Y. M. C. A. ACTIVITY

Fall Season Has Now Opened.

AN AUSPICIOUS START

A Successful Reception—Much Work Outlined for Various Departments.

The fall work of the Young Men's Christian Association may be said to have fairly begun.

The autumn term of activity was inaugurated on Monday evening by one of the most successful receptions ever held in the history of the association. A great gathering of members and their friends was present, and sociability reigned supreme.

An enjoyable musical program was rendered, Messrs. J. E. Davis, Mariner, Hollander, Jeffrey and Stickney supplying excellent numbers, which were greeted with well deserved applause.

Physical Director A. J. Coats, after the music was over, outlined the work of the institution from a physical point of view. He spoke about the benefit of out-door work and urged upon the members the desirability of consistent athletic effort. Mr. Coats announced that an athletic meeting would be held next month under the auspices of the association, and recommended intending contestants to get into training as soon as possible. Tennis will be made a feature of the sports program in the near future, and it is expected that a first-class court will soon be constructed. Football will also be encouraged this season, and a team is already being organized. Mr. Coats stated that the prospects for the evening gymnasium classes were very encouraging, and that classes for business men would be held during the noon hour, as was the case last season. Indoor baseball and basketball will flourish as heretofore, and the number of devotees of these two health-giving pastimes is constantly increasing. The season will close next May with a record breaking athletic exhibition.

Rev. Silas P. Perry spoke at length on the religious work of the association, and said that no man can be said to be an all round man if his spiritual education has been neglected. He called particular attention to the Sunday devotional classes and the evangelistic work of the institution generally.

After Rev. Perry's remarks the gathering dispersed to enjoy the refreshments, and the remainder of the evening was passed in general good fellowship.

The date of the association field day has been fixed for October 13th, three weeks from next Saturday. The following is the complete list of events:

Fifty yards dash, 100 yards dash, 220 yards dash, 440 yards dash, 880 yards dash, 120 yards hurdles, 220 yards hurdles, pole vault, shot put, running high jump, running broad jump, twenty-five hop, step and jump, and standing broad jump.

The events will all be regulated by a handicap made by a committee appointed for that purpose. Entries must be made to A. J. Coats at the association, not later than Wednesday, October 10th. An entrance fee of twenty-five cents for members, and fifty cents for non-members will be charged. Silver and bronze badges will be given in each event. All events will be open, and invitations have been sent to Iolani, St. Louis, Kamehameha and Oahu colleges, as well as to the Male Inna Athletic Club and Mills Institute, to send representatives. There will be practice every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the Drill Shed ground for intending competitors. Apparatus for the various events will be provided, and all interested are cordially invited to attend.

The association prospectus has just been issued, and contains a mass of interesting and instructive information. The educational classes opened last evening with increased attendance in nearly every department. The classes are as follows:

Hawaiian Language—Tuesday and Thursday, 7 to 8 p. m., $2.

English—Wednesday and Friday, 7 to 8 p. m., $1.

Arithmetic, Elementary—Wednesday and Friday, 7 to 8 p. m., $1.

Arithmetic, Advanced—Wednesday and Friday, 8 to 9 p. m., $1.

Bookkeeping, Elementary—Tuesday and Thursday, 7 to 8 p. m., $1.

Bookkeeping, Advanced—Tuesday and Thursday, 8 to 9 p. m., $1.

Stenography—Tuesday and Thursday, 7 to 8 p. m., $1.

Typewriting—Thursday, 7 to 9 p. m., $2.

Mechanical Drawing—Wednesday and Friday, 7 to 9 p. m., $1.

Architectural Drawing—Friday, 7 to 9 p. m., $1. A class will be conducted if the demand is sufficient.

Triangle Literary Club—Monday, 7:30 to 9:30 p. m., 50 cents.

The Hawaiian language class will recite twice a week, which will enable the student to secure a good knowledge of the language in two terms. Mr. W. J. Coats, the teacher, is thorough and practical.

The object of the English course is to enable a young man to know how to use his own language in speech and in written style, correctly and fluently. The committee has arranged the course to be taken up in a practical way. The various forms in letter writing will be practiced, and the principles of grammar discussed in connection with it. Mrs. C. H. Brown will be the teacher.

There will be two classes in arithmetic, elementary and advanced, which will constitute a two years' course, covering all branches of practical business arithmetic. Teacher, Joseph P. Blacknell.

In bookkeeping there will be two classes, elementary and advanced. Mr. W. W. Bristol, the teacher, is preparing some special work which will illustrate the principles as well as give actual practice with different books and accounts.

The Perin system of stenography is taught. The diligent students are able to do practical work at the end of two terms. M. T. Bluxome, teacher.

The touch system of typewriting is taught, including lessons in punctuation and business forms. Machines may be used for practice at any time. H. E. Coleman, teacher.

In mechanical drawing the outline of the course by the international committee will be followed. The two classes, elementary and advanced, will be conducted, though there is opportunity for individual advancement. C. A. MacDonald, teacher.

Nearly forty students applied for admittance to the various courses offered at the night school last evening, and judging from this showing there will be a larger attendance than at any previous year during which the association has offered the work in the night school.

There were several applicants in the stenography course who desired to take the Pitman system, and if enough come who wish to study this system a special course will be established for them.

There were also a number of applicants for the course in penmanship, and a course in this branch may be established.

In the work in English special attention will be paid to letter writing, grammar and work of that kind that will make the course a practical one, and one that will supplement the business course.

The Triangle Literary Club is an organization of the members of the association for social and literary advantages. A meeting is held once a week. Miscellaneous literary programs are given by the members, and lectures from time to time are delivered before the club by outside talent. Every one who is a member of the association night school should be a member. The training to be gained through various work and study in such a club is invaluable. The plans for the fall meeting will be given in the Association Review.

First term opened September 15th, and closes December 11th. Second term opens January 2, 1901, and closes March 30, 1901.

The gymnasium classes have been arranged as follows:

Evening class, Tuesday and Friday, 7:45 to 8:30 o'clock; business men, Monday and Thursday 4:45 to 5:30 o'clock; Juniors, Monday and Thursday, 2:30 to 3:45 p. m.; game nights, Thursday and Saturday.

A physical examination is necessary to gain admittance to the gymnasium. This consists of measurements of the exterior groups of muscles, and a prescription of exercises to meet the demands of the body. Members have the privilege of re-examination when desired. An anthropometric chart showing the proportion of the different parts of the body as compared to other men, is given to each one examined.

Rev. Silas J. Perry conducts the Sunday afternoon devotional classes. The ensuing course is "Lessons in Prayer." H. E. Coleman has charge of a Bible class for beginners which meets every Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Mr. Coleman will also deliver a series of talks, entitled, "Christ Among Men," every Friday afternoon at 6 o'clock. Mr. C. J. Day will talk on "Important Decisions," every Sunday at 5 p. m.

KILLED THREE WOLVES.

Cary Shot Mother and Two Cubs Dead and Captured Another.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 6.—S. J. Dana, Town Clerk of Fayston, twenty miles west of Montpelier city, to-day said he had just paid $36 bounties for three wolves which had been killed by John Cary, a farmer of that town. One of Cary's cows failed to come home on Tuesday evening. Cary started the following morning to find it. He carried a shotgun. Passing through the open pastures he climbed the ledge of rocks, and reached the summit. He heard an animal snarling and growling. Suddenly from behind a log popped a wolf pup. Cary thought it some sort of a dog, but knew it was not tame. He blazed away and the pup keeled over dead. Cary found that he had killed a young wolf. He stood exulting over his prize when in the brush he heard more barking and growling. Two more pups appeared and Cary fired. One of them was killed and the second was stunned by a stray shot.

Cary took his prizes home. He placed the wounded pup in a covered basket, carried it back to the scene of his adventure and concealed himself behind a brush. Presently a male wolf appeared, but too far away to shoot and so Cary kept quiet. The animal disappeared. Cary, after waiting for some time decided to move the basket in which the wolf pup was whining to another spot and food up. Then he heard at that instant the brush cracking behind him. Looking around he saw a little way off the mother wolf. He fired and she dropped dead.

Cary thus has to show for his morning's adventure a she wolf, two dead pups, one live pup which netted bounties and all $48, Clerk Dana buying the live pup for $12.

NEGRO AFRAID TO GO HOME.

His Remarks About Miss Jewett in Boston Misunderstood.

BOSTON, Sept. 6.—T. H. Thomas of Galveston, Tex., a delegate to the National Convention of Negro Business Men, is in a dilemma. He has received word that the publication of quotations from his address before the convention had caused a misunderstanding and very severe criticism at his home. Mr. Thomas hesitates about returning for fear that a noose will be awaiting his arrival. He was quoted in the newspapers as having said that when he left Galveston he was told that if he went to attend the convention with the intention of advancing the interests of the Lillian Clayton Jewett movement he would be killed, but if he went only to assist in promoting the welfare of negro business men he would be safe. The wishes of the white people of Galveston.

Despatches covering his speech have apparently given the impression in Galveston that he was in favor of the Jewett movement. On the other hand, Mr. Thomas spoke strongly against the Jewett movement, and said that it was most unwise for negro business men or those who had the best interests of their people at heart to be identified in any way with any such movement as that with which Miss Jewett is associated.

Mr. Thomas is anxious to return home in a peaceful frame of mind.

SIXTH SENSE IN LOWER ANIMALS.

They Sometimes Have Knowledge of Coming Danger.

A correspondent of the Daily News states that a lady residing in the hotel at Anaili, the day before the landslide, refused to stay there another night because she was certain the earth was moving, and compares this sensitiveness with the observations of the symptoms of unrest and apprehension shown by domestic animals before the serious earthquake of 1897 in the Riviera. The facts then observed correspond generally with those remembered in the case of other great disturbances of air and business men had the best of being a day, two days, or even longer, before the last great earthquake. A lady at Nice remarked the bad condition of the horse she usually drove and told her coachman to take it home and bring another in a brougham from the livery stables for her. The hired horse seemed as timid and weak as her own. The driver then said that all the animals "left their feed." A monkey and other pets at a villa near Vicofranche, on the day before the shock which destroyed much life and property, refused to enter the house where they were generally anxious to come. They were all spiritless, dull and scared. A small lapdog which usually sat on the arm of the master's chair at meals refused to occupy its usual seat. But perhaps the most striking evidence that the animals were in a state of fear was that the cows in the dairies supplying the coast resorts seemed terrified and the quantity and quality of milk suffered.

On the chalk range which overhangs Shirburn and extends along the Thames one of the most extraordinary and universal panics ever known among domestic animals in this country occurred quite recently, a panic which can only be explained on the supposition that they felt the premonition of an earthquake or one of those subterranean sounds which sometimes precede earthquakes. These hills are a series of sheep farms, the flocks being part of the regular local system of agriculture. That no earthquake shock was felt does not make it impossible that the sheep felt or heard some of the common premonitions of earthquake. Nothing is more probable than that the whistlings of earth and air, to which we are deaf, are heard by the keener animal ears. The supposition that they have a "sixth sense," by hypothesis which arouses a degree of irritation difficult to account for in some minds, need not be raised in this case any more than in the instances in which animals are obviously conscious of coming storms. If many human beings are uneasy at such times and declare that they "feel" a thunder storm coming, there need be no doubt whatever that many animals are far longer, earlier, and more acutely alive to the heat and electric tension before a coming cyclone.

The almost simultaneous appearance of birds migrating to northern regions from distant latitudes when the frost has given in the far north is now known to be due to their sensitiveness to the rise of temperature which occurs over great areas, and which they instantly read as a summons. Meantime, we have as yet nothing more than conjecture to account for the power of direction when birds are migrating. If they made their journeys by daylight the great height at which they are able to fly might account for their performances. They could possibly see far enough to guide them from point to point or watch others flying, as the vultures watch other vultures moving to their prey from high planes of air. But while they fly by night and often at only a little height above the surface of the water, we can hardly believe that sight is used. Moreover, pigeons, even when trained over certain spaces of land and sea, can only fly and use this acquired knowledge as long as daylight lasts.

If we are to fall back on the hypothesis of the sixth sense we must employ it not to account for animal prescience of disturbances of earth and air, but to explain the means by which a tiny, golden-crested wren will fly across the North sea on a winter night and come flickering in at daybreak over the billows at that particular point of sand-hills or shingle which she other and swift-flying birds have always selected as their most suitable alighting place.—London Spectator.
