and head. She ached all over. It began in the morning, by noon she was in bed and began taking and Anti-Pain Pills as recommended. In a day or two she was well and we are sure that if she had taken Dr. Miles' Nervine at the very first symptoms she would have prevented the attack.

LaGrippe usually leaves its victims in a weakened condition as the fever and pains quickly sap one's vitality. To enable the nervous system to recover from this depression no remedy is better than Dr. Miles' Nervine.

ONE OF THE IMMORTALS

The Speech of Abraham Lincoln on the Battlefield of Gettysburg.

Of the many strong and beautiful utterances of Lincoln none are equal in beauty and power to his brief speech at the dedication of the battlefield at Gettysburg, Pa. Because of the marvelous patriotism, beauty and pathos it contains, we give it here in the belief that such utterances, which might almost be called inspired, cannot be placed before the people too often nor can we become too familiar with them.

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here; but it can never forget what they did here.

"It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Dr. and Mrs. Douglas left immediately for Burnside, Ky., where they will reside.

DANGER TO CHILDREN.

Serious illnesses often result from lingering coughs and colds. The hacking and coughing and disturbed sleep rack a child's body and the poisons weaken the system, so that disease cannot be thrown off. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has eased coughs, colds and croup for three generations; safe to use and quick to act. There is no better medicine for croup, coughs and colds. For sale by Reed & Burnett.

The thirty-first commencement of Pleasant Hill Academy is in progress today. There are eleven graduates this year. The work being done by Prof. W. E. The editor of the Chronicle reached home Monday morning after a visit of two days with the family of Judge S. C. Brown at Athens and other friends in Knoxville. Judge Brown and family are pleasantly situated and are enjoying their home in this pleasant little educational city where the famous Grant University is located and where he received his education. Athens is the best location he could possibly have for convenience in reaching the several counties of his circuit. He can leave home Monday morning and reach any county for work the same day with the single exception of Roane county. Judge Brown is making a splendid record on the bench and so well is he liked that there seems no likelihood that he will have opposition for re-election. Mrs. S. C. Bishop and her father, Samuel Cline, have been visiting Judge Brown and family at Athens and other friends in Knoxville for two weeks. They will likely return home this week. They were accompanied by little Miss Cora Lee Keyes, who has been visiting her mother in Knoxville.

We are unable to give a weather forecast this week as the government report failed to arrive on the morning mail as it usually does. During the rain storm last night lightning killed a mule in the barn of Tom Hale. Mr. Hale is a man of limited means and the loss is a heavy one to him.

There may be some speaking at the cemetery by some of our local people. A union service will be held at the Baptist church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The sermon will be preached by Judge C. E. Snodgrass. All old soldiers in the county, with their families are especially invited to be present. It is hoped the people of the town generally will turn out and with their presence manifest that patriotic spirit which is due the day.

The editor of the Chronicle and Circuit Clerk T. F. Brown recently visited the home of B. D. Lemert two miles south of town. We found that in three years Mr. Lemert had gotten forty acres of land under a very fair state of cultivation and is working along lines that would seem to mean sure success. If any person in this county thinks lime is not the thing to use to insure a good stand of clover, it will pay him well to visit the Lemert farm and see what the writer saw. If they are not then converted to the need and success of lime on clover they are hopeless and it is not worth while to argue with them. Where he used lime he has a splendid stand of red clover and where no lime was used there is no clover of consequence. The ground in both instances having had identically the same treatment. It is only a question of a short time until practically every farmer in the county will be using lime on his land with the result that there will be much more clover grown and better crops of all kinds as a result of growing clover.
