THE SHIPBUILDERS.

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE. There was never a band to lead 'em. There was never a drum to throb. When they marched along in an eager throng

To enlist for the Great Big Job. But, say, if the Kaiser could see 'em With the sweat on each sun-bronzed brow

While their hammers ring and their sledges swing He'd put up his hands right now.

Far from the field of glory. Far from the hills of France, While across the line the bullets white

And the hero waits his chance. They rear the mighty vessels That soon across the foam

Shall bring troops and guns till the beaten Huns Are hurrying, headlong, home.

Grime and sweat is their portion For many a weary day; But the great ships grow with each sturdy blow

As they steadily toil away. For battles are won by labor As well as by gleaming blades, And the riveters' roar may avail us more

Than the splutter of cannonades They toil in the smoky shadows Afar from the field of fame, But each willing heart plays a mighty part

In a great and splendid game. And when it is done and over Their names will all be found On the shining scroll of the honor roll

When the glory is going 'round! —Pay the President.

TONS OF SWEETS FOR THE BOYS IN FRANCE

Five hundred tons of jams! This is one of the items that will be required monthly by the American Red Cross organization in France in connection with its work among the troops of the American Expeditionary Forces. No wonder it is necessary for the folks at home to go a little easy on sugar.

This 500 tons of jam was one of the items for which the Red Cross commissioner to France cabled, for the distribution through American Red Cross Postes de Secours in the army zone, through hospital representatives at army hospitals, and to some extent at canteens. Having his estimates on a sliding scale to provide for the number of American troops it is expected that by the end of the year, the commissioner stated that he would require certain quantities of supplies, among the other articles listed being 200 tons of chocolate, 50 tons of cocoa, and large quantities of gum, tooth brushes and miscellaneous supplies. The commissioner's cable stated that, in the confusion of battle, troops in many cases have entirely lost their personal belongings; and the same thing is invariably true of men sent to the hospitals. A supply of the articles named, in the hands of the Red Cross, is particularly desirable.

Kiersey-McKinney.

A pretty wedding took place at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Miss Mary McKinney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. McKinney, 791 Harrison street, became the bride of A. F. Kiersey of the civil engineering department of the Santa Fe railroad, the ceremony being conducted by Rev. Mr. Gates, pastor of the First Baptist church. The wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, in the presence of only a few intimate friends and relatives.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Kiersey left over the leaves for Cleburne, where the groom's parents reside, and they will visit Dallas and other points in central and north Texas before their return.

Mrs. Kiersey is a graduate of the local high school and has made a place for herself in local literary circles. She was married in her graduating dress, all white, and carried a beautiful bouquet of pink and white roses. She left in a neat suit of blue tulle with accessories in match.

Mr. Kiersey will be remembered by many as a member of the choir of the First Presbyterian church. He is also editor of the Amarillo column of the Santa Fe Machine.

Campaign for Nurses Continues.

On account of the recent offensive at the Marine, Surgeon General Gorham will call upon the Red Cross to enroll 1,000 trained nurses a week for ten weeks. The emergency is acute and requires extraordinary effort on the part of chapter nursing committees. The Red Cross can render high service at this time by encouraging the enrollment of trained nurses for military service.

A Berry Patch Resort.

This is a true story of events which happened in the days before there was any call for conservation. There is all the more need for making it come true now.

A family of five—mother, father, two boys and the baby—decided to go somewhere for an outing. They left morning about 5 o'clock, they left the house with a car filled with packs of all sorts and sizes, a wash-bath or two, and the necessary camping equipment. Father stored the old machine toward a blueberry patch, which was miles away, and before nightfall they set up camp right in the middle of the patch.

If you have never done it you can't imagine the joy of camping in the midst of a blueberry patch. When you close your eyes at night, blueberries as large as watermelons hang in giant bunches before your eyes. In the daytime you feel like a six-year-old, who has suddenly been made general manager of a candy store.

The family picked and picked. Even the baby sat on a blanket and filled a tin cup without moving from place to place. The family went home with the wash tub full of berries in the back seat and the boys riding on the running board.

This is a good time in which to imitate this thrifty family. No crop of berries is too large or too small to be neglected. A dish of fresh fruit for breakfast or a pint put up for winter is worth while. If you haven't time to clean off the few bushes in the pasture lot, let the neighbor's children do it.

Camping parties are the best solutions for taking care of the huge berry crops which go to waste yearly in almost every state. Instead of taking a 500-mile trip to a summer resort take it to a berry patch. Blackberries, red raspberries, blueberries and several other kinds are abundant in many localities. Search them out and save them for winter.

French soldiers, who are in German prison camps, get two packages of clothing and other necessities a week from home.

Persons who hold to the old notion that French women do no work outside their own homes should see the rooms of the old Hotel de Ville in Lyons, France, any day in the week. No Red Cross work room in this country is a busier hive of workers.

Not only are the packages for French men held as prisoners in Germany made up there by French women, but the same women collect and distribute clothing for refugees. Further reaching of all, possibly, is a directory of every individual and family in France which they are getting together. This bureau, which already fills several large rooms, has brought together hundreds of scattered and lost members of refugee families.

In close cooperation with this work is what the American women in the same city are doing for girls and women who are working in the great munition plants. Three social centers, all with canteens, are in operation in Lyons under the direction of the war work council of the Young Women's Christian association. One needs only to see the French ladies and munition girls mingling in these rooms at the noon hour to see how democracy is making strides in Europe.

The munition girls and women are of all classes and ages. Although the men employees are of every nation—Japanese, American, Mexican, Portuguese—every nation the girls are all French. Many are refugees. Some belong to old French families, dislocated by the war. Multitudes have lost every relative and friend. There are daughters, mothers and grandmothers among them.

The Y. W. C. A. social rooms are the only places that many have in which to spend out of work hours. They are made pretty with bright hangings, attractive furniture and flowers. There are sewing and writing tables, comfortable chairs, even sewing machines and in some cases ironing boards. There are games, entertainments and quiet corners for varying tastes. The girls may entertain their men and women friends there. To the girls these rooms are home.

"TARZAN OF THE APES" THRILLS LARGE CROWDS AT OLYMPIC THEATRE

Says a New York review: Olympic got a distinct thrill last night with the production on the screen of the astonishing story of "Tarzan of the Apes." The daring plot was unfolded with such realistic effect that the audience which overflowed the Olympic theater burst into enthusiastic acclaim at the many startling situations caught by the camera in the heart of a forest in wildest Brazil. Of course, the novel that set the world by the ears was built around a plot laid in Africa. But the moving picture artist who screened the production last night had all the settings necessary for the scenes, from the vigorous elephant who pushed over a tree that stood in his path to the widest of lions, tigers, jaguars, crocodiles, monkeys, apes, chimpanzees, gorillas and what not. The wild animals figured all through the production from the first act to the finish, and the way they were introduced at times gave such a shock to the audience as to cause an uncanny sense of fear. In the foyer on entering there were some trained apes and stuffed figures of other denizens of the forest, which were doubtless intended to be a psychological preparation for the treat to come inside. But that stunt, while amusing, was really unnecessary, because the pictures themselves were so daring and natural that not even the famous Rainey films approached them.

The story of Tarzan is so well known that it is needless to call it into this review. It did not seem possible to catch in action in the jungles this strange personality of the faney of Edgar Rice Burroughs. And yet the picture went the range of the extraordinary developments of the story. The scenes included the meeting on shipboard, the battle between cannibals and white men, the fight to the death between Tarzan and the lion, and the no less thrilling struggle with the gigantic negro chieftain.

After setting for the scenes in the old English family home were just as well done as the fearsome ones in the wilds. One can well imagine that, as the program says, $100,000 was spent on the production.

Gordon Griffith as Tarzan the boy was matchless. There was a simplicity that was convincing and a naivete that showed the true artist. Elmo Lincoln as Tarzan the man held the audience at his beck. His wonderful agility and muscular power were not a whit better than his emotional strength, shown for all too brief a spell in the closing scene.

The one word to describe the picture is marvelous.

The production will be shown again today and tomorrow. It pleased large crowds yesterday.

Calomel Purified of All Objections

Chemists Hit Doctors' Favorite Medicine of Nauseating and Dangerous Qualities. New Variety Called "Calotabs."

A triumph of modern pharmacy that is destined to bless the whole world—that is the opinion of physicians and druggists who are familiar with the new remedy that is wholly free from the objectionable effects of the old-style calomel.

An occasional purifying of the system and thorough cleansing of the liver are absolutely essential to health, and as all doctors know, calomel is the only drug that accomplishes this result. Now that the unpleasant and dangerous effects are entirely removed, the popularity of the new calomel, Calotabs, will be greatly increased. Its effect is delightful, its action is positive, a swallow of water that's all. You wake up next morning feeling fine, your liver cleansed, your system purified and with a healthy appetite for breakfast. But what you please—no nausea. No restrictions of habit or diet.

Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents. Your druggist recommends and guarantees their quality.

OBEDIENCE GOES NORTH TO CONSIDER FINANCES

W. G. Green, president of the National Bank of Commerce of this city, left yesterday morning for Kansas City to look after the great reorganization now in progress on the financial conditions of the great southwest and of which these cities and financial institutions are the beneficiaries. Mr. Green will look after the interests of the bankable country and Amarillo while gone and this trip will probably be of some early benefit to our people in general.

L. L. JOHNSON RETIRES FROM SANTA FE ROAD, TO BECOME MERCHANT

L. L. Johnson, agricultural and industrial agent of the Santa Fe railway in the southwest, retires today from active railway service to enter mercantile business in Colorado Springs. He came to Amarillo early in 1911 as assistant to H. M. Rainey, at that time in charge of agricultural development work along the Santa Fe in Texas and New Mexico. In September, 1916, when Mr. Rainey was transferred to Topeka, Mr. Johnson was placed in charge of this territory. No successor has been named and it is likely that the vacancy will not be filled during the war.

When the Santa Fe railway spread its lines over the virgin plains of Texas and New Mexico, men were employed to study conditions and aid development. Men like Mr. Rainey and Mr. Johnson have worked faithfully in helping along the rapid growth that has come over this section the last ten years. For the past two years Mr. Johnson has given much attention to the dairy industry, which is now becoming established. Mr. Johnson will be missed in this section where he knew conditions and the best methods in safe and sane farming.
