DON'T DESERVE HER BAD NAME

What Graham Says of Treatment of Seafaring Men in Honolulu.

Ship masters have for several years past considered that Honolulu is a good place to keep away from. They have understood that captains of sailing vessels get in trouble very easily here and that a term of a few months in Oahu prison usually follows. Very few captains know what the place is really like and it is a relief to find one who says that Honolulu is a good place. Captain Graham of the ship E. M. Phelps said yesterday: "In the East captains all say that Honolulu is a place where everyone from the lowest custom's officer to the judge of the highest court soak one. I have found this to be untrue. When I came here my sailors put up a job on me. They put a card up in their quarters in a wrong manner. Then some of them filed a complaint with United States District Attorney Breckons and in due course Collector of Customs Stackable imposed a fine of a hundred dollars on me, because of his card. I went to Mr. Breckons and to Mr. Stackable and explained the sailors' trick. I also gave them proof. They investigated the matter and found my statements to be true and immediately remitted the fine. Now what I have to say is that this port does not deserve the reputation that some people have given it. I find Messrs. Stackable and Breckons gentlemen and fair dealers in every way and everyone I have come in contact with here has treated me in the same way."

The E. M. Phelps has not received her orders yet. She may remain here for a couple of months. Captain Graham has a force of about thirty men on her at present cleaning up. Coal dust is being washed from every portion of the vessel and in a few days she will be a mass of shining white paint. Anyone desiring to see what the finest sailing vessel in the American merchant fleet looks like would do well to visit the Phelps as soon as she is cleaned up. Her appearance will be a surprise to many people. While hundreds will eagerly look over the new Korea to learn of the improvements that have been made in steamer construction they should not forget that improvements are also being made continuously in the sailing fleet and that a look over the Phelps will give them a good idea of what these changes are.

Schooner Herman's Long Stay.

The little treasure schooner Herman still lies at Sorenson's wharf. She has now been in this port for nearly a month and has been ready to sail for about ten days but no one aboard of her seems to have any idea as to when she is going. Her passengers spend their time in the chairs on her cosy canvas-covered deck and do not seem to have the slightest of troubles. Captain Brown's ill-health may be one of the causes of the vessel's detention.

Anchors Not Very Large.

The starboard anchor of the schooner John G. North which had such a tussle with a storm at Punalu still bangs from the vessel's bow. One part of it is broken so that it is now useless. Many people who saw it yesterday express surprise that such a small anchor was capable of withstanding as much strain as the vessel caused during the blow.

Carpenter B. D. Pender, who has been stationed for some months at the Navy Station in Honolulu, will leave on the Oceanic steamer Ventura on September 9th for San Francisco where he has orders to report at the Union Iron Works. Mr. Pender has his family with him and they will return to the Coast by the same steamer.

MAN OF THE SEA WAS ROBBED

Mate Ross of Ship E. M. Phelps Lost $120 in a Night's Carousal.

The ways of sailors are queer. They never like to have to acknowledge it when they have made fools of themselves. Mate Ross who came to Honolulu on the ship E. M. Phelps from Norfolk had considerable money on arrival here. He was counted a good man by the captain of the vessel and it was decided that he was to stay on board of her until she should again be ready to sail, although all the other members of the crew had been discharged.

Ross worked like a steam engine during the time that the coal brought by the vessel was being discharged but at the same time he wanted recreation and wished to indulge in what people term a "good time." Taking a hundred and twenty dollars he started out to have it one evening. He visited nearly every resort in Honolulu and some "kind" fellow undertook to guide him around. Finally his guide took all the money and left poor Ross lying in a drunken sleep in a field up toward the Pall. Ross, the man who could whip any man on the waterfront with his left hand while sober, had been done up.

When he came to his senses he realized his position keenly. He was sore, not because of the loss of the money but because some other fellow had beaten him. He was ashamed. He still had money due him from the ship but instead of drawing this he went down to the transport Buford and made arrangements to work his passage to San Francisco. When leaving on the Buford he declared that he would never again set foot in Honolulu.

Big Waves Caught Malolo.

The schooner Malolo was also caught in some of the unusually rough weather that has prevailed about the islands during the past week. On Tuesday night, her crew say, while off the Koolau coast, two huge waves caught her and had they come broadsides on the little craft would have foundered. They attribute the waves to a marine earthquake.

Central Kona FOR SALE

By order of REINNE RODANET, Trustee, I offer for sale those certain parcels of land situate at Onouli, South Kona, Island of Hawaii, described in Royal Patent (Grant) No. 1162 to F. O. Schulze, and containing 174 acres. Royal Patent (Grant) No. 2862 to Awahua and containing 739 75-100 acres, situate at Keopuka and Onouli, Island of Hawaii.

This is a tract of land of over 519 acres, situated in the most fertile and richest portion of the Island of Hawaii. It faces the new Government road extends to the sea, and is five minutes walk from Kealahou Bay, by way of the old Government road which runs through the property. Portions of the land are already under cultivation.

This tract is so situated that it is about midway between Kailua and Hookena, and five miles from Nanakoo, three most important ports of the Kona district. It has sufficient elevation, running up to fourteen hundred feet, to be particularly healthful, and its soil is well adapted to the growth of sugar cane, coffee, fruits, dairying, or for the promotion of diversified farming.

Occupants of this land have easy access to several ports for export, and with the advent of the Kona Railroad will find themselves in close communication with the thriving City of Hilo. This, of course, affords a splendid opportunity for the exporting of farm products to the California markets.

With the revival of the Kona Sugar Co., considerable portions of this land can be successfully planted to sugar cane.

This is one of the most splendid opportunities for a good investment that has been put upon the market for a considerable period of time.
