

ST. CROIX LIFE BOATS BEACHED GIFTS MADE J. U. HENRY FOR HEROIC WORK

CHARRED BITS OF DESTROYED STEAMER WASH ASHORE

Barrels of Hardtack, Fresh Water, Kerosene and Other Remnants at Secret Service Camp on Malibu Ranch

SANTA MONICA, Nov. 23.—The last sad evidences of the tragic ending of the North Pacific steamer, St. Croix off Point Dume last Saturday are to be found along the shores of the treacherous Malibu. They include boats, oars, ropes, buckets and other paraphernalia from the burned steamer, which were left at the emergency camp of the survivors near the western terminus of the Malibu railroad.

With the exception of one, which was beaten to pieces on the rocks off the Malibu, the life boats from the St. Croix are high and dry on the beach. The boats will later be picked up by the North Pacific company.

In recognition of the heroic and unceasing work of the crew of the St. Croix survivors performed by J. U. Henry, United States secret service agent, who was on the ground at the time of the landing of the stranded people, Captain Fred Warner has presented Henry with his own life boat. Chief Officer Frank Mills also gave Henry his boat. In addition to this the captain turned over a large wagonload of other articles, including barrels of hardtack, cans of kerosene and blankets, which Henry has placed in his single home on the Malibu. Henry said today that several barrels of fresh water were left at the camp by the survivors. This water had been brought from the ship.

One of the most valued souvenirs possessed by Henry is a double-ended boat hook, a personal gift from Captain Warner. Henry said that one end of the boat hook was badly scorched as Captain Warner, who was the last to abandon the St. Croix, pushed his boat from the ship.

JEWELS VALUED AT $10,000 ARE GOING BEGGING IN EAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Soon after Mrs. John C. Groves of Kansas City had sailed for Europe a bag containing more than $10,000 worth of jewels was found in the room she had occupied at the St. Regis hotel. Mrs. Groves was so informed by wireless, and she promptly instructed the St. Regis management to forward the jewels to a Mrs. Ferresh at the Vendome hotel, who was the last to see the jewels.

This was done, and a few days ago when the Vendome management informed the St. Regis that no one had called for the valuable package, the jewels were sent back to this city. The St. Regis is trying to find Mrs. Groves.

When The Stomach Stops Working Properly, Because There Is Wind In It, Use Stewart's Dyspepsia Tablets to Set It Going Again.

A Trial Box Free. THE DOCTORS call it flatulency, but unprofessional folks know it as "wind on the stomach," and a most distressing state of things it is. It is a sensation of fullness in the stomach, a feeling of oppression, always annoying and painful in the extreme, at times often leading to bad and fatal results. The stomach empty and unburdened, and hampered by gas, cannot take care of its food properly and indigestion follows, and this has a train too appalling to enumerate. The entire system is implicated—made an active or passive factor in this trouble and life soon becomes a questionable boon.

ALL THIS IS EXPLAINED in doctor books; how indigestion, food catarrhs, gas, and fermentation, and fomentation in which process some essential fluids are destroyed—burnt up—wasted by chemical action, followed by defective nutrition and the distribution through the alimentary tract of chemically wrong elements, and as a consequence the stomach and entire system are starved. Plenty of food, you see, but spoilt in preparation and worse than worthless.

A DERANGED STOMACH is the epitome of evil; nothing too bad to emanate from it, but the gas it generates is probably its worst primary effect, and the only way to do away with this is to remove the cause. STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS go to the root of this trouble. They attack the gas making foods and render them harmless. Flatulency or wind on the stomach simply cannot exist where these powerful and wonder-working little tablets are in evidence.

THEY WERE MADE for this very purpose—to attack gas-making foods and convert them into proper nutriment. This is their province and office. A whole book could be written about them and then not all told that might be told with profit to sufferers from this painful disease, dyspepsia. It would mention the years of patient and expensive experiment in effort to arrive at this result—of failures innumerable and at last success. It would make mention of the different stomach correctives that enter into this tablet and make it fully and properly all.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS are not alone intended for the sick, but who feels as well; for the person who walks heavy foods and wants to eat heartily and run no risk of bad effects, they act like a charm and make eating and digestion a delight and pleasure. They keep the stomach active and energetic and enable you to do your work without special labor or effort. Don't forget this. Well people are often neglected, but the STUART DYSPEPSIA TABLETS have them in mind.

Denies in Cunningham Alaska Claims Inquiry Says Evidence Shows Interference of Forestry Bureau with Land Office

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 23.—The government virtually concluded the examination of its witnesses in the Alaska coal land investigation today, and it is probable the Seattle sitting will be concluded tomorrow, when the special commissioner will adjourn the hearing to Spokane.

It now seems certain that L. R. Glavis, former chief of the field division of the general land office here, who was called as a witness by the government. Although he has been a constant attendant at the hearing, Mr. Glavis was called on by the government only to identify a letter written by him to J. M. Sheridan, the government attorney.

SEATTLE, Nov. 23.—William A. Langille, a forest supervisor, continued his testimony today in the land office inquiry into the validity of the Cunningham Alaska coal land claims, and told of his inspection of the claims last August, when he found prospect holes on most of the claims, but no real development work.

Mr. Langille's evidence was practically the same as that of Andrew Kennedy, the government coal expert. A letter from George H. Cecil, acting district forester at Portland, Ore., to F. E. Ames, a forestry bureau agent in Alaska, was introduced in evidence today. The letter, which attorneys for the defense says shows improper interference by the forestry bureau with land office business, follows:

"Dear Ames—There is considerable evidence the claimants in the above cases (Cunningham claims) are not only trying to get valuable coal lands fraudulently but are attempting to secure in addition to the coal claims timber lands. The county physician and the county chemist both examined the greswome contents of the letter and pronounced them human flesh. There is no way, they declare, that it can be told whether the flesh contains contagion until some animal is inoculated. This was done.

In the meantime Judge Toombs has reported the matter to the federal authorities for investigation, and a member of the city detective department has been assigned to work out the mystery. Judge Toombs is unaware of the existence of any enemies, unless they be some persons upon whom he has inflicted punishment in his official capacity.
