two of these were little girls. The other six spoke vaguely of the "Declaration of Independence."

Another very noticeable feature is that the celebration of the "glorious Fourth" is chiefly conducted by the foreign born.

There were more fireworks to be seen in Chinatown and in the neighborhood of the Plaza than in the residential districts inhabited by the American born.

In the poorer quarters of the town, inhabited largely by the foreign element, the consumption of fireworks of all descriptions was greater than in those sections of the city occupied by the dwellings of the well to do. In general, the most powder was burned by those who were more or less ignorant of the cause of it all and who could least afford it.

There is no doubt that the setting off of fireworks in a great many cases was a true expression of patriotic feeling and pride of ancestry. These cases represent but a small percentage of the whole. The deadly toy pistol, the home-made cannon, the revolver and giant firecrackers were invariably to be found in the hands of those who possess about as much knowledge of the reason for the celebration as they do of hieroglyphics on an obelisk.

Many of the answers received by the reporter were ludicrous; some witty, while most of them betray extreme ignorance of the greatest event in the history of this republic.

"What is the celebration about?" was asked of a Chinese merchant who was setting off crackers in front of his store.

"Fourth of July. Alle same Chinese New Years. Evelybody set off crackers—make helly big noise. Want to buy some?"

BABY ALLIGATOR IN A "MERRY WIDOW" HAT

Reptile Found in a Taxicab Is Now at the Hotel Astor, New York, Awaiting Owner—Loses Master

NEW YORK, July 4.—Fashionably attired in a white muslin dress decorated with pink ribbons and wearing one of those Merry Widow hats, only not quite so large, the cutest alligator ever seen is stopping at the Hotel Astor.

He—or she—came there inadvertently yesterday through the negligence of his—or her—master, and probably by this time the latter is suffering agonies of anxiety over the loss of his dear little pet. If he looks in the Herald this morning, however, he will be relieved, for there is an advertisement announcing the finding of the cunning darling and he can recover it if he goes after it.

It was after carrying a passenger from the hotel to the Grand Central station that the driver of one of the green taxicabs found a white pasteboard box about two feet long on one of the seats of the vehicle. The chauffeur took the liberty of opening the box and nearly fainted when the doll baby alligator popped out. He promptly turned it over to the authorities of the Astor and the following advertisement was sent to the Herald:

FOU-D—Live alligator, dressed in doll's clothes, in a green taximeter cab, L. K. Clark, superintendent of the NEW YORK TRANSPORTATION COMPANY, Forty-ninth street and Eighth avenue.

L. K. Clark, superintendent of the New York Transportation company, who has charge of the "taxies" at the Astor, constituted himself guardian of the alligator, pending the finding of the owner, and said he would keep the creature until it was called for.

English a Puzzling Language

A Frenchman in conversation with a friend said: "I am going to leave my hotel. I paid my bill yesterday and asked the landlord: 'Do I owe you anything?' He said: 'You are square.' 'That's strange,' said I. 'I have lived long and never knew I was square before.' Then, as I was going away, he shook my hand, saying: 'I hope you'll be round again soon.' I said: 'I thought you said I was square.' He laughed and replied: 'When I said I hoped you'd be round again soon, I meant I hoped you wouldn't be long.' English is a difficult language."—New York Times.

POLICEMAN SAVES TOTS AT RISK OF HIS LIFE

Snatches Them from Tracks as Train Whizzes Past—Children Had Been Thrown by Run-away Horse

CHICAGO, July 4.—Lucille Beggs, 6 years old, and her 4-year-old brother, Gilbert, miraculously were saved from death under the wheels of a Northwestern elevated train at the Bryn Mawr avenue crossing after they had been hurled from a buggy to the center of the tracks.

An instant before a train with brakes grinding had rolled past. Mounted Policeman John W. Balk of the Summerdale station dashed up, leaped down from his saddle, caught the stunned children by the clothing and lifting them both to his horse carried them to safety. They were taken to their home, 2474 Lakewood avenue. Lucille was slightly cut and bruised, but Gilbert was unhurt.

The children had been left in the buggy for a moment while their father, Joseph Beggs, stepped into a store at Bryn Mawr and Evanston avenues. The horse became frightened and ran, going east in Bryn Mawr avenue toward the Northwestern tracks.

"At the crossing of the tracks the gages had been lowered for the approaching train, but the horse crashed through. The buggy was overturned and the children were thrown to the tracks. The horse, continuing its run, broke through the gate on the opposite side of the crossing.
