

NEW YEAR OPENS WITH TEACHERS' FRIENDS MANY

ALL EAGER TO WIN TRIPS TO SEATTLE EXPOSITION

ALASKA'S RESOURCES WILL BE SHOWN AT BIG FAIR

Surprise in Growth of Churches and Schools Shown—Indian Basketry and Other Work to Be on View

With a race for all contestants yesterday the race for the winning coupons will be resumed today in The Herald's trip to Seattle exposition contest.

Not much effort is needed to get 1000 for a favorable result. Only a year's subscription in advance. Of the thousands of persons who take newspapers all the year around and year after year little more than 1000 need be used to induce them to pay up in advance and thus throw a big bunch of credits to one of the contestants.

Much of the interest at the big show centers in the Alaska exhibits. Alaska has as many churches and school houses, according to population, as any section of the United States.

Churches and Schools Pictures and maps showing every school house and church in Alaska will be shown in the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. The attendance at both schools and churches will be shown and the course of study at the schools.

The churches will be divided in the same manner, the missions being made a special feature. Every known religious denomination has churches in Alaska.

Six reindeer used in connection with the schools will be exhibited in this department. Reindeer heads, record specimens, six of them worth $20.00, will be used as the decorative feature of the schools and church room.

In this department daily lectures will be given on Alaska. A number of lecturers have been secured to carry on this work during the entire time of the exposition, and two illustrated lectures will be given each day.

Alaskan Handiwork Carving ivory, in all the curious styles known to the natives of Alaska, basket work and articles of native art, including the famous Thlingit collection after which the northern curios are made will be fully shown.

One collection of baskets that has been secured at $15,000 and consists of 1800 pieces. This is known as the famous Thlingit collection after which the northern curios are made will be fully shown.

CHARITY WOOD YARD SOON TO BE OPENED WORK WILL BE GIVEN ALL WHO APPLY

Those Who Show Themselves Willing and Capable Will Be Recommended by Free Employment Bureau

The woodyard for employment of needy men, which will be under the auspices of the charity conference and the immediate supervision of Rev. T. C. Marshall, Episcopal city missionary, is expected to be opened Monday at the corner of Ninth and Wilson streets, adjoining the Neighborhood settlement.

A carload of wood for twelve men, expected for this work, but has been delayed in shipment, and local supplies will be secured in sufficient quantities to keep the men busy until the carload is received, which is expected in about a week.

A storeroom has been rented where coats will be stored for twelve men. Arrangements have been made for meals at a nearby restaurant, the plan being to put able-bodied needy men at work, and those who successfully pass the tryout will be recommended for employment by the free employment bureau which will be run in connection with the woodyard.

Each man will be credited according to the work he does and will be allowed to do work amounting to $3. While he is working he will be charged 15 cents a meal and 10 cents for a night's lodging, and all remaining over his meals and lodging will be credited to him either at the Bethlehem institution or at the Salvation Army, where he will be given lodging if employment is not secured before he leaves the woodyard.

Already Rev. Mr. Marshall has secured the promise of two large concerns to take all men who are recommended for employment. This plan will be tried as a solution for the unemployment problem, and it is expected to prove successful. Rev. Mr. Marshall will have general supervision, assisted by H. W. S. Edmunds, supervising the employment part, Charles Pollard in charge of the lodgings and Henry Gardner as foreman of the woodyard.

ENTHUSIASTIC HOUSE LISTENS TO "FAUST"

MARTINO SCORES TRIUMPH AS MEFISTOFELE

Ester Ferrabini Gives Most Sympathetic Rendering of Marguerite, and Noted Numbers Are Warmly Encored

"FAUST," Mason opera house, opera in five acts by G. Gounod. The beautiful "Salve, Dimora" was declaimed by the soprano, Ester Ferrabini.

Faust was the offering of the Lambari opera company at the Mason last night, and drew a somewhat smaller house than that which has greeted the previous productions. This doubtless was due to the numerous counter attractions peculiar to New Year's day, and noticeably to the fact that the city had largely emptied itself in attendance at the Pasadena Tournament of Roses.

The performance was a most excellent one, and met with a most appreciative audience, encores being numerous.

From the bill it was doubtful whether Ester Ferrabini would play the role of Marguerite, but, to the loud expressed delight of the house, she did so and gave a rendition that was most acceptable alike vocally and dramatically. Her portrayal of the character of Marguerite was throughout. The jewel song in the third act was given with great brilliancy and elicited long and deserved applause.

Gerardi Graziani made a romantic Faust, his appearance and general bearing being well suited to the part. The beautiful "Salve, Dimora" was declaimed with much feeling and considerable power, and brought a rapturous encore.

Angela scored another triumph as Valentine, his rendition of the cavatina, "Dio Possente," bringing what was perhaps the most emphatic encore of the evening.

The delicious "La Parlate d'Amor" of Siebel, sung by A. Glana, brought a round of applause, but not the encore which was expected for this, which is one of the recognized gems of opera.

In our judgment, however, the honors of the evening should be considered as having gone to Giovanni Martino as Mefistofele.

His vocalization is of the best, and he grasped with his great opportunity "Dio dell'or," which was given with perfect finish and intense dramatic power. The audience properly insisted on an encore, which was given apparently with much reluctance.

It goes without saying that the role of Mefistofele abounds in dramatic possibilities, and they were utilized by Gerardi Martino to the fullest from his first entry on the stage, his play-throughout being ingenious, persevering and kept within proper artistic bounds. The thinking from the cross in the duel scene with Valentine in the second act was an exceptionally powerful piece of acting, and was fittingly applauded by the audience as such.

"Lucia" constitutes the bill this evening, with Tamanti Zavaski in the title role, and Eugenio Battain as Edgardo.

While thousands of persons were hurrying on pleasure bent, large numbers attended the New Year's services held in the Cathedral and Episcopal churches and all day the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. buildings were thronged with happy visitors at the open house reception held by these two associations.

From early in the morning until nearly noon services were held by the two names, and the most elaborate services in the larger parishes. Special decorations had been arranged in honor of the advent of the new year, and the services were given with the profusion of beautiful flowers.

General invitations to the friends of the associations had been sent out and hundreds availed themselves of visiting the new buildings, it being the first New Year's day in each association building.

The buildings were open from basements to roof gardens, and elaborate programs were rendered. At the Y. W. C. A. the officers, secretaries and representatives from the seven clubs acted as a receiving committee. The services were presided over by Miss Norma Beauchamp, Mrs. Helen Mead Little and Miss Eunice Wuerz, together with the association orchestra. Music was rendered during the services. Last evening Miss Elizabeth Yoder read "The Lost Word" in the main auditorium.

The Young Women's association the reception opened at 11 o'clock and continued until midnight. Refreshments were served from a booth on the first mezzanine floor, presided over by the following young women: Misses Eva Kerns, Nell Hightower, Rita Russell, M. C. Gould, Katherine C. Potter, Louise McDannell and Ross Hewitson.

Money for Sufferers Many liberal donations of money for the earthquake sufferers were received at the office of the International Savings Bank, 222 North Spring street. To the present time almost $3000 has been raised.

Luigi Dell'Orto, Italian consular agent here, has decided the quickest way to get the money to the refugees will be to send it direct to Rome. This plan will be followed instead of sending the money to San Francisco, as was first intended.

Bishop Conaty was among the first to respond to the call for funds for the earthquake sufferers. He has sent a check for $100 yesterday. The produce exchange subscribed $300 and the International Savings bank sent a check for $150.

There were many subscriptions of small amounts, and a number of checks for sums ranging from $1 to $20. The following are some of the subscribers: A. Fusetto, $100; German-American Savings bank, $75; Merchants National Bank, $50; International Savings Bank, $25; Central National Bank, $25; California Savings bank, $25; Merchants Bank and Trust company, $25; Bullock's, $20; Los Angeles-Pacific, $20; Greek colony, $24.25; H. Jevne & Co., $25, and M. Duran, $10.

Notwithstanding it is the holiday season, the response to the call for money and Messrs. Orsatti and Dell'Orto, who have given their entire time to the work of raising the relief fund in the last several days, have been repaid for their tireless endeavors by the more than realization of their expectations.

A special memorial service in remembrance of the thousands that have perished in the Italian horrors, with prayers for the relief and comfort of the survivors, will be held at the B'nai B'rith hall, 521 West Pico street, tomorrow evening at 7:15 o'clock. The services will be conducted by Rabbi Isidor Myers, who will preach a sermon and will also recite Mr. McGroarty's beautiful poem, "Sicily."

TENDERS CHECK TO BUY SALOON

PAPER SUSPECTED: ARRESTED FOR DRUNKENNESS

HELD TO EXPLAIN BANKING BUSINESS

Former Operations That Were Mysteriously Righted Cause Police to Investigate Record of Prisoner

After passing checks ranging in amount from $500 to $5 which are regarded with suspicion by their holders and the police, J. C. Sandstrom, who came here recently from Portland, Ore., is under arrest, but only on a charge of drunkenness.

On this charge placed against him by Detectives Hawley and McKenzie he will be held until his check operations can be investigated to learn whether they are criminal.

Sandstrom was arrested in Los Angeles on December 10, charged with passing fictitious checks. The arrest was made by Patrolman Rosso, but before any action was taken in the district the check deals were closed up in some mysterious manner and Sandstrom got off with a sentence of ten days in jail on a charge of drunkenness.

Yesterday he was arrested after he had purchased a suit of clothes from Henry Cline, for which he gave a check for $23 drawn on the First National Bank of Los Angeles and had also purchased the saloon of F. L. Johnson at 213 North Main street for $15,000, paying down a check drawn on the National Bank of Portland for $2000. The balance to be forthcoming when the papers of transfer had been signed up.

Sandstrom had been in the process of buying the Johnson saloon for several days. He is said to have been the most liberal customer the place had ever known. The saloon had been wired for information. In the meantime a score or more of small checks came to light and it was thought best to lock Sandstrom up until his banking business was explained. He was booked on a charge of drunkenness.

MOVEMENT OF ORANGES AT RIVERSIDE IMPROVES

Fifty-three cars of oranges were shipped out of Riverside last week as compared to fifty cars moved out the same week a year ago. The movement was inspired by the brisk demand of the eastern states for the fruit.

It is hardly probable that this week will be as heavy as the same week a year ago, when ninety-seven cars were shipped, although there seems to be a good demand for oranges. Growers seemed to be inclined to wait for a while, when the prices will be better.

Following is the movement from Riverside since the season started as compared to a year ago:

The crowd, both Miss Vernice Hess made a striking appearance as a herald in Florentine costume of yellow and white, her mount decorated in purple gauze trappings, with a saddlecloth of yellow chrysanthemums and pink roses.

Mrs. Ernest E. Washburn of South Pasadena and her two little daughters, following the parade, also attracted much attention with their genuine Shetland ponies and basket buggy. Pink was the color scheme, and the spirited little ponies realized that the occasion called for their best steps.

Mrs. W. G. Humason of South Pasadena, who has been a Mt. Wilson resident for some time, also attracted attention by her fine riding in the delegation from the mountain. Her husband and boy rode near her.

Miss L. K. Swigart looked natty in her white habit. Ferns, greenery and white ribbons were used decoratively. Mrs. H. W. Richmond of Seattle sat with Mrs. Walter Raymond in their fine saddle electric runabout, both robed in dainty white dresses and big picture hats. A large doll sat in the shell.

Miss Kathryn Shoemaker on her pony looked cute on her saddle blanket of pink and white roses. Miss Priscilla Evans used mountain ferns to decorate her horse, and white ribbons to heighten the effects.
