FOUNDER THROOP'S MEMORY HONORED

PRESIDENT SCHERER DELIVERS SERMON

Anniversary Is Observed at Church Services When Life and Ideals of Man Is Discussed

[Special to The Herald.] PASADENA, March 13.—President James A. E. Scherer of Throop institute delivered a memorial sermon this morning at the Universalist church, commemorating the birth of Father Throop. In opening the speaker said that he would treat of three of Father Throop's ideals, which have become the ideals of the school: Educational, social and ethical.

Furthered His Ideals to the moral side of education were expressed by him at a public meeting held in his honor December 21, 1893. He said that there is one great lack in our system of education, and that is moral training. "We must teach our children to be honest. "But with all of Father Throop's insistence upon morality, he looked forward with clear vision to the time when it is insisted that schools shall be Christian without sectarianism. Once he had disabused anyone of the idea that this is a sectarian school. It is a school for the public. I offer this property for the benefit of Pasadena, Los Angeles county, Southern California, humanity, but to return the means God has given me to the one to whom it belongs.

PREACHES SERMON ON IMMORTALITY

Rev. L. Porter Hitchcock Gives Views on the Hereafter and Reasons for Men Fearing Death

[Special to The Herald.] PASADENA, March 13.—Rev. L. Porter Hitchcock, new pastor of the West Side Congregational church, addressed the men's meeting this afternoon at the First Baptist church under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. He delivered the first of a series of Easter-tide sermons. His subject was "Living on the Wrong Side of Immortality" and his text was from 1 Cor. 15:55: "The sting of death is sin." He said in part:

"On our first day in Yosemite, as with uncovered heads we stood in the nave of that great open air sanctuary of God, one of our party remarked and that reverently, 'This is as near heaven as I ever expect to get.' This is a beautiful world, and when in these garden spots where God seems to have lavished the very best of his creative skill, we wonder if the next world can really be as beautiful. And as a consequence we want to stay in this world which we have learned to love and know, rather than cross the border into that which as yet is unseen, unknown and beyond our knowledge. This is to part with it. As someone has said, 'Like all children, we don't like to be sent to bed.' And we are learning very fast in these days that if this is not heaven here below it is our own fault. If we suffer it is because of a broken law somewhere, because in some way we or some before us, about us, have learned to live in harmony with the best. And some of us go so far as to say that with all the pain and loss we want to stay. "It is the sting of death that keeps us living here below. It is the sting of death that makes this world so attractive that we scarcely ever dream of the next. "But I am asked do I believe in hell. Yes, and if there were no hell inside of twenty-four hours man would make one. He has to have it whether he wants it or not, just as long as he keeps hold of his sin. "It is not God that has created hell—it is sin. This modern talk about hell being a mere mental state, that there is only one remedy—destroy the sin, the sting of death, and live on the right side of immortality. "The Y. M. C. A. Glee club furnished music for the meeting, and W. L. Jones, musical director, sang a solo.

IRISH TRAIN "HELD UP" AND CONDUCTOR HOOTED

Gang of Men Follow Practice of Assaulting Passengers—Fail to Give Reason

DUBLIN, March 13.—An extraordinary story of holding up trains on a railway in the mountainous districts in West Cork and of assaults on officials and passengers was related at the Skibbereen police court last week when a man named Finn, alleged to be the leader of a gang of fifty men who habitually hold up trains on the Schull and Skibbereen railway at remote country stations, was heavily fined and bound over to keep the peace for a lengthy period for assaults on the police. It was stated in evidence that for some time past gangs of men, headed by the defendant, had given considerable trouble to the officials, and passengers had been assaulted. Information was conveyed secretly to the guard in charge of a night train traveling Skibbereen that the gang and its start would be molested at lonely stations, and the authorities concealed a number of police on board the train. On arrival at a station called Church Cross they found the defendant at the head of a gang of forty men, boozing and groaning. Finn threatened to "tear the whiskers" from the passengers who alighted and the guard was stoned. No reason was assigned for the outrages.
