'BROWN OF HARVARD' GOOD COLLEGE PLAY

MISS VIRGINIA KLINE GIVES PROOF OF ABILITY

Play is Happy Mixture of Comedy, Action and Character Plot.
Mr. Van Buren at His Best

ONE of the best of the scenic effects of "Brown of Harvard" is George Webb's hat. Mr. Webb takes the part of "Happy" Thurston, and has an impassioned, beribboned top-piece that almost monopolizes the second act. Several plays could be written around the hat, in fact a relay race could be run around it. Mr. Van Buren, Tom Brown, the leading juvenile, hovers around the outskirts of the hat during most of the act, as a rank outsider. With the removal of the lid and incidentally of Mr. Thurston, his chances with the girl improve. Her stage presence is winning and her voice distinct and well modulated. She is a pretty woman with an abundance of temperament and mobility and charm of expression. She wins her audience first hand and keeps them with her during the evening. The part calls for a rather difficult mixture of moods, but she rose to the situation with admirable force, her comedy being excellent and her dramatic periods strong.

Mr. Van Buren was at his very best in the play. He was bright and wholesome in the comedy lines, impressive in the more tragic, and manly where the situations demanded. He has not been seen to better advantage this season, unless it be in "Tom Moore," where he made a great hit. The cast last night contained also Miss May Ridgeway, the young society favorite who has elected the stage as a profession. She was very good indeed in a small part and received encouragement from many friends in the audience. The play is along in interesting fashion. Miss Smythe, Mr. Glazier, Charles Ruggles and Ben Graham were all in most excellent fettle and kept the play going with the usual Belasco swing. To that most reliable of actors, Richard Vivian, belongs a special word of praise for his fine comedy. Any man who can get away with six cream puffs at one sitting deserves special commendation, and Vivian did it in a fashion to keep his audience in a perfect scream of laughter. A picture is presented of the highest class operatic music will open the evening, the band to consist of seventy-five players under the baton of A. F. Frankenstein, leader of the

Talented Leader Who Will Direct Al Malaikah Shrine Band Concert

A. F. FRANKENSTEIN

NOT the least among the attractions provided for Thanksgiving eve is the concert and ball of the Shrine band, which will be given tonight in Shrine auditorium, Wesley and Jefferson streets. This function is under the special auspices of Al Malaikah shrine, and its members will be out in force. Besides a long list of society women have consented to act as its patronesses and the affair will have the cachet of the ultra select.

A concert of considerable length of the highest class operatic music will open the evening, the band to consist of seventy-five players under the baton of A. F. Frankenstein, leader of the Orpheum orchestra. Following this will come the dance program, of equally high class music, which one may enjoy merely as a concert if preferred, as seats have been reserved for that purpose. There are eighteen dance numbers and only the choicest of music will be given for them, in the matchless fashion of the Shrine band.

Invitations have been extensively issued for the affair, but if anyone desires more of them for Shriners, visitors or friends they may be secured at Wuerker's in the Orpheum theater building.

The concert will begin at 8:15 and carriages should be ordered for 8:30.

ANDREW CARNEGIE WILL NOT APPEAR BEFORE COMMITTEE

Declares He Gave His Views on the Tariff in Letter, but Refuses to Tell What He Wrote

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Andrew Carnegie apparently will not appear tomorrow at the hearing in Washington before the ways and means committee on the iron and steel schedules on the tariff.

He said this afternoon he had replied by mail to the committee's invitation to go to Washington and give it the benefit of his new tariff views; but, while he was willing to give out this information, he refused to disclose the nature of his reply, saying he thought such action on his part would be discourteous to the committee.

If the letter carried a refusal to attend the hearings the decision could not have been due to the state of Mr. Carnegie's health, for his secretary said for him that he had completely recovered from the indisposition which prevented his keeping an engagement in Baltimore last night.

"Clansman" will make its first visit to the Mason opera house the week beginning Monday, November 30. On the Pacific coast the play has duplicated its success in New York, Chicago and its own stamping ground of the south, where the scene of the story is laid. Thomas Dixon, Jr., combined the chief incidents of his novels, "The Leopard's Spots" and "The Clansman," into the play, the basis of which is historical fact. A picture is presented of the south directly after the Civil War when the Ku Klux Klan and the carpet-baggers struggled for the mastery. The newly enfranchised negro was a disreputable factor; herein both the good and evil types are portrayed. The love interest centers in the leader of the clan and his northern sweetheart.

The plot grows out of a condition of too much mother-in-law. The wife is impersonated by Olga Stech, the unfortunate young married man by Millar Bacon, and the busy mother-in-law by Marie Barber. Lillian Sutherland is a young widow, in love with the doctor. The complexities unravel at the happy ending. The following musical selections are given: "Doll Baby," by Olga Stech; "I Wish I Had a Girl," by Millar Bacon; negro specialty, "Linda," by Lillian Sutherland; "I Wanted to Be an Equestrienne," by Marie Barber; and "Just songs," by Harry Wardell. Among the chorus numbers are "The Maid."

"THE DOCTOR" DELIGHTS AUDIENCE AT UNIQUE

"The Doctor," an adaptation by James Lee is proving a strong attraction at the Unique this week. The play is full of good comedy and laughable situations.
