The Association of the Red Cross.

CLARA H. BARTON.
The president of the American Association of the Red Cross, Miss Clara H. Barton, who is justly entitled to this recognition for the humanitarian work she has done. A native of Massachusetts, she held a clerkship in the patent office prior to the war, and on the commencement of hostilities immediately volunteered her aid in caring for the wounded. From April, 1861, until the close of the war she was actively engaged on the field and in the hospitals. After the war she organized the bureau of records of missing men, an appropriation being made by congress to enable her to maintain this bureau.

His Presence of Mind.

[Philadelphia Press.]
A certain lady, who is not unknown in Philadelphia society, has been twice a widow, but is now the pride of a third husband. The lady alludes to her husbands as her "first," "second" and "present." She often relates pleasant memories of husband 1 and 2. The latter she describes as a man who always endeavored to appear perfectly cool and collected on every occasion. One summer they were staying at a hotel and were aroused in the middle of the night by an alarm of fire. The flames were burning furiously, but the husband calmly said to his wife, "Dress carefully, my dear, just as much as if you were preparing for a ball." Well, they finally left the room and got out on the lawn in safety, with their portmanteaus even rescued. The husband immediately began to dilate upon the advantage of always taking things coolly, to which his wife replied that she thoroughly agreed with him, but still she begged to remind him "that he had forgotten to put on his inexpressibles," and he had.

The recently elected secretary of state in Ohio, Gen. James S. Robinson, is an old war veteran. He entered the war as a volunteer in the three months' service. He was with the "Iron Brigade" in the west, he served in West Virginia and in the army of the Potomac; commanded a brigade at Gettysburg where he was severely wounded. In the transfer of his brigade to the west, he accompanied it as a brigade commander. He was breveted general at the solicitation of Gen. Joseph Hooker and Gen. John A. Logan.

Ohio's Present Secretary of State.

JAMES W. NEWMAN.
Mr. Newman, the present secretary of state in Ohio, who was elected by the Democrats two years ago, is the editor and proprietor of The Times at Portsmouth, Ohio. He is a man of pronounced ability and in the prime of life.

Life: When a man sets about painting the town red, he very seldom uses water colors.
