

ROOSEVELT GAINS GEORGIA'S CHEERS

Former President Is Accorded an Enthusiastic Welcome by Thousands in Atlanta

NEEDS FOR CONSERVATION

Fear That Natural Resources Be Monopolized Unwarranted, He Declares

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 8.—Theodore Roosevelt came into Georgia today and found a warm welcome. He was greeted at Atlanta by crowds which blocked the streets, heedless of the rain, and cheered him. Earlier in the day he spent several hours at Rome, Ga., inspecting the Martha Berry School for Poor Mountain Boys and Girls, and in speaking to another crowd.

Col. Roosevelt made three speeches in Atlanta. His first was at the Southern Conservation congress. He urged the people of the south to take care of their natural wealth, and said if the country's resources should fall into the hands of a monopoly, the people would revolt.

DEFENSE OF CONSERVATION

The auditorium was only half filled when Col. Roosevelt delivered his address on conservation, for admission had been denied the public, only holders of tickets being permitted to enter the building.

"Here and there, and notably in the west," he said, "you will find men who say our purpose is to lock up the natural resources of the country. That is just as absurd as if a private individual would say the farmer was trying to lock up the natural resources of his farm when he declines to till his land in such ways that it permanently lost its fertility."

"Let us then make it the business of the government to conserve the resources, so far as we still have power over them, that the water power of the country, that all similar powers, are used under such governmental regulation as will allow ample profit to the users, and at the same time guarantee the public at large in its rights."

T. R. GIVEN BIG STICK BY BOYS OF GEORGIA SCHOOL

Youths Cheer and Sing Song to Roosevelt

Rome, Ga., Oct. 8.—To inspect the Martha Berry Industrial school and speak to the people of Rome, Theodore Roosevelt stopped here today on his way to Atlanta.

At the school, Col. Roosevelt viewed the boys at work in the carpenter shop, the laundry, the dairy and the fields.

Later he went to the Martha Berry School for Girls. The students of the Berry school were massed in front of the main building when Mr. Roosevelt made his appearance.

Miss Berry told the story of her efforts to get support for the school and the good work of Mr. Roosevelt. The boys sang a song about the colonel, the theme of which was "What Shall we do with Our Theodores?"

T. R. WILL SOON MAKE CAMPAIGN TOUR IN N. Y.

New York, Oct. 8.—The Republican state committee announced today that Col. Roosevelt would make his first campaign speech in New York at Dunkirk on his return from his southern tour October 14.

SEVERAL INJURED IN FIGHTS

Shots Fired in Streets of Cork After a Large Political Meeting

DUBLIN, Oct. 8.—The Irish members of parliament have returned to their homes, greater zest being thrown into home politics. All other questions retire behind the interesting conflict between the United Irish league and the All-Ireland movement, which William O'Brien declares to be "the only living thing in Irish politics." It certainly does seem to enjoy some health, for if all accounts are to be relied on there is a branch in every town and hamlet of Cork and others have sprung up in different parts of Limerick, Kerry, Waterford and even Mayo.

On the other hand, the leaguers, for from admitting any waning of vitality, pronounce themselves heartier than ever. They profess a belief that this year's subscription will be a record and are basing bright hopes on the pilgrimage of Mr. Redmond and his colleagues to America, where, according to Dr. Timmins of Boston, who has arrived in Ireland with the Right Rev. Monsignor O'Callaghan, another prominent member of the league in America, matters over the water are looking bright.

MEASURES AMONG FACTIONS

Measures, faction fights are occasionally varying the course of events in Ireland, several persons, it is stated, having emerged from one conflict "injured more or less about the face and head."

A shooting outrage has been reported to the constabulary at Athenry, a man named John Crehan was fired upon and wounded when within two miles of the town of Athenry. It appears that Crehan attended mass at Esker monastery, a mile from his home. When returning with other members of the congregation he was fired upon from a small sandhill near the road.

FARM PROPERTY INJURED A series of outrages took place last week night in the Cork-on-Shannon district. A valuable brood mare, the property of Peter Gray of Lisimoyle, three miles from Carrick-on-Shannon, was found in the pasture with several slashes. Near a village known as Jamestown, Drumsna, seventeen cocks of hay, the property of a farmer named Pat McGovern, were torn down and tossed over the fields.

At the Cork police office this week Jack Sheehan, a blacksmith, was charged by the excise officers with having carried a revolver without the necessary license. The defendant is the brother of Mr. Sheehan, M. P. The offense was committed in Cork, when John Redmond and William O'Brien held rival gatherings in the city and there was a great concourse of people representing both factions.

FATHER SAVES CHILD WHILE OWN SON DROWNS

GENEVA, Oct. 8.—A few days ago at Bienna two boys, aged 5 and 4 years, while playing, fell into the River Suze. A chimney sweep named Holzler, who saw the accident, plunged into the water and succeeded in saving one of the children and brought him safely to the bank. He wished to save the other child, but could find no trace of it, and after waiting some time Holzler returned home, changed his clothes and went to his work.

PLAN CHANGE IN ARMY'S UNIFORM

U. S. Soldiers Will Wear Sweaters Instead of Blouses for Service in Field

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 8.—Within a few months the uniforms and equipment of the soldiers at Fort Sam Houston, as well as the United States army in general, will undergo a radical change. Information has been received here that the recommendations of the infantry equipment board have been approved by the war department.

It is understood that the service hat, the short overcoat or pea-jacket, the sweater, the sheltie hat, the poncho and the dispatch case are features of the new equipment. Of these the most radical reform will be the replacing of the ordinary blouse in field service by sweaters. These sweaters are not like the ordinary athletic sweaters in common use, but are more like the jersey and will button up in front with bright brass buttons. In lieu of collars handkerchiefs will be worn around the neck, these handkerchiefs to be of olive drab color and twenty-four or twenty-five inches square.

The short overcoat or pea-jacket has been selected to replace the present long overcoat. However, the cavalry board opposed to this change and it may not be adopted. Another feature will be the elimination of the blanket roll, so long associated with the appearance of the soldier. Under the new arrangement the entire load of equipment is to be placed on the soldier's back, his arms being left free to handle the gun. This, it is said, will allow a full expanse of the chest and will greatly add to the appearance of the army. From the front view none of the equipment can be seen, the blanket and other utensils being so rolled on his back that he can sleep without much discomfort in full equipment.

The insignia of office, instead of being stripes for non-commissioned staff, it is said, will consist of a badge pinned upon the sweater. It is claimed that these changes in uniform and arrangement are being made along the advanced lines followed by the nations of Europe, and it is said will add to the effectiveness of the fighting machine of the republic.
