Nearly Everybody

Possesses some piece of furniture endeared to them perhaps as heirlooms, or by associations connected with the past or present. They have been relegated to the cellar or the attic, much against your will perhaps, but they looked out of place amid the newer, smarter furniture. They were so comfortable, so cozy and convenient, too, but they had to go. They wouldn't fetch anything at auction if you cared to sell.

GEN. HARRISON AS A "DOG LAWYER."

A good story of General Harrison is one that he used to relate as a joke on himself, which occurred while he was in the Senate.

General Harrison, with a few friends, was hunting in the northern part of the state, and stopped with an old farmer, who, while he paid a great deal of attention to the future President and well known statesman, seemed to regard him in the light of pure democracy as a mere equal, and for whom General Harrison showed the greatest friendship.

The farmer, as it happened, had for some time been engaged in a controversy with a neighbor in regard to a dog, whose sheep-killing propensities had often caused the old man considerable worry, and the animal's depredations at last brought his owner into a lawsuit. The trial was sent down for a hearing while General Harrison was in the neighborhood, and the farmer, understanding that his visitor was considered one of the best lawyers in the country, begged him to take up the case. General Harrison consented and drove over to the nearest town the next day with the farmer. His eloquence caught the jury, which returned a verdict in favor of the farmer without leaving the court room.

The farmer was in the neighborhood, and the farmer, understanding that his visitor was considered one of the best lawyers in the country, begged him to take up the case. General Harrison consented and drove over to the nearest town the next day with the farmer. His eloquence caught the jury, which returned a verdict in favor of the farmer without leaving the court room.

"I thought you was a pretty good dog lawyer," he kept repeating to General Harrison all the way back to the farm, "and if ever that dog gets me into trouble again I'm going to send for you, 'cause I don't believe you can be beat on dog cases."

General Harrison enjoyed the incident immensely and never tired of telling the story.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

SAGACIOUS MAN.

"I must decline to be interviewed," said the statesman firmly.

"Is the topic one of such secrecy?"

"No. But I prefer declining to be interviewed to giving it away in a column or so of cold type that I don't know anything worth mentioning on the subject."
