

INCOME TAXS DELAYED UNTIL TARIFF SETTLED

SENATE CONSIDERS SEVERAL SUBJECTS ON DUTIES

NO FINAL DISPOSITION MADE OF ANY QUESTION

Measures at Close of Day's Arguments Remain in Same Position as When First Brought Up in Day

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, June 19.—The senate today covered a multitude of subjects in connection with the tariff, but made final disposition of nothing of importance.

The income and corporation tax questions received attention for some time and were postponed until after the tariff provisions proper finally shall be settled.

Senator Aldrich from the committee on finance brought in the committee's amendment to the wood pulp paragraph, which proved to be a provision for doubling the duty on wood pulp coming from countries which undertake to prohibit the exportation of logs to this country.

Senator Beveridge presented an amendment for the putting in two of the house ad valorem duty on cash registers. Mr. Aldrich also presented the finance committee's hide provision.

All these measures were left at the close of the day where they stood at the beginning. The wood pulp amendment was recognized as an effort to retaliate on Canada because of the country's efforts to prevent the shipment of raw logs to the United States, and senators generally desired an opportunity to study the subject before voting on it.

Wishes to Give Company a Chance Senator Burton made objections to entering on the final consideration of the cash register question without giving the National Cash Register company, whose headquarters are in Ohio, an opportunity to be heard.

The income tax question went over because of the difficulty of getting Republican senators to consider it until the tariff should be disposed of by the senate.

Mr. Bailey, who has held out for a vote before completion of the work on the schedule, at last conceded the postponement of the senate session today when it came up a vote will be permitted on the direct question and not forced upon a motion to refer the question to a committee.

The hide amendment failed of final consideration for lack of time. It was still under immediate consideration when the senate adjourned.

The committee's amendment takes hides from the free list and imposes an ad valorem duty of 15 per cent, which is the Dingley law.

BAILEY DECLARES HIS WILLINGNESS TO HOLD BACK INCOME MEASURE

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Senator Bailey, speaking for himself and most of the democratic and republican income tax advocates, announced at the opening of the senate session today that he would consent to postpone the disposal of the income tax question until after the tariff schedules were disposed of. It became apparent at once that the compromise would be made, but there was, nevertheless, some debate before a definite conclusion was reached.

After debate had proceeded for half an hour a resolution postponing the subject was submitted by Mr. Bailey and agreed to. The formal presentation of the matter was made by Mr. Aldrich and took the form of a unanimous consent agreement to defer the entire income tax and corporation tax questions until the schedules are out of the way.

At that time Mr. Bailey's amendment for an income tax and the committee's substitute for it will be taken up and kept before the senate until they have been disposed of.

Opposed to Income Tax Mr. Bailey again sought assurance that no motion would be made to refer the amendment to a committee, but was met with a prompt response from Senator Heyburn, who declared that he would not agree to such a proposition. Mr. Heyburn added that he was opposed to any income or corporation tax, "for to any other substitute," as a means of paying the expenses of the government.

Who Pays Manager's Salary?

Who Pays Manager's Salary? "It has been stated to the members of the home by the governor and the present local manager, ex-Governor Markham, that there was no salary attached to the office. The people of California would like to know who pays the expenses of the local manager, and officers who were educated in the rules and know their duties and their application to such homes, and who can bear the light of any investigation when it comes.

Charges from the East The following discussion of the National Soldiers' home problem taken from a Dayton, Ohio, newspaper was circulated at Sawtelle yesterday: "Evidence accumulates to show that the management of national soldiers' homes is a radical change. In the very nature of things, the veterans ought to be under military supervision, like their juniors now in active service. The war department is organized and officered to do this, and it is a military sense for such supervision. The present control is arbitrary, selfish, costly. It is wielded for the benefit of comparatively few persons and most of these have no interest in the old soldier except for his utility as a means of getting money out of the government. A single fact mentioned by Inspector General W. T. Wood in his recent report to the war department speaks volumes on this point. He stated that while the mattresses purchased by the government for use in the barracks of the regular army cost only $1.85 each, those bought by the board of managers of the military home cost $6.43. Even at that the latter are of inferior quality. It is evident from General Wood's report that he looks upon this instance as typical of the graft which is practiced at all the branches of the home and in all kinds of supplies.

Insists on Three Ribs Broken He further stated, as a reiteration of his former declaration, that there was no doubt in his mind nor of the other members of the medical staff as to what had happened to the ribs broken. He stated that had there been any doubt the coroner would certainly have been notified. Under the questioning of State Superintendent Hatch and President Clark he forcibly disputed the accuracy of the autopsy held at Los Angeles, and stated emphatically that there were three ribs broken when the body was examined at the hospital prior to shipment to Los Angeles. He stated emphatically that the brain showed numerous symptoms that the deceased was in the last stages of general paresis, a statement denied by the physicians attending the coroner's inquest at Los Angeles.

Testimony Corroborated Drs. Simpson and Jennings agreed in every detail with the testimony of Dr. Loizeaux, who performed the autopsy and who agreed with the statements of Acting Superintendent Wilson. Acting Supervisor Butler gave the same testimony which he gave at the previous inquest, as did Atkinson, general night-watcher and coroner at that time.

ing his statement." Acting Supervisor Butler, who discharged Berg, also came in for his share of the criticism for the manner in which the case was handled without any effort being made to learn what happened.

The board passed nothing over, and Dr. Wilson was again placed in an uncertain light when called on to explain why he signed the death certificate, omitting the fact that Grassmee had ribs broken, even though three of the physicians still swear under oath were the total number fractured. The doctor admitted that he was at fault for not including the injuries as a contributory cause of the death.

He was forced to face the question as to why he had not notified the coroner of the county at the time that Grassmee was found dead. Dr. Wilson stated that one of the motives which prompted him to neglect to call the coroner was that he knew the relatives of the dead man would not appreciate the publicity which would have followed the inquest. This is an explanation which until today he has never brought forth. There is little doubt, however, that the relatives of the dead patient would have welcomed an inquest over the remains of their terribly misused husband and brother.

Insists on Three Ribs Broken He further stated, as a reiteration of his former declaration, that there was no doubt in his mind nor of the other members of the medical staff as to what had happened to the ribs broken. He stated that had there been any doubt the coroner would certainly have been notified. Acting Supervisor Butler gave the same testimony which he gave at the previous inquest, as did Atkinson, general night-watcher and coroner at that time.

Concluding the inquiry the board visited the ward in which Grassmee was killed. Dr. Hatch took exceptions to the statement that the conditions were so crowded that the attendants could not give proper care to the patients, and stated he believed that one attendant to each fifty patients, the ratio at the Patton hospital, was sufficient, and that in this respect the institution was better off than the other state hospitals.

When it was first published a few months ago Mrs. Glyn's daring novel created a furore both abroad and in the United States. Only a half dozen cities in America have, as yet, seen the play, but the drama has proved no less an incentive to discussion than the book. The love story of Sardinia's queen and Paul, the young Englishman; the famous tiger-skin rug, the almost barbaric setting in which the author presented her passion-tragedy—all these things created comment until the book became the most-talked-of publication of the year. So, too, the play bids fair to duplicate the vogue of the novel. It will be seen in the east next season, but here this week
