

JURY IN SWINDLE CASE LOCKED UP

TRIAL OF THE GET-RICH-QUICK MEN CONCLUDED

HARRY CONNER ARRESTED ONCE MORE ON NEW CHARGE

Methods Alleged to Have Been Used by Men Who Preyed on Suckers Are Told in Court

The jury in the Green-Conner-Ivett case retired at 12:10 o'clock this morning. As today is a legal holiday, Judge Rose left word that the jurors, in the event of reaching a verdict, should return a sealed verdict at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The jurors were still out at an early hour this morning.

The trial of Dolph M. Green, Harry G. Conner and R. E. Ivett, jointly charged with criminal conspiracy to defraud J. H. Umberger, continued in Police Judge Rose's court yesterday, with repetitive and sensational testimony and startling incidents.

When Umberger, who in his complaint alleges he was induced to buy a half interest in a "fake" automobile garage, whereby he lost $300, took the witness stand, he related his story in an apparently honest and straightforward way. He said he was led to believe he would receive great financial returns from his investment, but four days after parting with his money he was forced out of the "garage" and lost his savings, which had been gathered by hard work on the farm on the outskirts of San Francisco.

"After being in the place four days," said Umberger, "I suggested to Ivett, who posed as the owner, that we should buy a new automobile. He told me he was going to close up the place and go away for a visit and would return until after the Christmas holidays. It was then he offered to buy my half interest for $50 or sell his interest to me."

"When I agreed to buy him out, he refused to sell, and stated if I continued in the business he would force me to pay $100 a month rent for the building. When I agreed to do this to protect my investment, Ivett told me he would not let me stay for $1000 a month. I saw I was up against it and had been fleeced."

Mrs. Umberger testified practically the same as her husband. The star witness for the prosecution was Edwin Yates, a building contractor, who testified to conversations with the defendants, in which he stated they acknowledged that for years they had trimmed a number of "suckers" and obtained easy money. Yates had an auto in the Ivett garage, and tried to shake his way out, but, despite the grilling of Attorney Earl Rogers.

Judge Rose was anxious to have the trial closed last night and at 5 o'clock adjournment was taken and a night session was ordered to begin at 8 o'clock.

At the night session, after the examination of Yates, the defense pleads Conner and Ivett on the stand. Both defendants flatly denied all the accusations against them, saying in substance they were victims of police persecution. Mrs. Ivett testified in similar vein.

Makes Plea for Honesty

Deputy District Attorney Arthur L. Vetch made an impassioned plea for the conviction of the defendants, that an example be made to rid Los Angeles of sharks who prey upon the pocket-books of gullible tourists and persons anxious to invest their money in honest, legitimate Los Angeles enterprises.

Attorneys John Harriman and Rogers argued for the defense. So persistent was Attorney Rogers interrupting Judge Rose while he was reading the instructions to the jury that the magistrate ordered Bailiff Hubbard to place Rogers under arrest or take him from the court room if he did not desist.

"I am reading these instructions," said Judge Rose, "and will not stop for any interference." Rogers subsided. A dramatic incident of the trial happened after the adjournment at 5 o'clock, when Harry G. Conner, one of the defendants, was arrested by Earl Hamlin, proprietor of a restaurant, 1820 South Main street.

Conner was leaving the court room when arrested by Detective McNamara and brought before Police Judge Williams, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, a felony. He was placed under $500 bonds, with the stipulation that the bond may be increased. He furnished bondmen.

In the complaint Hamlin alleges that on February 9 he purchased from Conner what was supposed to be a half interest in the International Auto League of America, Conner representing himself as having the exclusive agency of California, with offices at 702 South Spring street. It was reported that the business was growing and he desired a partner. Hamlin, who went to school with Conner in Paoli, Kas., was attracted by visions of wealth and gave $150.

Upon investigation Hamlin learned that Conner had severed his connection with the auto league four days before. Conner's preliminary hearing was set for March 2.

LICENSE OF IMPERIAL CAFE IS IN JEOPARDY

John Koster Is Summoned to Appear Before Police Board and Explain Existing Conditions

John Koster, who conducts the Imperial cafe, adjoining the city hall on Broadway, and the Imperial saloon on the Spring street side, was cited to appear before the police commission at its meeting next Monday night and show cause why his liquor permits should not be revoked. The action of the commission was based on a report made by Patrolmen Miller and Cook, who were detailed to investigate the place. It was reported that the Imperial cafe was a resort for women of disreputable character. The report further stated that this condition of affairs was known to the proprietors.

CHAMBERLAIN AT CANNES

CANNES, France, Feb. 21.—Joseph Chamberlain, the British statesman, arrived here today.

LABOR TEMPLE TO BE DEDICATED

SAN FRANCISCO'S MAYOR IS PRINCIPAL SPEAKER

P. H. McCarthy and Large Party Coming South on Special and Will Remain Until Thursday

This will be a red-letter day in the annals of the labor organizations of Los Angeles. This evening at 8 o'clock Mayor P. H. McCarthy of San Francisco will dedicate the new Labor Temple at 548 South Maple avenue.

The directors of the Labor Temple association have made elaborate arrangements for the occasion. The interior of the building will be decorated from basement to roof, and every hall and room thrown open for inspection. At the conclusion of the exercises the delay occasioned by the clearing of the floor for dancing, the musicians' union having donated the services of its best orchestra for the occasion. Dancing will also be held in the social hall on the second floor.

Mayor McCarthy left San Francisco last night on a special train, accompanied by 140 officers and members of various labor organizations in that city. They will come on the coast line of the Southern Pacific railway and remain here until Thursday. Included in the party are O. A. Twissom, secretary of the State Building Trades council, and Andrew Gallagher, secretary of the labor council, both of whom will participate in the dedicatory services. Attorney Paul Rogers of this city also will participate in the dedication, he having been attorney for the Labor Temple association since its organization.

The movement which led to the erection of this handsome monument to labor was initiated in December, 1902, by the Women's Union Label league, which made a donation of $25 to the Central Labor council to be used for building, with the proviso that the money be accounted for by issuance of stock or other form of recognition. The fund grew slowly, being added to by entertainments and assessments, but in 1903 most of the money was returned to the subscribers. A new start was made in 1904, and in October of this year the two lots on which the building stands were purchased, the price being $19,447.47. The corner stone was laid on Labor day, 1906, and after some delay on account of the circulation of a petition for the widening of Maple avenue the work of construction was prosecuted with vigor. The building is now nearly ready for occupancy, and it is claimed that the space of 80x125 feet. There are thirteen halls in the building, with many offices and other rooms. The heating and other appliances are of the latest pattern, and it is claimed that the tiling floor of the main hall, which permits it to be used either as an auditorium or ball room, is the only one of its kind in the country.

"After being in the place four days," said Umberger, "I suggested to Ivett, who posed as the owner, that we should buy a new automobile. He told me he was going to close up the place and go away for a visit and would return until after the Christmas holidays. It was then he offered to buy my half interest for $50 or sell his interest to me."

DEATH STRIKES DOWN SON OF JOS. SCOTT

Physicians Baffled by Disease—It Is Believed the Child May Have Suffered from Rabies

Death, terrible in its suddenness, and of course entirely unexpected, entered the home yesterday of Joseph Scott, president of the Los Angeles city board of education, also president of the chamber of commerce, and removed from the family group Joseph Scott, jr., the oldest child in a family of seven. Specialists called to the Scott home, 621 E. Eden avenue, shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning, while unable to diagnose the cause of death, are believed to incline to the opinion that death might have been caused by rabies, a disease sometimes sudden in action and usually incurable. An autopsy will be held today to determine the cause of death.

The seven children in the Scott family, like many children in the neighborhood, have been ill with the measles. The quarantine signs were removed a few days ago from the houses and the children were allowed to go out and play on the lawn. Saturday Mr. Scott closed his office and went home to play with his boys. Joseph Scott, jr., was the liveliest of the crowd, and when his kite outdistanced those flown by his father his joy could not be restrained. From kite flying his fancy turned to aeroplanes. His deft, nimble fingers soon had fashioned a framework, and Sunday night when the boy and his father retired to their bed they occupied the same room—the boy kept sleep from his father's eyes for a space of an hour while he gave vent to his enthusiasm about the stick and paper airship he was building. Shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Scott was awakened by something striking him in the face. He found his boy unconscious and in convulsions. The child's hands then were icy in their coldness. It was this that awakened the father. Dr. Colburn, the family physician, summoned at once, realized that the case was beyond his ken of children's ailments. At his suggestion Dr. H. G. Brainerd, a brain specialist, was called in consultation. Both men exhausted their skill in endeavoring to alleviate the suffering of the boy. Both were admittedly baffled. Dr. Brainerd declared he had never attended a similar case. The boy died at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. Joseph was 10 years old and was a pupil at the Hoover street school, where he was a leader in play and at his studies. The funeral services will be conducted tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock from St. Vibiana cathedral. Interment will be in Calvary. Mr. and Mrs. Scott, who have been almost prostrated by the death of their oldest son, denied themselves last night to all except their closest friends. The home during the afternoon and evening was visited by hundreds. Resolutions expressing sympathy to the father and family were adopted by the directors of the chamber of commerce yesterday afternoon immediately upon receipt of the word of the boy's death.

'LA GIOCONDA'S' WELL RECEIVED

LAMBARDI OPERA COMPANY SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

GUERRIERI PROVES WORTH AS LEADER OF ORCHESTRA

Maggi Fulfills Promises of Friends and Displays Fine Dramatic Perception Together with Magnificent Voice

The Lambardi grand opera company, prepared for better and more artistic productions than in previous engagements, returned to the Mason opera house last night. During the year which has elapsed since the company sang here last, many changes have been made in the organization. Perhaps the most important and delightful improvement is in the work of the orchestra. Under the baton of Guerrieri the players have become unified, brilliant and adaptable to a degree, which makes their playing one of the most delightful features of the evening.

Many new soloists have been added to the list of singers, and the vocal strength of the company is in the main considerably increased, although several of the favorite singers who appeared here last year will probably be missed. The singing of the chorus is also vastly bettered. The voices are not merely loud, but musical and in the pitch as well.

Ponchelli's colorful opera, "La Gioconda," was the bill for the opening night and served to introduce four of the new soloists. Of these Margi, the baritone; Sabellio, bass, and Busetti, soprano, shared the honors, although the extraordinarily dramatic and splendid music which led to the judgment of the two men gave them a preponderance in applause and in opportunity to win it, which made their every appearance almost a triumph.

Gifted with fine dramatic perceptions, as well as a voice of magnificent quality and wide range, Giuseppe Maggi realized well those promises which his friends had made for him. His solos were artistically interpreted, and in concerted work he maintained a balance which was always satisfying.

Sabellio Well Received

In the bass role of Alvise, Sabellio gave a most convincing and well-tempered picture of the deceived and revengeful husband. His best work is in the third act, where he achieves success and the immediate favor of his listeners, as a singer of fine vocalization and histrionic powers as for his compelling appearance.

Mme. Elvira Bosetti has a high, powerful voice, musical and well attuned, and uses it with a skill which is her inspiring, dominant personality. Her role as Gioconda offers no one great opportunity for distinction, but makes constant demand for reliable, conscientious work, which she was abundantly able to fulfill. Her appearance, too, is a decided attribute in her favor.

Eugamelli, a singer whose satisfactory work was known to us last year, made an excellent impression in the role of the blind mother, La Cieca, and Attilio Maurini as Enzo and Dolores Frau as Laura completed the cast.

Time Frau will be remembered pleasantly for her work with this company last year, and Signor Maurini, one of the new tenors, has a good quality in his voice, but rather limited range, which prevented the brilliance in his work that the score of the opera demands.

The opera, which has been heard here but seldom, has several beautiful concerted numbers and solos, all of which received full tribute of applause from the enthusiastic audience assembled last night. The performance of the evening was greater delight evinced than after the beautiful rendering of the intermezzo, in which the orchestra presented tonal effects of great beauty.

By the way, the dog, which displayed a few of the symptoms of hydrophobia so far as known, was killed. So little was the concern of the boy's parents and the family physician, Dr. J. R. Colburn, that the dog's brain and nerve center were not examined for traces of hydrophobia.

The seven children in the Scott family, like many children in the neighborhood, have been ill with the measles. The quarantine signs were removed a few days ago from the houses and the children were allowed to go out and play on the lawn.

Saturday Mr. Scott closed his office and went home to play with his boys. Dr. Brainerd declared he had never attended a similar case. The boy died at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

POLICE BOARD DISPELS LIQUOR MEN'S FEARS

While the police commission will grant no more liquor permits to a corporation, those corporations now holding such permits will not be disturbed or required to take out the permits in the names of individuals. This policy was definitely determined by the police commission last night.

The commission sent several persons away happy last night by granting them permits to conduct the saloons they own but for which they have not previously had permits in their own names.

Zoeper & Hollister were granted the retail permit for 122 North Main street, which has been held in the name of A. Miller, pumpman for the Los Angeles Brewing company.

Charles O. DeLong was granted a wholesale permit for 231 East Sixth street, which had been held in the name of James L. Sams.

Angel Roy was granted a restaurant permit for 110 Market street, which has been held in the name of D. Carner.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Senator Aldrich said today that if permitted to do so he would undertake to run the government of the United States for $300,000,000 a year less than its now costs.

He was not presenting a formal proposition, but was making a speech to the senate on the question of creating a commission to reform the business methods of the government.

SAYS HARRIMAN'S JUDGMENT POOR

U. P. VICE PRESIDENT TESTIFIES AT MERGER SUIT

Krutzschmitt Evades Direct Answer to Inquiry as to What Proportion of Dividend Stock Was Watered

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Frank B. Kellogg took up today the cross-examination of Julius Krutzschmitt, vice president of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific systems in the government's suit to dissolve the merger of the two roads.

Mr. Kellogg asked, among other things, about the list of commodities used by the merged system, on which Mr. Krutzschmitt had testified prices had increased. "Did you select for this list commodities on which there had been large increases?" asked Mr. Kellogg.

"No, I simply asked our purchasing agent the names of the principal commodities showing the differences in the prices paid," was the reply. "He said there were very few things which had advanced in price."

Mr. Krutzschmitt defended the decreased speed of certain freight trains on his system. "A very small percentage of the public is dissatisfied," he declared. "The Union Pacific at times has operated under handicaps compared with which those of the Pennsylvania, for instance, are trifling."

"Watered stock," dividends and property valuation were other things regarding which Mr. Krutzschmitt was questioned. When Mr. Krutzschmitt quoted the interstate commerce commission report on dividend averages and showed although he admitted the average of the per cent dividend now the average of the Union Pacific for a ten-year period was 4.62 and on the Southern Pacific 1.9 per cent, Mr. Kellogg asked:

Asks About "Watered" Stock "Would you undertake to say what portion of the stock on which railroads pay dividends is watered stock and what is paid on actual capital investment?"

Krutzschmitt answered he rather believed the interstate commerce commission had disregarded watered stock in preparing its tabulation of dividend averages. He said he understood four of the 10 per cent dividends were paid on investments.

A. L. Mohler, vice president and general manager of the Union Pacific, for the first time testified to the development of the Union Pacific during the last ten years.

Mr. Mohler in the course of his testimony made a judgment of the late E. H. Harriman as to the operation of trains between Council Bluffs and Ogden.

"In 1901," said Mr. Mohler, "we moved some cars more quickly than we do now, but more of them more slowly. The service is better now and more uniform, and I believe is giving more satisfaction. We could run a 54-hour freight between Council Bluffs and Ogden if we sidetracked passengers and mail trains, but we would have to be very careful, and it would be risky business in such a locality."

Government counsel pointed out that Mr. Harriman was chairman of the executive committee of the road in 1901 and had the final say as to the movement of the business. "Yes, I know that," said the witness, "but nevertheless, I might question his judgment in this respect. "But we cannot take the risks that used to be taken. If we did, some of the officers might go to jail."

The hearing will continue Wednesday morning.
