

LA TORTAJADA TYPIFIES ANDALUSIAN Pantomime

Lack of Scenery Shows Spanish Idea and Calls for Greater Art from Dancer

When La Tortajada opened her act at the Orpheum this week, she occasioned some surprise and keen disappointment. Many thought that her scenery was deficient, and that in some respects her act was not up to date.

These facts hold good, if the act be considered from the viewpoint of an American production. But were she judged on her native lands, and if she and Martin Beck considered when the act was booked. And that other angle of vision affords one of the most unique angles that can be imagined in the vaudeville game.

One of the aims of the Orpheum circuit is to afford its patrons glimpses of foreign acts. These acts are sought in their native lands, and are imported by the circuit "as they stand."

In Spain, Tortajada is the very highest exponent of a very popular class of amusement—the pantomime dance, or tablao drama enacted with dancing as its method of expression. No one equals her in ability along this line, nor in native popularity.

and Lee, the melodious novelists; Kate Fowler, the Marie Tempest of vaudeville, in a somewhat different pantomime, and Alexander Brisson, the contortionist, and motion pictures.

The sale of seats for the two matinee performances of the Countess Thamar de Switzky, which will take place at the Auditorium next Tuesday and Friday afternoons, will open at the Auditorium box office tomorrow morning.

To those interested in natural history the management of Pantagruel theater will offer a tremendously interesting subject next week in the public appearance of "Alfred the First," a young, tractable chimpanzee.

"A Grand Army Man" will be the burlesque bill for next week, and A. E. Byron Beasley will return from the vacation which the two weeks of musical comedy gave him, to play the part which was made famous by David Warfield. This play was obtained from David Belasco by Oliver Morosco while he was in New York, and it will be staged with close attention to detail.

Augusta Gliese comes to the Orpheum as her first act for Thanksgiving week, beginning Monday. Miss Gliese has not been here in some time, but she is a person not easily forgotten, and her delightful pianology still are fresh in the public mind.

Charles W. King, who has the part of an old southern gentleman in "Marse Shelby's Chicken Dinner," at the Orpheum this week, was character man in the Burbank stock company when it first opened ten years ago at the Burbank theater. He has many reminiscences to tell of those early stock days here.

Tomorrow afternoon at Temple Auditorium, at 3 o'clock, the first Symphony orchestra concert of the season will be given. Director Hamilton promises some very good things, and the program of Russian music should be full of interest to those who love symphonic work.

SEATTLE BRINGS YUKON GOLD SHIPPLE, Nov. 16.—The steamship Olympia from Valdez, last night brought $200,000 in gold bullion. More gold is coming up the Yukon on dog sleds. The late arrival of the gold was due to the mild weather, which permitted the late workings of the placers.

Society

Members of the Alumnae of the Beta Phi sorority of the University of Southern California were delightfully entertained at dinner recently at the residence of Rev. and Mrs. Charles Scott in Pasadena.

Invitations have been received from Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Honory, daughter Sarah Farquhar Chandler, to John Oliver Knight of Los Angeles. The bride and groom will be married at the residence of Mrs. Honory in Chicago, Saturday evening, December 3.

SECOND CONVICTION OF AGED WOMAN CONFIRMED

Mrs. Driggs Suffers with Serious Heart Trouble, but Must Go to Prison

The district court of appeals in a decision handed down yesterday affirmed the judgment of the lower courts in the conviction of Mrs. Gertrude Driggs, 60 years old, whose trial on a charge of forgery dragged through the superior court two years.

Mrs. Driggs was sentenced to serve five years in the San Quentin penitentiary for the forgery of the name of John G. Charnock, a rancher of Palms, to a lease to 137 acres of land in that vicinity with an option to purchase. She appealed her case and was granted a new trial. She was tried on the charge in Judge Davis' court and convicted, receiving a penitentiary sentence.

The case was appealed six months ago and the decision rendered yesterday practically abolishes all hope the woman may have had of retaining her liberty. She has been at liberty under heavy bail.

During the period of her imprisonment in the county jail during her first trial the aged woman received the sympathy and support of Mrs. Fred T. Griffith of the W. C. T. U. Considerable interest was aroused among the various organizations in her case and her release was temporarily obtained through the testimony of physicians that her heart was twice its normal size and that imprisonment would ultimately result in her death.

OFFICIAL COUNT ELECTS DEMOCRAT TO CONGRESS

MARINETTE, Wis., Nov. 16.—On the face of the returns in the ninth congressional district Konop, Democrat, of Kewaunee has a majority, and the certificate of election will undoubtedly be issued to him by the secretary of state.

The canvassing board of Marinette county, by a vote of 2 to 1, refused to admit the thirty-four alleged Republican votes in the Second ward which were missed by the inspectors. This gives Konop a majority of five in the entire district.
