

SCORE ENEMIES OF CIVIC GOOD

OPPONENTS OF CLEAN GOVERNMENT CRITICISED

BAPTIST MINISTERS HEAR MUNICIPAL MATTERS DISCUSSED

Dr. James Whitcomb Brougher is given enthusiastic welcome by his fellow pastors of Los Angeles

Opponents to the present good government city administration who are said to be endeavoring to discredit the work of the city officials were criticised yesterday morning at the close of the meeting of the Baptist ministers of Los Angeles in a discussion on civic righteousness following the paper of the morning.

In connection with this a member from the floor mentioned the Times as one of the chief offenders in regard to the present city officials, and the attitude of the newspapers was spoken of briefly before the close of the meeting.

Much enthusiasm was manifested at the meeting when Dr. James Whitcomb Brougher, the new pastor of the Temple Baptist church, entered the hall after considerable routine business had received attention.

Dr. Brougher was introduced by the chairman, Rev. C. C. Pierce, and made a brief response.

Rev. Dr. J. B. Thomas, the secretary, read the following preamble and resolution sent from Dr. Brougher's former church in Portland:

"My Dear Dr. Thomas: I am sending you herewith a copy of the resolution unanimously adopted by our Ministerial association relative to Dr. Brougher's removal to your city. Our loss is your gain. You will find Dr. Brougher a royal brother. Yours very cordially,

"FRANK DE WITT FINDLEY. "Whereas, we hear with deep regret that our brother, Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, is to accept the call to the great Baptist temple at Los Angeles which will remove him from the work in our city, and at a time in which he is much needed in Oregon, especially because of the campaign to make Oregon dry, in which he could be such a tower of strength.

"Resolved, That we congratulate the church in Los Angeles on securing Dr. Brougher as their pastor, but that we are sorry to part with him in Portland, and realizing that throughout his six years' pastorate he has been fraternal with his brethren of all denominations, his ruling true and every reform and movement for civic righteousness and has been a leader among us not only on questions of public import, but in every other and all forward movements to make men better. Our interest and prayers will follow him to his distant field of labor and we desire that the same success that has attended him here may attend him there.

"Does the Church Meet the Needs of Modern Life?" is the subject of the paper read by Rev. F. B. Matthews of Redlands.

MURDERED GIRL KNOWN AS 'DUTCH'

MT. TAMALPAIS VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED

Manicurist, Who Partially Identified Corpse, Tells Detective Girl Lived in Defeat of Man

[Associated Press] SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 7.—What the police believe is at least a partial identification of the girl whose body was found on the side of Mt. Tamalpais last Thursday afternoon was this evening when Mrs. Cleon Littlefield, a manicurist, called at the Marin county morgue in San Rafael and said the clothing, jewels and teeth of the corpse were those of a young girl known as "Dutch," who had come from some city in the north and who had been a student in the Littlefield hair-dressing establishment about eight months ago.

Mrs. Littlefield knew nothing more about the girl except that she always expressed a fear of a man in whose company she was frequently seen and who she said had threatened her life.

The police here are now working diligently following this lead and are of the opinion that the murderer's victim was from Portland, where her jacket had been bought at the Spencer Brothers' store.

Mrs. Littlefield said to Detective Proff at San Rafael that the girl she refers to was about 23 years old, five feet four inches in height, rather flat chested, muscularly built and with large hands and feet. She had dark brown hair and a clear, beautiful complexion. It is believed she was German.

Description Tallies This description tallies in every detail with that of the girl whose body was found on Mt. Tamalpais.

According to Mrs. Littlefield, the girl came to this city by boat from the north. She had two woman companions. The girl began her course in instruction in hair-dressing and manicuring in the Littlefield parlors and worked steadily for two weeks. Then she disappeared twice, and finally returned to gather a few of her effects and a receipt or two. She was never seen again.

Several of the young women who worked for Mrs. Littlefield at the time remember having seen her at a local amusement park with the man she had said she feared, just prior to her disappearance. At that time she was rather gaudily dressed.

Although the girl had confided to her associates that the man in the case was cruel to her and that she believed harm would come from him, she stated at one time that he was her uncle and at another time that he was her brother.

To Mrs. Littlefield she told the story that the fellow had tried to induce her to enter an immoral house.

PINCHOT SCORES BALLINGER PLAN

SECRETARY'S PROPOSED LAWS DECLARED WEAK

ONE OR TWO OF BILLS FIND SOME FAVOR

Deposed Forester Makes Appeal to Conservation Association for Support to Get Better Protection

[Associated Press] WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—"Conservation, the necessity for the passage at the present session of congress of good laws for the protection of natural resources of the United States," is the keynote of a report just made to the National Conservation association by Gifford Pinchot, recently chosen president of the association.

Mr. Pinchot takes up in what he calls "a spirit of constructive criticism" nine bills relating to the conservation of natural resources introduced into congress January 18 on behalf of the secretary of the interior, one of which has been reported from the public lands committee, the other eight being still in the hands of the committee.

Mr. Pinchot calls on the members of the association to put forth strong efforts to have enacted into law the bill on the withdrawal of public lands which has been reported in amended form to the committee by Senator Nelson, following conferences between the committee and officers of the conservation association.

This bill, Mr. Pinchot thinks, should have the "unqualified support of the association."

Of the other eight bills he believes that some merely require amendment, while others must be recast.

The coal bill and the phosphate, oil, asphaltum and natural gas bill, he says, are fundamentally sound in principle, but need some amendment. They wisely separate, he said, the surface of the land from the underlying minerals and provide for the disposal of the minerals by lease and not by sale.

The coal bill, he asserts, "contains no sufficient anti-monopolistic clause. The clause that purposes to regulate rates to be charged the public as so framed that it may be evaded with ease."

Another Clause Another clause of the bill, he adds, "may reduce the standard of mining to the wasteful level of the prevailing commercial practices."

In regard to the bill for survey of railroad land grants, he expresses the opinion that it will enable the railroads properly to perfect titles to their lands, "but it overlooks the long pending understanding between certain of the roads and the forest service for the return of railroad lands within the national forests of the United States in return for the right to cut in one body an amount of timber equal to that on the lands returned."

This understanding, he says, requires only legislation to make it effective.

Speaking of the water power bill, Mr. Pinchot declared that "it repeats in silence the existing water power law and curtails the ready-made power now exercised, with the approval of a former attorney general, by the department of agriculture."

The provision in the bill for compensation to the government by the companies, he holds, is good.

Water power sites should be protected from private appropriation, he says, and it should be made possible to issue to the companies permits good for and definitely terminating at the end of fifty years.

A bill for the sale of timber and timber lands, he declares, is that it replaces the objectionable features in the timber and stone act, which was the inducement of speculation in government timber, with provisions that promote speculation and retard the development of agricultural and mineral lands far more than did the act it repeals.

In failing to separate the surface from the underlying minerals, the bill for the classification of public lands is inconsistent with the coal bill, he finds.

PRESIDENT ISSUES TARIFF PROCLAMATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The president today issued a proclamation under which the tariff act of August 5, 1909, in which he declares that from and after March 31, 1910, all articles imported into the United States or any of its possessions except the Philippine Islands and the island of Guam and Tutuila from Germany are entitled to be admitted at the minimum rates of duty prescribed by section 1 of the present tariff act.

The proclamation does not include the German colonial possessions, for the reason that the department of states has not had sufficient time to investigate the question as to whether such colonies unduly discriminate against importations of the United States.

Inasmuch as the minimum rates of the United States do not go into effect until March 31, next, ample time will be afforded to determine that question.

The proclamation is identical with that published some days ago with respect to Italy and several other countries.

BALLINE EXPLAINS PROPOSAL WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The proposal of John E. Ballaine of Seattle to lease Alaska coal lands and mine coal on the royalty basis was given consideration today by the senate committee on territories. Mr. Ballaine explained in detail his suggestion for the development of coal fields and what the government might expect in the way of returns. Some members of the committee fear that the leasing plan might result in the skimming of the surface coal and leaving the senate committee in the lurch. Action was delayed in order that the senate leaders might confer with reference to formulating some plan for a quick and thorough inquiry.

Senator Elihu's opposition to the Lodge resolution will be withdrawn, it is said.

HOTEL MEN ASK PERMIT TRANSFERS

OWNERS APPEAR BEFORE THE POLICE BOARD Commission Orders That All Who Hold Licenses in Names Other Than Their Own Explain

The police commission got away from the common beer saloons and into the realm of the high-class bars last night when representatives of the Angelus and Van Nuys hotels appeared before the commission and pleaded for their permits.

The commission has cited G. S. Holmes, in whose name the permit for the Angelus bar, and Milo M. Potter, in whose name the permit for the Van Nuys bar stand, to appear and show cause why their permits should not be revoked, as they no longer conducted these places.

Mr. Loomis was quietly grilled by Commissioner Wellborn because he had not appeared previously and asked that the permit for his place be transferred to his own name. Mr. Loomis said that he had made such an application to the McAleer administration, but had been told it was not necessary to have the change made.

He was permitted to make application to the permit transferred to his own name and E. L. Potter's attorney did the same for Mr. Potter.

These cases will come before the commission at its meeting next Monday night, when a large number of similar cases are to be heard.

Holders of every kind of liquor permit, retail, wholesale and restaurant, will be notified by order of the police commission that they must go before that body and show who is the actual owner of the business for which the permits are issued.

All persons who conduct a liquor business under a license issued by others than themselves are expected to make application to have the permits transferred to their own names, and if they do not do so voluntarily they are not likely to receive much sympathy from the commission.

Because the owner of the Hotel Lantershim demanded several thousand dollars for giving his consent for forty feet of frontage, I. S. Green was forced to withdraw his application for a transfer in the location of the Golden State Wine company from 271 South Main street to 306 South Spring street.

No more liquor permits are to be granted at San Pedro. The police commission definitely outlined this as a policy last night and emphasized it by denying a retail permit to Leo Augusting for 421 Front street, San Pedro. There has been a saloon at this location for several years, but the permit was held in the name of T. P. Roberts, credit man for the Major Brewing company, and was revoked by the commission two weeks ago.

MANIAC TRIES TO RUN MARATHON IN CHURCH

Attacked by Policemen He Hurled Pews, but Is Captured After Lively Fight

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—A score of worshippers were at their devotions in the Paulist Fathers' church, Columbus avenue and Sixth street, when a tall man entered and rushed up one of the aisles, dashed across to another and ran down it at top speed.

Apparently with the idea that he was engaged in a Marathon race, he made lap after lap around the church, plain clothes men attached to the West Sixty-eighth street station, talking to Father Daly, one of the Paulist fathers. When informed of the case he found the stranger still running at top speed. Leonard sprinted after him and finally caught him.

The man broke away and jumped over the back of a pew. Leonard went after him, and then began an exciting hurdle race over the pews, with Leonard stumbling over one of the hurdles and Leonard caught him a second time, but the man jerked away and began running again. This time Leonard waited and headed him off. They met and clinched. Then they rolled over and over on the floor, and Leonard was getting the worst of it when several men went to his assistance.

The stranger was handcuffed and taken to the station house. Dr. Brewster of Flower hospital was called and decided the man was insane. He was taken to Bellevue hospital, where he said he was Dennis Donohue, 21 years old, of 215 Monroe street.

Sanatorium Being Built by Modern Woodmen of America

INSURANCE is not the only thing in which the Modern Woodmen take interest. There are many instances where unfortunate members have been cared for and assisted, demonstrating the fraternal feature of the order. Throughout the middle west, where farmers largely make up the membership, it has often happened that a crop has been planted or harvested for a sick neighbor and not a cent charged. Disabled members in cities have been helped in many ways.

But greatest of all is the tuberculosis sanatorium project now operating at Colorado Springs. It had its origin in the attempt of all fraternal orders to establish an institution of this kind in New Mexico. It could not be done, so E. E. Murphy, one of the national board of directors of the Modern Woodmen, proposed the order go it alone. In the official paper of the order in October, 1907, an appeal was made for funds. The first contribution was received October 27. Golden State camp was one of the first with a donation of $400. By November 1 $4000 had been received. During 1908 the money poured in and the enterprise was under way. By the end of that year $85,000 was received and used.

A tract of 1380 acres of land was purchased seven miles from Colorado Springs. This was all paid for and at present 120 tents and accessories by voluntary contributions. Each tent costs $250 and any camp contributing that sum has a sign on a tent showing it was contributed by that camp. Golden State, Pacific and Pasadena are among those thus mentioned.

The idea of establishing the sanatorium is that it is better to prolong the life of members, preserve their usefulness to themselves and society, than to let them die unassisted. The head camp took hold of the project and decided to set aside 10 cents from each member annually for maintenance purposes. With over 1,000,000 members this means a fund of over $100,000 or more to keep it running. Members of the order are taken care of free of charge. Only incipient cases are admitted and the record for the first year has shown a gratifying number of cures.

The original plans for the sanatorium were made by Dr. and Mrs. J. E. White of Colorado Springs. These were revised by competent architects, and another section is set apart for agriculture. At present 300 acres are under cultivation, besides an orchard containing apple, prune and plum trees. Coal underlies a large part of the land and can be mined at a cost of 75 cents a ton. All these things give the site peculiar advantages for economical maintenance. It will cost $500,000 to complete present plans.

Los Angeles Woodmen are greatly interested in this project and anticipate hearing from Grand Consul Talbot some interesting details of the work as now being carried on. He will get a rousing welcome here and his visit will be one long to be remembered.
