CCLD MEDAL, Highest Award, OMAHA 1898.

BOTH Saturday and yesterday were busy days on the waterfront. Saturday saw the arrival of four large steamships, and yesterday witnessed a disastrous fire aboard the bark C. D. Bryant.

On Saturday the Canadian-Australian steamship Miowera came into the harbor. It will be remembered that she anchored outside on Friday night, coming from Vancouver and Victoria. Then the big freighter Hawaiian from San Francisco, and the Colon, from San Francisco, and the Colon, from Port Los Angeles, with Porto Ricans aboard, came into the harbor in the morning.

The Miowera sailed for the Colonies on Saturday evening, and the China got away for the Orient yesterday afternoon. The Hawaiian docked at the Railway wharf, where she will commence discharging a large general cargo this morning. The Colon moored alongside the Quarantine wharf, where her eight hundred passengers will be washed and their clothes fumigated before they are sent to the various plantations which have engaged them.

The schooner Aloha was towed into the harbor on Saturday after a voyage of thirteen days from San Francisco, with a cargo of general merchandise. She was reported off Koko Head on Friday night, as was published in the Advertiser on Saturday.

Saturday was an exceedingly busy day for the quarantine doctor. He first of all examined all the passengers and crew of the Miowera; then he inspected the people aboard the schooner Aloha. After that he boarded the Hawaiian and looked over the crew. Then came the biggest job of all, that of examining all the Porto Ricans on the Colon. Last of all, he went aboard the China and examined about six hundred more people of all nationalities. Dr. Bahenbergh is not likely to forget Saturday's experience for a long time to come. It is ever thus, however, sometimes there is a dearth of steamships arriving at this port, and then they come all in a bunch, making everybody on the waterfront hustle.

The Colon brought 763 Porto Ricans and 23 Italians, to labor on the plantations. She sailed from Port Los Angeles on June 27th, and experienced a good trip to port. There was but one death during the passage, although there was considerable sickness among the immigrants.

There was some little trouble experienced on board with a few of the laborers, who were somewhat unruly, but the good management of the ship's officers prevented anything of a serious nature. When the laborers arrived at New Orleans there was an uprising, occasioned, it is said, by one Buell, supposed to be employed by the sugar planters of Porto Rico, who are not in favor of the laborers being taken out of the country. The police interfered and the Porto Ricans were eventually persuaded that Buell had misrepresented things to them as far as Hawaii was concerned.

The Kinau from Hilo.

Wilder's steamer Kinau arrived from Hilo and way ports shortly after 9 o'clock last night. She brought a great many passengers and considerable freight. Berger's Band returned in force, and also the baseball team. The list is as follows:

- K. S. Jordan, J. T. Nichols, C. Camp, A. Buchanan, Sister Susan, Sister Helena, Miss R. Kahui, Miss A. Naillima, Mrs. J. Dow, Captain Berger, J. Bowler, J. H. McDonough, E. B. Clark, Capt. H. Branco, C. Swain, P. Wundenberg and wife, E. C. Macfarlane, H. R. Macfarlane, G. Noltenius, and ninety on deck.

Claudine from Maui and Hawaii.

Wilder's steamer Claudine, Captain Parker, arrived in port about 7 o'clock last evening from Maui and Hawaii ports, with a large number of passengers and a big load of sugar. She docked at the Oceanic wharf, where a great crowd had gathered to welcome home their friends.

While the passengers were coming ashore Mr. Cox slipped from the foot of the gangway and fell into the water between the wharf and the vessel. For a moment or two he was in danger of being crushed between the boat and the wharf, as the vessel was moving up against the wharf. Captain Harry Flint and others reached down and grabbed the man, however, before he was in any way injured.

The Claudine brought 6,200 bags of sugar and much other freight. Her passenger list was as follows: C. B. Wells and wife, Masters Wells (2), D. Simpson, Dr. R. W. Anderson, T. A. Simpson, Miss A. Simpson, H. A. Peterson, Dr. J. H. Raymond, Mrs. J. T. Taylor, Mr. Wright and wife, Captain Murray and wife, Mrs. S. Kalama, Hon. S. Kawahoa, Rev. A. V. Soares, A. H. Vierra, Miss S.
