

and started for town by way of the beach. He had not gone far when he saw a group of the rebels. One man called out to him to stop, but the rider whipped up his animal and soon got out of range of the guns.

At 5:30 o'clock Major Potter informed Mr. Isenberg that the Waialae road was open to town. The party then came in.

Mr. Isenberg stated that on Sunday morning his milkman started out and before he had gone a great distance the rebels stopped him and took six cans and then made him turn back.

All of the natives employed by Mr. Isenberg left him on Sunday afternoon. A number of them had worked for him for years. Several of the men knew that his brother was held by the rebels, but they said nothing.

The ladies who were detained state that shots were fired at them by the rebels. They recognized William Greig, Sam Nowlein, Robert Wilcox, J. P. Biphikane and several other royalists.

Robert Wilcox came to town yesterday morning. He was seen at the postoffice about seven o'clock.

DIAMOND HEAD STORMED.

Cannonading Against the Rebels from Three Points.

Three pieces of artillery did a great deal yesterday towards settling the impending revolution. One was used on the Waikiki road, a second at Mollili, and the third at sea. The last was fastened on board of the tug Eleu. The cannonading stopped the retreat of the rebels, and it is now almost an assured fact that they were forced up the sides of Diamond Head, and are now resting on the top of the old crater.

The firing at Mollili was rapid, and proved to be effective. The storming caused the surrender of fourteen men, who were caught in a tight place. They saw that resistance would not be of any avail.

The firing from the sea cut off any retreat in the direction of Waialae. The presence of sixty-five men on the Waikiki road prevented any escape towards the city. These were under command of Lieutenant Coyne, who was sent out during the morning with a field piece and additional men. They did most of the firing during the morning. Previous to the arrival of Lieutenant Coyne, a squad of men, under command of Lieutenant King, had an exciting time, but fortunately no men were wounded. He had possession of the Bertelmann premises during Sunday night, and remained there until early yesterday morning, when a continuous shower of bullets caused them to beat a retreat.

The fire came from the rebel camp on the side of Diamond Head. The men could be seen plainly by the militia, but they were safe from the latter's rifles owing to their secure position. Lieutenant King's men returned the fire for about an hour's time and then withdrew to the Waikiki road. The rebels peppered the Bertelmann house until one of the sides resembled a sieve. While all this was going on Mrs. Bertelmann and her children were in the house. She was told to move to a safer place, but she persisted in staying in the house, and did not leave until the firing ceased.

Some hours later Lieutenant Coyne arrived on the scene with the field piece. It was in charge of H. J. Rhodes, an experienced gunner. It was placed in the park and trained for the highest peak on Diamond Head. The aim was a good one, the shell striking the side of the peak causing earth to be thrown in all directions. It could not be ascertained if any one had been killed, but the supposition is that at least one man was torn to pieces. He was attired in white clothes and to make himself more conspicuous, had kept up a continuous firing during the morning. After the first shell exploded he was seen no more. The shelling evidently caused consternation in the ranks of the rebels as they made an attempt to retreat down the Waikiki side of the mountain. The cannon was trained again and a 10-pound percussion bomb was thrown against the side of the crater only lower than the first time. The retreating men became frightened again and returned to their original position. Their forms could be seen distinctly from the Waikiki road, but they were out of range of an ordinary rifle. As soon as they regained the ridge they sent a volley toward the soldiers, but the bullets fell harmless in the road. A third shot was fired. It went over the heads of the rebels, and Lieutenant Coyne then decided to move the fieldpiece further along the road and several more shots were fired. A rest was then taken. In the meantime the firing from Diamond Head lessened a great deal until it seemed that only one or two men remained as a blind while the others retreated. Some in the direction of Waialae and others towards the Palolo valley.

Things remained very quiet until about 2:30 o'clock when a picket sound an alarm. In a moment every man was at his post and ready for an attacking party. It turned out later that two Chinese and a demented Portuguese was the cause of the alarm. Word was telephoned out that Captain Zeigler and a squad of men, with a cannon, were marching to reinforce the members of the Citizens' Guard who had successfully defended their position at Mollili. The militia arrived at the place mentioned about 3 o'clock, and a few moments later the firing commenced. Shell after shell was sent up Palolo valley which caused the rebels to change their position and run towards Diamond Head again. The cannon was moved to the road leading to Waialae and several shots were sent towards the sea.

About 4 o'clock the tug Eleu arrived off the shore near Diamond Head and commenced an onslaught. A number of shots were fired. The timely arrival of the tug cut off a possible retreat of the royalists. After the tug commenced firing operations at Captain Zeigler's station were at a standstill for some time. A telephone message later conveyed the information that fourteen men had surrendered.

There seems to be some doubt regarding the supply of food in the rebel camp. It is said that they have enough provisions to last them some time; then again, it is claimed that they have nothing to eat at all, unless they robbed "Charlie" Peterson at the Signal Station. He usually keeps a supply on hand to last him a month. It will not last them very long if the report of their number is correct. From their position, it is impossible to make an estimate. A local royalist remarked yesterday that 100 men were on the top of the mountain. The soldiers who were shot at during the morning say that they saw at least fifty men.

Regarding their supply of arms and ammunition, it is said to be good. It is understood that they have 100 extra stands of rifles, and, in addition, possess a three-inch gun, which is stationed on the mauka side of Diamond Head. There does not seem to be any doubt as to the means of the landing of the munitions of war. They were brought ashore from a schooner which hove to on Sunday morning. Just where the supply came from is a matter of conjecture, but it is believed the arms were shipped from San Francisco. It was reported around the military camp yesterday that the rebels have several prisoners in charge. They captured the people on Sunday to prevent them from coming into town and spreading an alarm.

A Japanese domestic employed by George Beckley was shot yesterday morning at Waikiki. He received two wounds in his right arm. He was sent into town for medical treatment. At dusk last night the general opinion seemed to be that the rebels will attempt to escape from their present position this morning. They will have a hard task, as they are now surrounded on every side.

Lieutenant Ludwig Wounded.

Lieutenant Ludwig, of Company F, was shot yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock. He was on the Mollili road at the time. A rebel stationed behind a rock fired at him, inflicting a flesh wound in one of his legs. The officer was sent into town for medical treatment. Up to midnight Ludwig was the only member of the Government's forces that was wounded, although a number of others had narrow escapes.

The Rebels Silenced.

About 11 o'clock last night the rebels fired a few volleys from Diamond Head without doing any damage. They were silenced by a shell from the cannon. The report of the gun was heard in town. At midnight everything was quiet, and it was thought that the royalists had changed their position. At the same hour everything was quiet at Captain Zeigler's camp, with prospects of a quiet night.

Incendiary Fire.

The frame schoolhouse on School street near Liliha, was discovered on fire about 9 o'clock last night. Some of "Billie" Hoogs' detail extinguished the flames before any damage was done. The fire was thought to be incendiary, as a portion of a woman's dress was found inside saturated with kerosene. No alarm was turned in.

Communications from outlying posts up to the hour of going to press show no change in the situation, everything being reported calm and serene.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY

FOR INVESTMENT.

It is proposed to place the Ostrich Farm of the late Dr. Trousseau on the market in January or February next. This farm is thoroughly equipped and now has thirty-four healthy birds on same, including the famous male ostrich Jumbo and Jno. L. Sullivan.

We believe that it can be demonstrated that this enterprise, new to these islands, but of long standing in Africa, New Zealand and California, can be now carried on at a profit as the experimental stage has been safely passed.

Mr. A. P. Jackson, the genial manager can always be found in attendance at the grounds.

We have on hand a large number of prime feathers in assorted colors from the last plucking which are easily worth $50 per pound and upwards according to quality. The next plucking takes place in January next. Prospectuses, information concerning the feather market and all necessary data will be furnished.

All reliable persons desirous of visiting the grounds can do so by first obtaining permits from the undersigned.
