A WARSHIP ON THE MISSISSIPPI.
Warships don't happen every day in the middle west, and consequently the trip of the cruiser Nashville up the Mississippi as far as St. Louis attracted considerable attention. Enormous crowds gathered at all the cities and towns by which Uncle Sam's sea fighter passed. Captain J. W. Bryan, a veteran steamboatman, piloted the Nashville.

FLOOD STORY.
It Is Distinguished by a Rush of Accounts of Incidents.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 15.—J. A.
Carson and Miss Maud Cranston, a young couple residing on Kootenai Lake, were married Tuesday under circumstances seldom paralleled in fiction. The preacher who was to tie the knot failed to appear at the home of the bride at the appointed time, so the bridal couple and relatives boarded the steamer Klondike on her trip down the Columbia River to Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, having decided to be married there. In passing the missing preacher's ranch, down the river, he was found a prisoner on the roof of his submerged residence, the valley having become flooded by a sudden rise of the river. He was rescued and taken aboard the steamer.

While he was changing his wet clothes the steamer made a brief stop at Rice's Landing, and two passengers came aboard with a rough pine coffin containing the corpse of James Carter, who was drowned in the river the day before. A bulldog also accompanied the men. When the preacher came on deck, wearing a suit of Capt. Newman's clothes, the bridal couple announced that they would have the wedding take place then and there.
The ceremony had proceeded almost to the point where the preacher was about to pronounce them man and wife, when Capt. Newman's dog and the bulldog got into a fight. In the midst of it they upset the coffin, which had been deposited on a couple of beer kegs. As it struck the deck, the homemade coffin burst open, spilling out the corpse. One glance at the dead man's features and the bride gave a scream and swooned away in the arms of the groom, for the corpse was that of a former lover to whom she had been engaged. Capt. Newman vouches for the story.

"There are None So Blind as Those Who Will Not See."

There are some people who cannot be convinced that white is white and black is black, because they are determined to have their own way about it.
Very good. Such people go through life missing the great truths and the greatest happiness as well as comfort.
There are others again who are convinced. It is to the men of this class that we like to talk about the merits of our clothing.
They are better than nine-tenths of the made-to-measure clothes turned out in this city and the equal of the other tenth.

Alfred Benjamin & Co.'s clothes cost about half the price of made to order clothes and have every desirable attribute of the very best made to measure garments, besides embodying many unmatchable features strictly their own. That is why we say investigate the merits of the clothes bearing this label before going to a tailor. You risk nothing and stand to win a lot.
