

EROS.

Louise Chandler Moulton in The Manhattan. Fill the swift days full, my dear, Since life is brief—

How did Paganini play? Now like an angel, now like a demon—never like a mortal man.

His performance had the effect of flashes of lightning in a dark room. While he played a nervous tremor went through his whole frame, shaking, thin and specter-like as it was, and from his gloomy eyes there flashed a deep, intense, raging fire.

Egyptian Women on the Nile.

The only primitive costumes we saw was on the first day after leaving Assouan on the left bank—the country of the Katabah—where the young ladies simply wore round the loins a fringe composed of thin leather strips.

Others, again, mathematize you according to fashion extending all over the east, even among the Greeks of Constantinople, by holding up their hand palm outward, and jerking it towards you.

An Interesting Tradition.

In the early part of the eighteenth century a very old lady sat to Thomas Hudson, the portrait painter, who was born in 1701. She told that artist that when she was quite a little girl she had sat to Sir Anthony Van Dyck, then in the height of his fame, and living in great state in the then fashionable quarter of Blackfriars.

The Age of Decoration.

A young man called at the box office of the Baldwin theatre the other day and handed the treasurer a suspicious-looking roll of paper.

After They Are Gone.

Nobody's understanding is so much superior to the rest of mankind as to be missed in a week after they are gone. There is not a great banker that breaks who does not distress more people than the disgrace of retirement of the greatest minister that ever presided in a cabinet.

A Respectable Man.

Mr. Carruthers used to relate with much glee that he escorted the great Sir Robert Peel to the battlefield of Culloden, and pointed out to him the graves of the Highland warriors who had been slain in that fatal encounter.

Bill Nye Waives a Filthy Habit. I have again renounced the pernicious and terrible tobacco habit. Most every year I quit smoking and lead a different life for several weeks, and it is a pleasure that I would not forego.

Tobacco is a filthy weed—that is, it is a poisonous and venomous plant this week. It will be so till further notice. I remember very well the struggle I had to break off last winter. The doctor said I never would have flesh enough on my bones to catch a shrimp if I didn't stop the use of tobacco, so I stopped.

"My pipe was a solace when lonely." sort of vice. But I wanted to get fat, so one day when I was over at Bootjack Camp I threw my pipe over into the woods as far as the strength of a great resolution could send it.

I can still remember how it went hustling through the air, and how I went hustling through the air, the following week, on my hands and knees hunting for it.

It was about those days that I rashly resolved to keep a diary. It hardly shows the marks of use, but I will sell it at a reasonable price to any one desiring an easy running diary, with a place in it to stick the pencil when not in use.

Jan. 3.—I am getting a little bit irritable I notice, and several of my friends have called my attention to it. A policeman first mentioned it to me down town. Guess we can fix it up for $5 or $6. I shall have to get a new coat and, perhaps, a new nose. I cannot tell you yet as to the nose. When the swelling goes down, so I can see over it better, I shall be better able to judge.

When I started out I announced in this volume that I would quit the use of tobacco and keep a diary. I shall continue to do so, making, however, a slight change in the arrangement, by which I shall keep the tobacco and quit the use of the diary.

A Home Thrust.

Mrs. Proudpuise—It just gives me the blues to read about these matrimonial mesalliances. A girl should marry her equal in wealth as well as in station, say I. Young Poorfellow (secretly in love with Mrs. Proudpuise's daughter)—I know of a beautiful heiress who eloped with a boot-black.
