WHAT IS NEEDED

Inspector to Properly Grade Hawaiian Coffee.

Losses Sustained Through Mistakes of Growers—Central Mill Needed.

(Communicated.)

If these Islands are to make and maintain a reputation as a coffee-growing country, one point must ever be kept in view, viz: The proper treatment of the berry for the market.

During the last season a considerable quantity of inferior coffee has been shipped to Honolulu, owing to careless handling and lack of proper facilities for curing the unusually large crop. The fine color and fragrant flavor of coffee, as of almost all other kinds of fruits grown, depend chiefly upon its ripeness. The coffee cherry must be fully ripe, and freshly picked from the tree before pulping. The next stage which requires careful handling is the curing process. The coffee which commands the highest price is that which has been the most carefully dried. This brings out the beautiful green-horn color, and hardness of the berry so much sought after by dealers.

While I have emphasized the proper picking and drying as important factors in the handling of coffee, I would not overlook the importance of milling and fanning. It is impossible for the grower, who has inadequate facilities for curing and crude machinery for hulling, to properly prepare his coffee for the market. From personal investigation, I believe that much hard labor would be saved, better results obtained and more money gained by sending coffee in the parchment to some central mill for hulling and cleaning.

All coffee planters will readily agree that it will be difficult for us to establish a reputation as a coffee-growing country if we continue to place upon the market an inferior product. Now, the question follows, How shall we secure a proper standard of coffee which will command a high market price, and at the same time give to these Islands the premier position which they deserve among the coffee-growing countries of the world? There is but one answer.

It is not the object of this article to deal with methods of inspection, but to press the immediate necessity for the establishment of a board of inspectors as imperative, for the following reason: Much coffee of an inferior grade is being placed upon the market as good coffee, thus depreciating the value of that which is really prime coffee. As five bad oranges will spoil the sale of a whole box of good oranges, so five pounds of bad coffee will spoil the sale of a whole bag of good coffee, or one bag of poor coffee may destroy the proper value of 20 bags of good coffee. China once controlled the tea markets of the world, because she produced the finest qualities of tea. Today she has lost her prestige and millions of dollars, in competition with other tea-producing countries, simply because she lacked systematic grading and inspection of the teas exported, thus permitting an inferior product to flood the markets as "pure China tea," and thereby injuring the sale of that which was truly genuine.

So it will be here. A class of faithful and earnest planters are straining every nerve in capital and energy, in order to make a success of coffee growing and place a prime article upon the market. These people should be rewarded for their efforts. But there is another class of "so-called" planters, who, through lack of knowledge, or lack of facilities for handling the crop, turn a soft, pale, discolored, insipid, unripe berry upon the market as "Kona coffee," or "Hawaiian coffee." And what is the result? The whole coffee industry of the Islands suffers in consequence.

This industry promises to be one of the most important of these Islands. This being true, it behooves us to look well to the foundations upon which we are to build for the future. Now is the time to move in this matter, while the coffee industry is yet in its formative stage, and secure the co-operation of the planters in the various districts of the Islands.

The fact that all the coffee shipped will be subject to a rigid inspection, will be an incentive to the employment of the best means and methods to produce a standard grade coffee. Whereas, if this matter of inspection is delayed until the plantations are more fully developed, it will meet with more or less opposition from those planters whose output does not meet the necessary requirements. Let all who are interested in the growing or buying and selling of coffee agitate this question of inspection, until it is an accomplished fact. This being done, our coffee will speak for itself in every market and better prices will be obtained. All lovers of the refreshing cup will come to know the genuine Hawaiian coffee by its peculiar subdued, delicate fragrance, and exhilarating qualities, and will demand it as essential to their comfort and refreshment.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. Foolish

To say much about our cut-glass, but then there are so many weddings this month, that it occurred to us that a suggestion might not come amiss.

Glass is such a close second to silver for wedding gifts, and you are so apt to choose the former, that we want to impress upon you again, the great merits of

Hawke's Cut-Glass

So much glass is on the market today—cut-glass to be sure, but finished in a cheap manner by dipping in acids, which gives it a temporary lustre, but which fades as soon as put in use—that extreme care must be exercised when purchasing this class of goods.

"Hawke's glass" being the finest in existence, no question need ever be raised as to its permanent finish. It is guaranteed to be hand finished throughout.

"Hawke's glass" is also the cheapest, because it has more honest cutting to the square inch than any other make at the same price; and above all it is the "whitest" glass in existence today.

Prices range from $2 to $50; a range sufficient for a purchase of any amount.
