COURT'S CONVENE:

Circuit Court—First Monday in February, June and October.
Chancery Court—First Tuesday after fourth Monday in February and first Tuesday after first Monday in August.

Wednesday, June 23, 1915.

CAN'T PLEASE,

Within a few days we have been good naturedly taken to task for what we said in the issue of the Chronicle last week under the head of "Overriding Justice." The person who remonstrated with us felt that we were putting things so hard for the law violators that it would be next to impossible for them to get a "fair deal."

It is quite amusing: We seem to be unable to suit either faction. Those who stand for law and order seem to feel that we give the law violators and the things indulged in that are not sanctioned by the churches of the town, more prominence than they deserve. On the other hand those who are charged with law violations seem to feel that we are unreasonably severe.

It is another demonstration that it is "damned if you do and damned if you don't." We see no course open to us except to satisfy our own personal ideas of what is fair and right and stand the criticisms the best we can.

While former president Taft and other gentlemen are working for universal peace, they have one of the hardest tasks on their hands that ever fell to the lot of men.

When the time comes that nations will bind themselves to agree to maintaining peace by force, there will be no need for the force. No nation is willing to leave its destinies in the hands of the other world powers, and there is where the difficulty comes in carrying out the force plan.

SOME COMPLIMENT.

It is not often an editor hands himself a compliment.

But this is the exception, and that is just what we are doing, because a certain well known citizen of this community has and is persistently recognizing the value of this paper as a reliable disseminator of local news, and has paid us this compliment in a manner which speaks volumes for his knowledge of the good things of life.

He is not destitute of this world's goods, but he possesses the rare faculty of holding onto that which he gets, lest the pangs of poverty overtake him in his declining years.

He possesses a wide knowledge of local affairs, because he is a constant reader of this paper, and the knowledge extracted therefrom is turned to good account in his own behalf.

If an important event is soon to occur, he knows of it in advance, because he has read of it in this paper.

If there is a bargain to be had anywhere in the community he is promptly apprised of the fact, because of that, too, he has read in this paper.

And if an acquaintance is sick, or death has overtaken some member of a family, or the stork has paid a visit to the home of some friend, he is among the first to extend his condolences or congratulations—because of these, also, he has read the paper.

He is a man of wisdom—a pillar of strength—with a brain which absorbs to the utmost of the essence of life.

Few things escape his notice, for he is ever on the alert.

But the one thing which he never overlooks is this paper, and therein lies the compliment which we take unto ourselves. It gives us a feeling that we are something more than a mere worm in human shape, that we may be even a whole cog in the community wheel.

True he is not a subscriber to the

NEAR DEATH BY SMOTHERING

But Husband, With Aid of Cardui, Effects Her Deliverance.

Draper, N. C.—Mrs. Helen Dalton, of this place, says: "I suffered for years, with pains in my left side, and would often almost smother to death.

Medicines patched me up for awhile but then I would get worse again. Finally, my husband decided he wanted me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, so he bought me a bottle and I began using it. It did me more good than all the medicines I had taken.

I have induced many of my friends to try Cardui, and they all say they have been benefited by its use. There never has been, and never will be, a medicine to compare with Cardui. I believe it is a good medicine for all womanly troubles."

For over 50 years, Cardui has been relieving woman's sufferings and building weak women up to health and strength.

If you are a woman, give it a fair trial. It should surely help you, as it has a million others.

Get a bottle of Cardui to-day.

paper—his $1.50 never reaches this office—but he reads the paper just the same.

For his neighbor is a subscriber and pays in advance, and in his generosity he lends the paper to the "pillar of strength"—by request.

But it may not always be so. In time we have hopes that the "pillar" will quit us the super-compliment of permitting us to add his own name to our subscription list—paid in advance, of course.

Time sometimes works wonders, even in the newspaper field.

And we have hopes, strong hopes.

ALAS FOR DAYS OF ROMANCE

One by One the Strongholds of the Novelist Are Being Wrested From Him.

One by one the abodes of romance and mystery—likewise of discomfort and barbarism—get progressive and pass away. The latest place to join the procession appears to be Bangkok, capital of Siam, and home of the sacred white elephant.

Perhaps that elephant still trumpets from the royal gardens, but he soon will be transferred to a zoo and become a spectacle instead of a holy emblem. For Bangkok not only has installed an electric power station, but is using the surplus current of daylight hours to run rice mills. In the presence of that sort of "efficiency" old-time romance sickens and dies.

Its loss is not without compensation, to be sure. Electric fans, for example, must be handy to a place like Bangkok, whose average temperature throughout the year is about 81 degrees Fahrenheit. But what knight ever waited for an electric fan when rescuing his lady love from a mysterious zenana, and what fun is there in raiding a sultan's treasure that is guarded by common-place burglar alarms instead of by white cobras? Alas and alack! Romance has departed from Bangkok, and the geographical novelist is driven from one more stronghold of the imagination.

SOMETHING OF A PUZZLE

Question Concerning Femininity Which Is Not At All Easy to Answer.

From a feminine source comes a question which is more easily answered at first than at second thought—a question, that is, which is not quite as simple as it seems. It is this: Does a woman wearing a veil see, when she looks in a mirror, what another person sees who looks at her through her veil?

On consideration one realizes that the veiled woman looks through her veil at an image which is itself veiled, and therefore she apparently looks at herself through two veils instead of the one which is all that dims to the vision of the street observer. Then there is the further fact that in a mirror what was right becomes left, and vice versa, so that what one sees there is not a picture of oneself but of somebody who is like oneself only as one of a pair of gloves is like the other.

That, however, has nothing to do with the question as to the veils, and that is quite complicated enough to stand alone.

Probably Not.

"A noted hunter tells in a magazine article how it feels to be awakened by lions."

"Presume that when one is awakened under such circumstances there is none of the usual temptation to doze just a few minutes longer."

Cause and Effect.

"I wonder why it is so damp and foggy in London?"

"It's the fault of their government."

"How do you make that out?"

"They have such long reigns there."

Should Be More Careful.

Nagsby—What impresses you most in this European war?

Wagsby—The carelessness of France and England in building their capitals so close to where Emperor Wilhelm seems to want his battle-line placed.
