

PASTOR EXPLAINS THEORY OF DRESS

Dr. Brougber Declares Character of Man Is More Than Raiment in Life

FASHION'S DICTATES FUTILE

Soul Requires Garment of Courage, Noble Ideals and Purity of Purpose

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougber preached at Temple Baptist Auditorium last night on the subject, "The Fashion Show; or, 'How to Dress Properly.'" He took his text from Matt. 22:11 and 12, which reads—"And when the king came in to behold the guests, he saw there a man which had not a wedding garment, and he said unto him, 'Friend, how camest thou in hither not having a wedding garment?' And he was speechless."

"In this parable," said Dr. Brougber, "we find a man who was not properly dressed. The question of dress has been a serious one ever since the day that Adam and Eve discovered their lack of clothing. Probably no subject—unless it is the question of what we eat and drink—occupies the attention of men and women more than the subject of dress. Jesus Christ recognized this fact, and in his great sermon on the Mount warned against worry about dress. It is not because of the dignity of the pulpit to consider a question which Jesus Christ himself considered, and which some of the greatest minds since the time of Christ have tried to solve. Carlyle, in his 'Sartor Resartus,' illuminated the subject, but by no means exhausted it. He was not the first and probably will not be the last 'clothes philosopher.'"

VITAL RELATION OF DRESS

"As a matter of fact, dress has a vital relation to the welfare of mankind. It is related to the development of men and women physically, mentally and spiritually. A man's clothes, in the first place, should be clean and neat. They concern the health, comfort and ornamentation of the body. Dress should be healthful. The human body contains no useless space. The organs contained within the body are the proper size and cannot be increased or diminished without interrupting their functions and leading to ill health. When we study the fashion of the look in at the store windows, we certainly cannot deny that much of the effort of society is not to produce clothes that are healthful and comfortable, but rather, stylish and startling. God arranged the clothing of animals to suit their environment and comfort—but man alone is willing to put himself in a strait-jacket and endure the misery of it just because it is fashionable. Those who set the fashions seem to think that men and women are more attractive going around looking like human wasps and grasshoppers. It is true that most men and women need something to improve their looks."

ORNAMENTATION IN ATTIRE

"Dress of course should be ornamental. God has put the most beautiful clothing upon Nature, and in many instances upon the animal creation. Every landscape displays a variety and richness of color and beauty; every flower is fascinating in its tints; every bird is clothed with the most exquisite taste. God is a lover of the beautiful, and it is not sinful to dress elegantly, as well as attractively. If one can afford it, a person should dress in harmony with his circumstances, as well as in harmony with his social environment. I love to see a man dressed for his work. Let the laboring man have on his toiler's suit; let the farmer wear clothes suited to his vocation; let the soldier be dressed in clothing appropriate to his life. "A man's clothing has little to do with the message he delivers. It is the man that counts, and not the material he wears; it is character, and not clothes, that give the expression of his inner life, then such of the so-called 'fashionable' dressing is simply the expression of an empty head—not to say a vulgar mind."

CLOTHING OF THE SOUL

"When the man appeared at the king's marriage feast without a wedding garment on, he was cast out. There is a dress for the soul that is equally as essential as dress for the body. The garment of the soul that will be appropriate for the King's marriage feast is a Christ-like character. It takes more than clothes to make a man. It takes more than a soldier's uniform to make a soldier. It takes more than a courageous heart, noble ideals, purity of soul—these count far more than clothes. When we come to stand on the last day at the great Marriage Feast, and the King looks over the company gathered there, all externalities will be swept away. The dress of the body cannot hide the deformity of the soul; and the test will be having or not having a Christ-like character. No soul will feel at home in the presence of the King without being clothed in the image of the Master."

COUNTRY HOMES IN THE FOOTHILLS

Life That Is Real Living

Southern California is noted the world over for its charming country homes. This is the real California life, the balmy atmosphere and the sweet fragrance of the orange blossoms. Have you such a home? If not, why not? This is the question, and the answer is in your hands because I find the cost of foothill acreage so high. Yes, the beautiful homesites of Altadena, Sierra Madre, Monrovia and the old-established districts have gone beyond the reach of the man of moderate means, values advancing from $300 to $3000 per acre in the past few years. There is just one genuine foothill country home place left and that is beautiful Monte Vista park, the district that surpasses all others in richness and scenic grandeur—only 15 miles from this city. This is your opportunity—here is acreage with all improvements—boulevards, splendid water conditions. Everything ideal for your country home, and the prices only one-quarter those of the above named districts. Do not try to imagine. Do not hesitate. ### NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH AT INGLEWOOD OPENS

St. John Chrysostom Begins Its Work with Fair Tuesday and Wednesday Evenings

The newest Catholic church in the diocese, St. John Chrysostom, at Inglewood, will be formally opened with a fair next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and also Wednesday afternoon. The church, which has recently been completed, is in charge of the Rev. Emil Gerardi, one of the popular priests who was formerly stationed at the cathedral and who has been very active in building up the new parish. The building is in the rustic style and will accommodate a congregation of 250 persons. The edifice is well ventilated and has an organ loft and is completely fitted up for church services. Father Gerardi has been very successful in erecting his church through the enthusiasm of the parishioners and friends, and the fair of the coming week will be to assist the new parish in its work. The church has commodious grounds, which will be utilized for the fair to be given. This church was formally opened last Sunday with special services. Its patron saint is St. John Chrysostom, patriarch of Constantinople in the fourth century.

TOUR OF BUFFALO BILL TO CROWN FAMOUS LIFE

Fifty years ago Col. W. F. Cody, affectionately known throughout the entire world as Buffalo Bill, made his bid for fame and fortune. His work is done, all the honors mankind can bestow on fellow man have been heaped upon him, and now, in the fullness of his glory Col. Cody announces his positive retirement from active life. He seeks a rest well merited, and the good will and heartfelt wishes come to him from his million friends. Buffalo Bill is still a sturdy specimen of a great far west; he has not measured his full length of time; he seeks the recompense so justly, so nobly earned—peaceful days away from the glare of the limelight and excitement consequent upon his unusual life of activity. Buffalo Bill will outline history—his fame will go into future generations as one of the great figures of the west—there isn't a man, child of yesterday, or a child, man of tomorrow, that will not express sincere regret at his leaving this life. He has decided. The step will be final. Within a few days he and his great Wild West and Pawnee Bill's Far East exhibition will come to this city.

COLONEL CODY'S FAREWELL TOUR

It will be Col. Cody's last visit; his final farewell to his myriad of friends and admirers. The Wild West and Far East exhibition will continue. Col. Cody leaves the active management to his partner, Major Gordon W. Little (Pawnee Bill). For years Col. Cody has labored to make his Wild West what it is—the greatest attraction of its kind ever presented to the amusement loving public; it will continue as such, a living testimonial to his struggles, his hardships, his honors and glory. Col. Cody will positively arrive at every performance this season, rain or shine—he wants to bid you goodbye in person, to acknowledge his debt of gratitude for the continuous loyalty of a great nation for so many years. Every feature of the Wild West and Far East this season has been improved, new acts added, sensations of every kind joined to the refining influence of oriental and occidental splendor. The battle of Summit Springs, famous in the history of Indian warfare, will be even more vivid than before; there will be the most wonderful collection of trained horses ever seen under one management. Then for those who crave excitement, a thrill—and many of them—will be given in the broncho-busting acts; the Zouave drills, the cavalry dashes; the marvellous death-daring Cossacks; the attack of the caravan; the train robbery; life in the wild west as it was years ago, and many more features of vital interest. These alone would constitute the ordinary entertainment, and that's just where the distinction of the Buffalo Bill and Pawnee Bill exhibition rests. This is not an ordinary show. Add to the heart-quivering deeds of darddevil heroism of the wild west the pageantry, tinsel, flash and silken rustle of the gem-studded and swarthy skinned actors from the far east. Feats of tumbling, occult mysteries, magic from the burning desert sands—and you have but a slight mental picture of what you will see when bidding an affectionate farewell to the greatest of them all—the world-famous Buffalo Bill.

PARK WILL CHARM IN WINTER SEASON

Commission Endeavors to Hury Work on Central Breathing Spot of the City

BENCHES TO BE ARTISTIC

Circles and Stars with Cobblestones Will Not Disfigure Stretches of Lawn

With only $23,000 instead of the $97,000 that it wanted, the park commission is making Central park a beauty spot that will be one of the principal attractions of Los Angeles. It will be completed by the height of the tourist season if the council will do its part of the work with expedition. The park development is already well advanced. The walks have been laid out, some of the special trees and shrubbery have been planted, and the council was asked by the park commission last Tuesday to advertise for the fountain, comfort station and ornamental iron benches. Only $23,000 of the amount appropriated for the park will show for $10,000 is to be sunk under ground in the comfort station, which will be on the Hill street line under the sidewalk. ELECTRIC LIGHTED FOUNTAIN The fountain will be in the center of the park and will be as ornamental as the limited funds can make it. The park commission estimates that it will cost a little less than $6000. The fountain will play over colored electric lights and at night will be a beautiful sight. It stands in the center of a small plaza and two broad walks cut across this plaza diagonally from each corner of the park. Cocos plumosus palms will be planted along the edges of the sidewalk so their fronds will hang over and make vistas looking directly to the fountain. Thirteen of these beautiful palms have already been set in place in the park, and Frank Shiner, park superintendent, has arranged for as many more. The thirteen palms now in the ground were purchased at Santa Barbara and brought to Los Angeles. It was one of the most delicate jobs of transplanting that Superintendent Shiner has undertaken since he has been at the head of the park system. One of these palms is 37 feet high and the others range down to 10 feet. They have been planted so that the larger ones are near the center and the smaller ones at the ends of the walks. Some of the special trees that are yet to be planted are the ginkgo, or maidenhair fern tree, podocarpus, dalbergia and Mexican oak. CHANGE IN CANNON SITE The water color prepared by Architect John Parkinson, picturing the park as it will be when completed, shows the soldiers' monument across the little plaza from the fountain, but this will not be the case. The monument and the cannon have been moved a few feet from the locations they occupied so long at the northeast entrance to the park and there they will stay. An automatic sprinkling system that

ACTOR-MANAGER WEDS BETWEEN PERFORMANCES

Gavin Young and Miss Henrietta Holly Marry a Month in Advance of the Time Set

The couple were united at Christ Episcopal church by the Rev. Baker P. Lee. The wedding date had been previously set for October 28. A high link for the occasion was planned by the couple's many friends, in which they planned to put Young and his bride in leading parts. Young scented trouble ahead. Saturday he slipped into the county clerk's office and nonchalantly asked for a certificate to wed. Then he made a date with his bride-to-be to meet him at an appointed place. She kept the date. A taxicab was hailed. They buzzed to the church, found the pastor, enlisted the services of the janitor and his wife as witnesses, and bingo—the knot was tied. Bride and groom journeyed to the home of the bride's parents and received their blessing. Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. Young wore smiles that wouldn't come off Sunday the secret leaked out, and down around the Burbank theater they were buying rice.

REV. E. S. HODGIN SAYS PAINE NOT AN INFIDEL

Unitarian Pastor Eulogizes Colonial Champion of Democracy and Religious Liberty

In the introduction to his sermon on the "Fidelity and Infidelity of Thomas Paine," Rev. E. Stanton Hodgkin of the First Unitarian church, said: "You have all heard of Thomas Paine. You have more frequently heard the name 'Tom Paine.' The two are not identical. 'Tom Paine' is a purely mythical character that never had any flesh and blood existence. He was a creation of the imagination—born of the spirit of ecclesiastical bigotry and superstitious fear. 'Tom Paine' has always been pictured as an infidel—a monster faithless to every call of truth and virtue and bent only on degrading God and ruining man. The real Thomas Paine had not one of the qualities or characteristics applied to the mythical Paine. He was a man of striking faults and sterling virtues who fought valiantly and unselfishly for democracy and religious liberty. His faith in God and humanity has never been surpassed by priest or martyr. Few men have ever been more obedient to the command, 'Thou shalt love thy God with thy whole soul and whole mind and thy neighbor as thyself.' The evolutionary interpretation of life has brought us a larger view of God than that held by Paine, but his view was so immeasurably superior to the idea of a partial God of vengeance that he combated that we owe much to him. Thomas Paine was was one long, self-sacrificing, unwarded struggle for political and religious liberty. He always faced forward. He plunged into unknown and untrodden fields and he never retreated or retreated a single inch in spite of all the bitter disappointments, the insupportable difficulties and disastrous failures that followed him one after another. He fought the good fight and held fast to the faith as he saw it. The world will always have need of such men of soul, and we cannot afford to let such characters rest dishonored and forgotten."

UNAWARE GUN WAS LOADED

Husband, in Presence of Wife and Family, Wounds Self While Cleaning Gun

Without the knowledge that the weapon he was handling was loaded, Julian Martinez, living at Fifty-third and Alameda streets, accidentally shot and killed his brother, Crucenta Martinez, in front of their home early yesterday. He was placed under arrest and after an explanation of the shooting to the police was lodged in the city jail, charged with manslaughter. According to Francisco Parra, who witnessed the killing, Martinez was showing a new patented rifle to his brother and seemed to have some difficulty in opening its breech. Parra took the weapon from Martinez' hands and after a vain attempt to remedy a seeming defect handed it back to Julian. An instant later the weapon was discharged while in his hands and Crucenta fell dead with a bullet through his heart. The body was removed to Breesee Bros' morgue, where an inquest will be held. Surrounded by his wife and five children in the parlor of their little home at 754 1/2 Kohler street, Thomas J. Carthy in cleaning a 22-caliber rifle yesterday accidentally discharged the weapon and was shot in the left breast, the bullet coming out of his breast just above the left lung.
