ACTOR'S WIFE CAUSES ARREST

MRS. BEASLEY ACCUSES LAD OF BURGLARY

RECOGNIZES MESSENGER BOY ON THE STREET

Prisoner Says He Purchased Goods from Stranger and Comments on Delay in Prosecuting Him

Mrs. A. Byron Beasley of 138 Benton Way, wife of the well known Burbank theater actor, has caused the arrest of R. W. Morrison, a messenger employed by the Western District company. She accuses him of being one of the men who robbed her home Thanksgiving night. She recognized, as she claims, the clothing the man was wearing as having been taken from her home. Morrison's arrest occurred at Fifth and Main streets, and was made by Patrolman K. H. Edwards yesterday afternoon.

While Mr. and Mrs. Beasley were dining with friends Thanksgiving night, burglars entered their home and ransacked it from cellar to garret. A pair of French pearl opera glasses, a heavy gold chain, several valuable stickpins, a serge suit, a shirt and a pair of corduroy trousers were stolen.

About ten days later, while Mrs. Beasley was alone the door bell rang. It was 8:30 o'clock at night, and she turned on the porch light and answered the bell.

"I was surprised to see a stranger standing there," said Mrs. Beasley, and more so when I noticed that he was wearing one of my husband's shirts. I asked him what he wanted, and he inquired if Mr. Andrews lived there. I told him I knew no one by that name and he asked me if the place was No. 138 Benton Way. I replied there was no such number on the street, and then began to question him about the shirt.

Her Husband's Shirt
"He appeared quite startled when I mentioned the fact that it was my husband's, and stammered that he had bought it at a local furnishing store.

"The suit had a familiar look, so I grasped the sleeve and saw that it was the blue serge suit that had been stolen from the house. I then accused him of wearing my husband's clothes and asked him where he obtained the suit. He said he had bought it. I began to talk to him about the call he had been sent on, so that I might have a good chance of giving a good description. Finally he left and walked slowly to the gate, mounted his bicycle and rode away.

"Since that time I have been on the watch for the man, and Christmas eve saw him on the street. I walked several blocks and found a policeman, but the officer would not leave his beat, and the man got away."

Mrs. Beasley was walking near Fifth and Main streets yesterday afternoon when she saw Morrison. She caught a policeman and told her story to Patrolman Edwards, who made the arrest. Mrs. Beasley went to the police station and told the facts of the case to Lieutenant Murray, and as Edwards was leaving the station, after having booked his prisoner on a charge of suspicion, he handed the patrolman for his efficient work.

Morrison denies having robbed the Beasley home. When seen at the city jail late yesterday afternoon he was willing to talk about the affair, and told a seemingly straightforward story.

"I bought the suit from a man whom I met in the alley near the office of the messenger company," he said. "My clothing was getting seedy, and when the stranger asked me if I wanted to buy a suit I told him I did. He then unwrapped a bundle and showed me this suit I have on. I paid him $8 for the suit.

Explained Long Ago
"I was riding along the street about the latter part of November when a man met me and led me to go to the home of Mr. Andrews at 130 Benton Way, as they wanted a messenger. I went out there and rang the bell at a house. Mr. Beasley appeared, and I asked her if that was the number. She then accused me of having on her husband's clothes. I explained to her where I obtained them. I was wearing my messenger cap at the time, and she could see where I worked. I also gave her my name and address, and if she wanted me she could have made inquiries before or could have caused the police to arrest me. I know nothing about the robbery and have never been in jail before."

Morrison is about 19 years old and came to Los Angeles about a year ago from a small town in Iowa, where he was attending high school. He says he was unable to continue his studies and came west to work. He has a mother living in Iowa.

PRESIDENTIAL VOTE PRIZES

ON SUNDAY, October 25, The Herald published a map of the United States, offering at the same time a prize of $20 to the person who would name the next president and give the best estimate of the total number of electoral votes he would receive; also a prize of $20 to the person giving the best estimate of the next president's plurality in the total popular vote of the United States, and a prize of $1 each to the person or persons giving the best estimate of the total popular vote, each state would give "the next president." The official count of both the electoral vote and the popular vote at the election held on November 3 shows that J. T. Johnson, South Main street, made the best estimate on both the electoral and the popular vote, and wins both the big prizes. Mr. Johnson's estimates were: Electoral votes for Taft 322, Mr. Taft's plurality 1,537,182. The official returns show: Electoral vote 326, plurality 1-238,494.

Charles E. Richardson, Court street, made the best estimate of the total popular vote the state of Ohio would give Mr. Taft, his estimate being 654,300, while the official returns show the vote to have been 572,312. Mr. Richardson made the only estimate of the popular vote of the states complying with the conditions of the contest, also giving his estimate with complete propriety filled out. If the two prize winners named above will call at The Herald office and furnish proper identification they will receive their prizes.

CASHIER TO RETURN IF PRESIDENT HELD

Former Official of Bank in Nevada Will Abide by Decision in Habeas Corpus Proceedings of Head of Concern
Samuel K. Williamson, former cashier of the Searchlight Bank and Trust company, and who is wanted in Nevada on a charge of illegal banking, will make no fight against extradition if Homer G. Taber, former president of the institution and jointly charged with Williamson, is unsuccessful in his efforts to defeat the officers from Nevada in their determination to bring him back for trial.

If the officers of Nevada, who hold a governor's warrant for both men are successful in having Taber turned over to them, Williamson has expressed his willingness to accompany them, and it is understood he will be the principal witness against the former bank president.

For this reason, and to await the outcome of Taber's efforts to secure his release at San Diego, the habeas corpus proceedings for the release of Williamson were continued by Judge Willis yesterday until Tuesday.

NEW LOCAL ORPHEUM HOUSE IS PLANNED

LOS ANGELES IS PROMISED BIG THEATER

Martin Beck, on Inspection Tour, Discusses Plans of Vaudeville Management—New Theater in Berlin

A new Orpheum theater will be built in Los Angeles. This announcement was made yesterday by Martin Beck, general manager of the Orpheum company. Mr. Beck is passing through Los Angeles on his annual tour of inspection with M. Meyerfeld, president of the company, E. J. Casey of the booking department and Mark A. Luescher, press representative.

The plans for the Los Angeles theater will be begun immediately upon the completion of the San Francisco house in April. The new playhouse will be a model theater, it is claimed, equal in its appointments to the best on the Orpheum circuit.

In speaking of his new enterprise Mr. Beck outlined a proposition, now in hand, to build a new Orpheum theater in Berlin. A site near the famous Unter den Linden has been secured and a theater to seat 3500 persons will be built.

The Berlin house will serve as a recruiting station for new Orpheum talent, more than one-half of which now in America is European. Mr. Beck has just concluded a trip through the northwest and has several new bees buzzing in his managerial bonnet. He is enthusiastic about the future of vaudeville in the west.
