Prices $123 Upward—Cash or Terms

I came to Los Angeles with the firm intention of going into the piano business. I found conditions unfavorable and I could not secure a good lease. But my stock is here and must be disposed of—100 new and second-hand instruments, grands and uprights, shipped by me from the east. I am not going to ship back a single piano from this lot. I have decided to hold a thirty-day sale—what instruments are left after this time will be disposed of to local dealers or to some warehouse.

LINEAL DESCENDANT OF POCAHONTAS NOW VISITING THIS CITY

Is One of Three Bearers of the Powhatan Name and is Manager of Tobacco Company in New York

"It seems to be a popular superstition among those who have grown old enough to forget their high school history that Capt. John Smith married Pocahontas," said Powhatan G. Gordon, a lineal descendant of Pocahontas, who arrived at the Alexandria yesterday on a business trip.

"It would have been very courteous of him to marry the lady after she went to all the trouble of preventing her father, Powhatan, from chopping off Smith's head, but he did not do it. However, he showed his appreciation by taking the girl to England, introducing her at court to a future husband for her in the person of Sir John Rolfe. They had one child, a girl, who returned to Virginia and married one of the Randolphs, an ancestor of John Randolph. There are many descendants of this pair, but there are only three Powhatans in this country. The name has descended from father to son in our family, and am seventh in line from Pocahontas."

Mr. Gordon, who shows plainly in his features his Indian lineage, is the manager of the Seldenberg tobacco company of New York. He is accompanied by J. M. Connolly, who will be the Pacific coast representative of the company and will be stationed at San Francisco. Mr. Gordon, who has been in most of the large cities of the country in the past few months, spoke of the great revival of business.

"We are simply wallowing in prosperity," he said, "and there are only a few old mossbacks who continue to cry hard times. All aggressive and awake men are doing business. Passenger traffic on the roads is phenomenal, and one must view ahead to secure a berth. All other industries, with the possible exception of mining, are doing volumes of business. Very few mines are worked steadily at any time, so they are likely to be reworked soon."

"In my opinion Los Angeles is the best retail business town in the country. For a town of its size the amount of business done is remarkable. The easterner sit up and scratch his head."

Mr. Gordon and Mr. Connolly are staying at the Alexandria hotel.

RIVAL DEVILS TO BE SEEN ON BURBANK AND BELASCO STAGES

DEVILGRAMS SOON TO BE HEARD ON RIVAL STAGES

A wife is like a monocle—without it the eyesight is clearer. There is only one true woman—the other fellow's wife. When the tigress has already swallowed her man the other man has nothing to fear from her.

What men call a code of ethics was devised by the strong in order that they might rule the weak.

People who are content to be poor stay poor. The rich have arranged all that.

He who spurns the good things of life has not lived.

What we lose we run after. Such is man.

Life is a treasure only when you spend it freely.

Consider how stupid it would be if every one told the truth. There'd be no conversation.

THERE'S the Devil to play.
Last Monday Manager Oliver Morosco of the Burbank theater announced an early production of the sensational successful drama.

Yesterday Manager Frederick Belasco of the Belasco theater made a similar announcement.

It then developed that both managers plan to present the play next week. Thus the Burbank devil will strut the stage of that theater beginning next Sunday afternoon, while the Belasco devil will make his first appearance the following night.

At the Belasco Harry Glazier will impersonate his Satanic majesty. At the Burbank A. Byron Beasley will act devilish.

Thus Los Angeles is to witness a localized version of the theatrical war now raging in New York city, where rival versions of this same play are being presented at rival theaters under rival managements.

In the east the rival devils are George Arliss and Edwin Stevens, promoted respectively by Harrison Grey Fiske and Henry W. Savage. Each of these eastern managers claims that his version of the play is the only one authorized by Ferenc Molnar, the playwright. Both admit that the drama is not and cannot be copyrighted in this country, since its author is a Hungarian and there exists no copyright agreement between the United States and Hungary.

In Los Angeles Manager Morosco made his announcement first, though Manager Belasco declares that he had wired east for the script of the play before he knew of Morosco's intentions and in verification of his statement produces a letter, dated at San Francisco, August 25 (last Tuesday), apprising Capt. A. C. Jones, his partner in the management of the Belasco theater, of his action.

Except as they bear upon the recently re-established entente cordiale between the Belasco and Burbank managements, however, these details are unimportant. There is no legal obstacle in the way of simultaneous production at both houses.

The Burbank Statement

In reply to the Belasco statement Manager Morosco said:

"I knew, of course, when I secured 'The Devil' for presentation at the Burbank theater that I had not bought protection against its presentation at another house. Recently, however, Frederick Belasco and myself had a talk in which we discussed and, in a measure, adjusted our past differences. We agreed to let bygones be bygones. There was to be no stealing of actors in the future. The man who first announced the production of an uncopyrighted play was to have a clear field. In other words, we were to continue as competitive managers, but on a friendly basis."

The Belasco Statement

In a statement issued from the Belasco office yesterday afternoon Frederick Belasco said:

"The play was written by Ferenc Molnar, a Hungarian, and I decided that it would be a great thing for America. He at once made personal arrangements with the author to produce the play in this country, and is the only one producing it that has such authority. The adaptation in English was made by Alexander Konta and William T. Lawrence, and they were careful to preserve in it all the wonderful satire and subtlety that marked the original so successful."

"As to the controversy, Mr. Fiske expected it. Mr. Savage had secured the original and had a translation made of his own."

"When I saw by the papers that anybody could produce the play, I telegraphed at once to New York and got immediate shipment. Then I wired to Capt. Jones, my partner in the management of the Belasco, that we would produce the play, but the trouble was to announce the date, hoping that our new leading man, Mr. Van Buren, would be here in time to open in it. I even went to the trouble to telegraph Mr. Buren to go to both of the New York productions and study the part so that he could give it the best interpretation."

"After I reached here today and saw that Mr. Morosco was announcing the play I determined to put it on at the first opportunity, and we shall open in September. We have a man in the Belasco company who is splendidly fitted for the part. I mean Harry Glazier, Mr. Glazier is of the same physical build as Mr. Arliss, who is playing it in New York, and bears some facial resemblance to him. I am sure that the production will be one that will please Los Angeles."

The simultaneous productions at this theater and at the Burbank will, of course, lead to rivalry, but it will be good-natured rivalry. Both Mr. Morosco and myself have an undoubted right to present this great play at any time we may see fit."

WORK ON LAGUNA DAM NEARS END

EXPECTED TO BE FINISHED MARCH 31

Will Divert Waters of Colorado River to 100,000 Acres of Valley and 25,000 Acres of Mesa Land

That the great Laguna dam, situated twelve miles north of Yuma, which will divert the waters of the Colorado river to 100,000 acres of valley land and 25,000 acres of mesa, much of which will be open for settlers, will be finished March 31 is the statement made by Capt. J. D. Fauntleroy, superintendent of construction for the Arizona side of the dam.

The land is situated in the valleys of the Colorado and Gila rivers, and with water on it will be very productive. While most of the land is on the Arizona side, there are some 12,000 acres which at present are a part of the Yuma Indian reservation. This land, in all probability, the government will turn over to settlers when the time comes. Much of the Arizona land is already taken up, but there are large tracts which have not yet been reserved.

COYOTE CAUGHT BY PASADENAN WITHIN POSTOFFICE LOBBY

Man Chases Animal on Bicycle Until Thoroughly Exhausted, It Takes Refuge in Federal Building and is Lassoed

Special to The Herald.
PASADENA, Aug. 29.—After having run into the lobby of the postoffice early this morning a young wild coyote was lassoed by W. J. Loudencos, whose place of business is opposite.

Patrolman O'Dell first saw the animal near the Santa Fe tracks. When it turned west it was chased by a man on a bicycle. The coyote was evidently exhausted, and was barely able to get into the postoffice ahead of its pursuer, who immediately closed the doors and telephoned for the police, thinking the animal had escaped from the park.

Loudencos then came over and caught the coyote, dragging it to his shop across the street. No missing coyote has been heard of lately, and the police feel certain that it is a wild one which became confused in the city.
