

WALLACE R. FARRINGTON, - - EDITOR.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1896.

SENATOR McCANDLESS, who shows a disposition to favor the opium bill, holds his position in the Senate by virtue of the withdrawal of Hon. P. C. Jones in his favor. Mr. Jones does not, and never has favored any move toward the licensing of opium. In fact he is one of the strongest opponents of any such measure. While Senator McCandless has no strings tied to him and is perhaps under no personal obligations to change his private opinions to fit those of the man whose place he took, at the same time a stand for the opium bill will place him in a rather unfortunate position. Mr. Jones' constituents are now Mr. McCandless' constituents, and we are very positive that the latter could not secure a seat in the Senate as an opium candidate. As a politician, Senator McCandless must perforce have some consideration for the opinions of his constituents. Times have not changed to such an extent since the monarchy died that the people have forgotten what they were balloting for.

ANOTHER WAY OF MAKING MONEY.

The advocates of the opium bill, who have displayed such marked solicitude for the revenue of the country, will doubtless be interested in the results of the South Carolina dispensary law as shown in the recent report of the State Liquor Commission to the Governor. Various unauthorized statements of the workings of this law have been made public from time to time, but this is the first complete and authentic review that has been made.

The report covers a period of eleven months between February 1 and December 31, 1895. Within that time the State Dispenser shows that the local dispensaries sold liquor to the value of $1,076,963 95, on which the towns and counties netted a profit of $106,131 28. The profits to the State itself were $133,467 77 on $903,055 63 worth of sales made to the local dispensaries. An additional outstanding profit of $25,571 85 is claimed for the State, making a total profit to the State for the eleven months of $159,039 62. The profits of the towns and counties on retail sales were almost exactly 10 per cent., while the State's profits on wholesale dealings were about 16 per cent. The total profits to the State since the dispensary system went into operation, July 1, 1893, to December 31, 1895, a period of two and a half years, are placed at $243,816 57, an average of a little less than $100,000 a year.

The report has nothing to say on whether or no the new law has wrought any change in the disorders and crimes growing out of the use of liquor. The State Liquor Commissioner makes complaint that he has not proper facilities for filling orders, which the liquor men claim is an evidence that the new law has not diminished the amount of liquor consumed. While this complaint may not show that there is less drinking, on the other hand it does not prove that there is more. In fact, the law has not been in force long enough to draw any correct conclusions on either of these points, and the commissioner does well to fight shy of conjectures. As the machinery of the law has improved with use, however, the illicit sale of liquor has been largely decreased. Thus one point of the moralist has been gained. For the other features the people can afford to await the verdict which time and proper administration will give.

But we wish to call the particular attention of our opium friends to the financial gain brought about by the law. While we cannot state at this time the comparative returns such a law would give in this country, the percentage of profit is a good one and we venture to state that our Government could realize enough to build two or three roads for Hilo. Let the opium advocates be consistent. The same arguments they advance for opium will hold good for the liquor. They want money for public works. Here is an opportunity, and they will not be obliged to suffer political stultification in order to improve it. Let them, if possible, come off their hobby horses and call to mind the fact that there is more than one way for the Government to increase its revenue for public works.

UNDER the leadership of Rev. Mr. Birnie, Honolulu is doing what little it can to alleviate the sufferings of the Armenians. It is very little that we can do, but that small pittance of assistance shows the direction of the sympathies of many citizens of the Republic, and every little helps. It is to be hoped that the nucleus obtained from the collection Sunday will be largely increased before the sailing of the steamer on Wednesday. Now that this movement has once been started it ought to be taken up by the people on the other islands. Osmer Abbott may well be classed as one of the pioneers in stirring an interest in Armenia, and we trust that he, with others, may renew their efforts to make the expression of sympathy from Hawaii a most liberal one.

THE State of New York, with all its political corruption, can be given credit for having done one act in the interests of good politics. In the early part of this month Bat Shea, a ward heeler in the city of Troy, died in the electric chair for the murder of John Ross. During an election some two years ago Shea and his compatriots were engaged in "carrying" several wards of the city by manipulating a crowd of repeaters. Ross and his brother attempted to prevent the work of corruption, and the former was shot and killed in a scrimmage at the polls. It would be a good thing for the United States if more Bat Sheas received their just dues. Ward heelers would think twice before they began active operations.

ANNIE MAY ABBOTT, the Georgia "magnet" who passed through Honolulu recently, is amusing herself with the strong men of China and Japan. Japanese wrestlers, whose strength is celebrated the world over, were unable to raise Miss Abbott from the floor and she neutralizes their strongest efforts to lift the lightest objects from a table. The Japanese claim she has hypnotic power, while the Chinese consider her to be in league with the devil. Possibly Commissioner Marsden might give them a few points if they were anxious to discover the secret.

Imagination and Truth.

Imagination has a lot to do with some people's purchases. For instance, in buying beer they imagine that one beer is the same as another. They might as well imagine that all persons are exactly alike; that would not change the truth any. To put it briefly, you had better let some one else do the imagining; see to it that you get the best and purest and in that way your health will not be apt to suffer. You will make no mistake by drinking Seattle beer, which can be had at the Criterion saloon.
