BIG BILL WAS RUSHED

that the ex-clerk hit back at his one-time superior, and he hit back hard. Beckley was induced to present a motion asking that the salary of that officer be reduced according to the figures above quoted. Beckley did all in his power to help his friend. He said that Thrum thought nothing of sending his clerks all over the city of Honolulu to gather material for an annual, when they were supposed to be engaged in Governmental work. The color line was drawn with unusual severity and Thrum never thought of giving his employes a holiday, or a raise in salary, especially if they were Hawaiians. When a holiday came, the "poor deputies," as Beckley insisted in calling them, were constrained to work behind closed doors. Beckley suggested that the House take the $100 lopped off Thrum's salary, and appropriate the same to a book clerk and a janitor. During his speech, in which he accused Thrum of several very uncomplimentary things, the one-time deputy across the House of Representatives would every now and then suggest something to the speaker. The reduction was carried by an overwhelming majority, and Kumalae was satisfied.

Thereupon the House took its midday recess.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The salary of the Attorney General was the first thing for consideration when the House came to order. Kaniho was the first speaker on the floor. He thought that the salary of the head of the legal department should be $6,000. To attempt to raise this officer's salary at this time would be breaking trust with the people. Kaniho then told a modern fable, in Hawaiian slang, of the man who shot at a heap of rubbish with a shotgun. Just what its application might be, the haole element could not tell, although the anecdote appealed quite strongly to the risibilities of the Hawaiians. He had no sooner finished this story than he told another, about some boys playing marbles and shooting at a hole, that was equally lucid. Whatever it was, it was too much for Johnnie Wise.

Aylett replied that the Governor's estimate was about right, all things considered. A motion by Ewaliko was made, making the salary of the Attorney General and the heads of the other departments $5,000. To retain these officers at $5,000 would be equivalent to passing the bill at the Government figures.

Emmeluth made a county government speech. He advocated voting the salaries just as they stood in the bill. Emmeluth said that if the other members of the Legislature had worked as hard as he had, county government would not be a tangible reality instead of an indefinite abstraction.

This speech was followed by Haaheo, who said the Appropriation bill reminded him of a little child who, when asked if it had had breakfast said, "Yes." When asked if it had dinner and supper it would make the same response. So it is with the House and the Appropriation bill. They are saying the same old things over and over to the same old questions.

The public Treasury, said Makainal, will be in just as bad a condition when the Home Rulers are through with things as it would have been had the Governor's estimate been accepted in the first place. The Independents mistook changes for reforms.

Mossman favored putting the salary at $5,000. The United States Attorney was being paid $6,000, yet Mr. Dole did much more work than the occupant of that office.

A vote was taken and the salary of the Attorney General was raised from $5,000 to $6,000. The salary of the Treasurer was passed at $5,000.

Dickey proposed that the Appropriation bill pass its third reading, but the obstructionists were not yet ready. Hibio moved that the salary of the Superintendent of Public Instruction be made $8,000. Dickey was in favor of this, as the House had increased the work of that department considerably during the past few days by making the Superintendent inspector of the schools of Honolulu. Makekau was also in favor of making the increase from $6,000 to $8,000.

A question was put to the House by Emmeluth. He wanted to know how many of the members of the House knew anything about the duties of the Superintendent of Public Instruction. Makekau rose to a point of order. He said Emmeluth had no right to question the House unless he presented the same in writing. Emmeluth was granted the privilege of speaking. The Superintendent had done nothing more than sign warrants. Emmeluth said that he had come into the House a fat man and he had done nothing but jaw. But even with that one form of exercise he had been able to reduce his weight. The speaker continued making criticisms against the salary paid the Superintendent.

The haole Home Ruler said, in conclusion, that "this is no simian sentiment, Mr. Speaker."

Upon a vote being taken, the salary of the Superintendent was made $7,200. The Commissioner of Public Lands was readily given a salary of $7,200, when the item was proposed.

At this period of the afternoon business a hitch occurred. Akina showed his Tom Reed-like knowledge of parliamentary law by untangling affairs in a manner that was truly creditable. Emmeluth, who by this time had grown quite weary of the making and unmaking of salaries, said that the House could vote as it wished; he was going home. He pretended to be as good as his word, for, like the gentleman in the ragtime song, he took his clothes and went. He did not go far, however, for when the ayes and noes were called for on the Appropriation bill, he came back into the House and registered a loud and vigorous "Aye."

The votes by ayes and noes stood: Ayes—Ahuili, Akina, Aylett, Beckley, Emmeluth, Ewaliko, Gilfillan, Kaauwai, Kaulimakoale, Kaniho, Keiki, Kekaula, Kelikoa, Kumalae, Mahoe, Makainal, Makekau, Mossman, Nalima, Pael, Pukui.

Noes—Dickey, Haaheo, Hihilo, Kawahoa, Prendergast. Absent—Hoogs, Monsarrat, Robertson, Wilcox.

The House adjourned after this, until 10 o'clock this morning.

So many people are exposed to rain, cold and storms, that it is necessary that they should have something to counteract the effects. A mixture of a teaspoonful of Pain-Killer in water, sweetened, will stimulate the system and ward off any possibility of a cold. It has been used for sixty years all over the world, and millions testify to its sterling worth. There is but one Pain-Killer, Ferry Davis'. Price 25 cents and 50 cents.

Alturas, the California town where a lynching occurred a short time ago, has been started again, this time by a mysterious murder. A young man was shot while eating breakfast, by some one far outside.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SENATE

The native Senators who are continually shaking the Organic Act in the faces of the Republican members, and calling their attention to its provisions on almost every little item which comes up, fail ignominiously in their ideas as to what it contains when it comes to conducting all proceedings of the Legislature in the English language. In other words, their memories are exceedingly short on that point.

The Organic Act specifically states that the proceedings shall be in English. Interpreter John Bush has his own ideas on that subject, especially when a Senator makes a very long speech in the native language, for the speech may be interpreted into English and it may not. Oftener it is not. The reporters who endeavor to keep a connected story of the proceedings are generally "up against it." For a while the proceedings are turned into English, and then comes a long break, and as a result the reporters are unable to keep pace with the matter under consideration. The Senate has done away with a stenographer, and as a result have evidently formed the belief that owing to his absence it is not necessary to have their speeches made over by the interpreter.

For the space of fifteen minutes at a time yesterday afternoon, but few words of English would be spoken, and it was only occasionally that the reporters could obtain even a glimmering of what was going on. A stranger sitting in the Senate chamber would imagine that he was looking in on an Hawaiian debating society, instead of a body which makes believe to construct laws for the good of the community.

The Senate turned its attention to school matters in the afternoon. Lahaialuna School came in for a big share of the debate. "Oily Bill" was a fierce advocate of the passage of the appropriation as given in the bill, and for all he could get as well. Kanihu was in favor of money for re-embellishing the school.

"There are lots of schools in this Territory that don't give a complete education; they only glitter. In Lahaialuna School they get a finished education. Mr. Atkinson, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, has recommended that an appropriation be made to renovate the school. Four thousand dollars is not enough for this purpose. It is a high-grade school."

Senator Kanihu ought to know, as he is on the staff of the Kamehameha School in this city. Senator Paris thought that if the Senate passed the loan act the appropriation asked for by the superintendent might be granted, but to put in the item as he desired it, was like so much waste paper, for it would not amount to anything, and there would be no prospect of getting anything. Senator Achi was in favor of the re-embellishment of the school, as he was personally under obligation to the institution for the rudiments of an education. He did not, however, approve inserting such an extraordinary amount, when it would not be possible to make a large sum available. He was in favor of the smaller sum.

Senator Cecil Brown scored the idea of making Lahaialuna a high school. He had understood the government did not intend to make it a high school, as there was a high school in Honolulu. A special act creating a high school would have to be passed by the Legislature.

Upon a vote being taken it was agreed to defer action on the item for the present. The Senate then adjourned until this morning.

NEW SODA WORKS.

A Superior Quality of Carbonated Water to Be Made Here.

Robert Rycroft, a kamaaina in the Islands, is about to establish the Fountain Mineral and Soda Water Works in Honolulu, the plant to be located on Sheridan street. He will erect a two-story building 70x26 feet, concrete finish throughout. Besides being the owner of the new enterprise he will also be the manager.

The latest improved machinery of the Twitchell, Philadelphia patent for making soda and other aerated and mineral waters will be installed. The water used will be distilled and an ice machine used for cooling it before the same is carbonized. Mr. Rycroft was in the soda water business many years ago on Fort street on the present site of Thrum's bookstore. During his visit in Europe and the United States a year ago he inspected many of the largest soda water works, and returned with new ideas which will be used in the manufacture of soda and mineral water here. The public will soon be given an opportunity of testing the beverages, which he says will not be surpassed by any on the mainland.

New Styles Muslin Underwear.

Resourceful brains and facile fingers have been busy preparing this charming and dainty muslin underwear for your approval. And worthy of admiration it is—far from these fine Sheer Fabrics, Muslin, Cambric and Lawn, these pretty Insertions, Embroideries and Ribbons have been conjured the latest fancies for the Trousseau of the June bride.

The trousseau idea, in fact, is prominent in this gathering. There are complete sets of matching pieces, many of them copied from the latest Parisian importations of the best workmanship, and finely finished. The Night-gowns usually have low necks and elbow sleeves, with trimming of ribbon and lace or embroidery, and are especially suitable for tropic wear.

Corset covers, Chemises, Petticoats and Drawers and characterized by the same wealth of variety of style and daintiness of trimming.
