

A FRIEND IN NEED A FRIEND INDEED

Writes Mrs. Hardee Regarding
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I must tell you that I am a true friend to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it off and on for twenty years and it has helped me change from a delicate girl to a stout, healthy woman. When I was married I was sick all the time until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in bed much of my time with pains and had to have the doctor every month. One day I found a little book in my yard in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and I read it through and got the medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and took eight bottles and used the Sanative Wash. I at once began to get stronger. I have got many women to take it just by telling them what it has done for me. I have a young sister whom it has helped in the same way it helped me. I want you to know that I am a 'friend indeed,' for you were a 'friend in need.'"
—Mrs. GEORGE HARDEE, 1043 Byram St., Los Angeles, California.

Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound be a "friend indeed" to you.

Slimmer Lines for New Coats

The clothes for each new season, when shown for the first time, naturally give rise to a great deal of discussion of fashions. They seem to turn things topsy-turvy in the realm of clothes for a few weeks at least. There is usually a universal impression that "here are to be radical changes in fashions—an impression, observes a fashion writer in the New York Tribune, which is made by the multitude of ideas set adrift to be picked up by any buyer who fancies any one of them.

In very few weeks, however, the best that has been shown in dress is adopted. We have not had any dress tic changes in fashions or anything very bizarre worn in a number of years.

Wraps of various sorts are claiming a great deal of attention at the present time. The one-piece dress, so universally worn, has made the separate coat very important. It took coat-makers some time to realize the harvest in store for them through the popularity of the one-piece dress. During the years that it has been the backbone of every woman's wardrobe the two-piece suit has periodically been thrust before the public in some guise in the hope that it would win its old place in popular favor.

Slimmer Outline.

Various measures of success rewarded those who backed these movements. Women always like a change, and each time the tailored suit has been forced to the foreground they have eagerly ordered it, but the demand has quickly died out again.

One of the most definite tendencies in street coats for this autumn is toward slimmer lines. While they cannot be described as fitted coats, they are more on the lines of the chemise frock—that is, very straight and of slender appearance. In fact, many of them look almost like dresses. Sleeves

WRAP TO MATCH EACH GOWN

Black velvet wraps lined with white ermine or rabbit are among the luxurious models for this winter. Designers consider it well worth their while to spend a great deal of their valuable time on the evening wrap. For many seasons, while it was more or less of a costly affair, it was quite uninteresting.

Few changes were made in it from season to season, the reason for this being that most women bought only one evening wrap during the season, or perhaps one in two or three seasons. Now those who have only one evening wrap for the entire winter are very old-fashioned, indeed. Smart women who can possibly afford it have an evening wrap to match or harmonize with each dress.

An interesting fashion note is the making of evening bags, purses or vanity cases to match each wrap. This is a very clever idea, in which dressmakers and bag makers have united.

Gorgeous Fabrics.

Gorgeous fabrics will hold the center of the fashion stage during the of street coats are diminishing in size, thus adding to the slimmness of the garment.

Velours de laine is still one of the favorite materials for daytime coats. A model in this fabric and typical of the latest developments in coats is trimmed with fine tucks, a type of trimming which seems to increase in popularity daily. An additional bit of trimming is added by the slashed panels at either side, which are bound with braid. In colors, various shades of brown and black are favored.

Fancy beige and black cloth are used for another model. The background of the cloth is beige repp, the stripe being in the form of a black cord which looks almost like an applied trimming of fine black braid.

Demand for Coatlike Frocks.

Coatlike frocks give their wearers a trim, well-dressed appearance, and for this reason they should be exceedingly popular. This type of costume for years has been dear to the smartly dressed French woman, who long has recognized its desirable qualities. It took the American woman some time to adopt it, for she ever has been a staunch adherent of the tailored suit for street wear, but each season for the past few years has seen a further departure from the suit for women who have passed the flapper age. They have come to see that one is really never well dressed in a blouse and skirt after removing the jacket of a suit, and it is not possible to wear the suit jacket both indoors and out. To do so interferes with one's comfort.

Fur is very important as a trimming this season. Such furs as rabbit and squirrel are being dyed to exactly match cloths. These will prove formidable rivals to the more costly pelts.

Many of the new fur collars on cloth coats are of the standing variety, flaring from the neckline. The same type of collar is used on evening wraps. It may be made entirely of fur or of fabric edged with fur, such as monkey skin. There is no abatement in the demand for monkey fur. This demand makes one wonder where all the monkey fur is to come from, for the fact is well known that this prolonged vogue has threatened the extermination of the monkey.

Autumn Evening Wraps.

While daytime wraps are slender, those for evening wear are voluminous. In the matter of color, too, the pendulum swings far in the opposite direction. The shades for evening are as vivid as those for daytime are subdued.

In materials velvets and metallic brocades lead. Plain metallic cloths woven on a background of color are most effective. They are used either alone or with handsome fur trimmings or in combination with velvet.

The evening wraps being prepared for this winter are extremely magnificent in fabric, in embroidery and fur trimmings. Linings are exceedingly beautiful. Often a velvet brocaded chiffon is used to veil a lining of silk.

Old-fashioned shirring is used profusely on evening wraps. It is seen in both vertical and horizontal lines. This is a favorite method of ornamenting upstanding collars which are edged with fur.

The amount of embroidery being used on fall clothes indicates that those making the models for the new season firmly believe that women have not tired of this way of ornamenting apparel—and, after all, they are perfectly justified in this supposition, for it is one of the oldest methods of trimming and one of which the feminine world apparently has never become weary.

coming autumn. At the beginning of every new season strenuous efforts are made to divert attention from the previous season's styles, but since dressmakers realize that it is next to impossible to compel the present-day woman to adopt a new silhouette they have turned their attention toward fabrics and trimmings.

There is something so pre-eminent,ly youthful about the simple, straight-line dress, which has become almost a uniform, that it is difficult to persuade women to accept anything else, although dresses with a bouffant tendency are claiming considerable attention for evening wear. With so little change in silhouette it is logical that fabrics and trimmings should become more interesting.

For the evening there are gorgeous Oriental brocades in velvet, satin and lame, together with embroideries in metal and silk heavily weighted with crystal beads, bugles and cabochons. There are fabrics studded with steel, gold and imitation jewels. Lame, especially in silver effects, is extremely popular.

Possibly Taking No Chances.

Two tired men—the sort of men who are always tired—were talking about the forthcoming election in their town, and discussing the rival candidates.

"Now, that Mr. Pusher is a good sort!" said one.

"I'm not so sure of that," replied the other. "But what makes you think that?"

"Why, did you notice how heartily he shook hands with me?"

"Yes, I did," replied his friend.

"He wasn't content with one hand, he grabbed both. He's a good fellow, he is."

The other looked at him thoughtfully for a moment. Then he said: "Yes, and he's very proud of his gold watch!"

Ability wins us the esteem of true men, luck that of the people.

Too Late in the Day.

A woman and her small son were passing a candy store one afternoon, when the boy noticed a window in which a heap of all-day suckers were on display.

"Oh, mamma!" cried the boy, "I want an all-day sucker!"

Catching him firmly by the hand, she dragged him away from the window, saying: "Robert, you must not tease mother like that. What do you want of an all-day sucker at four o'clock in the afternoon?"—Judge.
