NATIVE USED AS A TARGET

May Die as Result of Bullet in His Abdomen.

Investigation Shows That Shooting Was Accident.

Another Native Is Found Unconscious in Kakaako—His Alleged Assailant Arrested.

Kahekill, a native boy, is lying at the Queen's Hospital with a bullet in his abdomen which may cause his death.

According to the story told by Joe King and George Nawai they were indulging in revolver practice early yesterday morning back of Punchbowl. Kahekill, they say, was practicing with them, and he was moving the target for their amusement. It seems that the boys were using a square board or something of the kind for a target, and after they were able to hit it at ten yards, it was moved back another ten yards. While so engaged a bullet from the revolver in the hands of Nawai struck the target holder and inflicted an ugly looking wound in the abdomen.

The target shooters, badly frightened at what they had done, called the patrol wagon and the young man was taken to Queen's Hospital. High Sheriff Brown held both of the young men for investigation, not satisfied with the explanation they had given of the shooting. Both appeared to have been drinking and their story of the affair was not very coherent though investigation proved their innocence.

At Queen's Hospital yesterday afternoon it was reported that the bullet had penetrated the abdomen but not the stomach or bowels. It had also pierced one lung. Kahekill's condition was said to be serious with a possibility that it might terminate fatally.

Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth afterwards investigated the affair and found that the story of the shooting was substantially correct. Nawai was hardly ten feet away when his revolver went off. He says that he was moving the barrel when his finger accidentally hit the trigger.

Both men will probably be released, the investigation having exonerated them. Their story of the shooting was substantiated by other witnesses of the affair.

ANOTHER MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR.

An affair with even more mystery connected with it, is that of Robert Kahunui, also a native. He was picked up on Queen street in Kakaako early yesterday afternoon, in an unconscious condition. The native's head was badly battered and bruised and he could not be awakened out of his stupor. The man had evidently been lying in the street for some time without the slightest protection from the heat. To the officers, people who had gathered said that the injuries inflicted upon Kahunui were the result of a fight which was participated in by negroes. According to this story, the native was engaged in a crap game with a number of negroes, which finally broke up in a row. The negroes in the game set upon the native and beat him very brutally.

Kahunui was taken to Queen's Hospital in the patrol and his wounds dressed. His face was badly battered and his nose was found to have been broken. He was still in a stupor last evening. The physician attending reports that he had been drinking, but that at present it was impossible to say whether he was unconscious because of that or from the effects of the beating.

Chillingworth afterwards arrested

Henry Kekaha, and witnesses of the fight say that the boy was brutally beaten by the man under arrest. If his victim dies a serious charge will be brought against Kekaha.

Lahainaluna Work and Future.

It is rumored that Lahainaluna Seminary is to be abandoned as a government institution of learning, and in one sense it would be a very keen cause of regret to see this done. This institution is rich in good works that it has done for Hawaiians, but it must frankly be confessed that for the past decade, it has fallen far short of accomplishing all that should have been expected of such a school. Industrial and manual training schools for Hawaiian boys should be maintained by the territory, and if Lahainaluna is continued as a government school it should be thoroughly renovated and started on a new basis. Such a school however would be much more convenient and maintain a much larger patronage if established at Wailuku on central Maui; in the midst of a large Hawaiian population.—Maui News.

Maui's Independence.

From the fact that the ex-queen and Robert Wilcox were the central figures at the Kanehameha Day luau at Wailuku, the Honolulu papers draw the conclusion that Maui is given over to home rule. From a distance this might appear true, but as a matter of fact, a new era has dawned on Maui, and the day has forever passed when the old shibboleth will work its charm. The leaven of the American principle of self-government has leavened the whole, and from Kaaanapali to Puu-o-Kauwili the feeling runs that in the matter of our future government the individual voters are responsible for the selection of public servants. No clique or political party holds Maui in its hands, and when it comes to the selection of our office holders, the sentiment is growing that they must be men of individual worth, rather than that they owe their fealty to this or that party. No man, simply because he happens to be a home ruler, republican or a democrat may for that reason hope for political honors on Maui, unless his private character for integrity, honesty and ability make him worthy of the honor he seeks.—Maui News.

STILL HUNTING EWA MURDERER

The search for the Ewa murderer, Yanagai, is still going on. Yesterday High Sheriff Brown received word that the Jap had been seen at Watalua in a vegetable garden, and two officers were dispatched on the afternoon train to follow the clue. The police are beginning to be more confident of ultimate success, and some of them believe that the murderer may be rounded up today or tomorrow. According to one report he is between Ewa and Honolulu and five officers are following him.

DEPUTY'S HOUSE IS ENTERED

Frank Boyd Tried to Rob the Sheriff.

Negro Caught Saturday in Chillingworth's Abode.

Rumor Circulated That Man Was Trying to Kill Sheriff—Two Men Arrested.

Frank Boyd, a negro, was caught by Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth in his King street home Saturday evening at 11 o'clock, evidently intent on robbery, though a big carving knife in his hand, showed that he was ready for murder if necessary.

Chillingworth received a tip about three weeks ago that an attempt was to be made to rob his house. He placed little credence in the story until Saturday afternoon when he was told by "Joe," a Porto Rican policeman, that the robbery was to occur that night, and that it would be wise for him to remain at home. Chillingworth did remain at home Saturday night, and as an additional precaution Dan Renear was stationed with him.

About 11 o'clock they heard some one approaching the rear veranda. A moment afterwards the outside screen was cut open, and a black hand reached inside and unfastened the lock. Then, as the burglar entered, Chillingworth turned on the electric light, and a negro with a dangerous looking carving knife in his hand was revealed. Before he could make any resistance he was disarmed and handcuffs snapped upon his wrists.

BAGGAGE OF THE CITY OF PEKING IS EXAMINED

New Customs Regulation Put Into Force for the First Time—Passengers May Avoid Delay in San Francisco.

The new orders relative to the examination of all baggage on through steamers were carried out for the first time by Collector Stackable's force on the City of Peking yesterday. When the steamer stopped off port to await the arrival of the doctor, the customs inspectors boarded her and began an immediate examination of the baggage of those aboard. There were six inspectors detailed for the work besides an appraiser to value the property liable to duty.

The customs officers worked quickly and though the passengers aboard the steamer appeared somewhat surprised at the new order of things they submitted gracefully to the examination of their effects.

None of the baggage, except that in the staterooms of the passengers, was touched by the customs officers. Dutiable goods in the possession of the passengers which will not be required during the remainder of the voyage to San Francisco were placed in the hold with the heavy baggage which the customs officers did not molest. This was done so that passengers are not compelled to have part of their baggage, upon which duty had been paid, while the greater part of it is in the hold, subject to the examination of the custom officers in San Francisco. The examination of all the baggage aboard was completed by the time the Peking reached the dock, so there was no delay because of the new order.

The Peking had a small list of passengers, only thirty-three, so that the examination was much shorter than it would have been on a ship like the Korea, Siberia or the big ocean liners. There is likely to be some delay in the inspection of the larger boats or else the force of inspectors must be increased.

The order was much better received than had been expected on the part of the passengers, and some as a matter of fact asked that all their baggage be appraised and examined in order that duty might be paid in Honolulu and delay at San Francisco thus avoided.

The man was Frank Boyd, a well known negro character. He was taken to the Police Station where he is said to have confessed that he was planning to rob the house, and that if he had known it was the Deputy Sheriff's residence he would have kept away. According to the story told, another negro, Brady Clemons, had put him up to the job, and told him that there was $1,000 in the house which was to be divided, share and share alike. This money was supposed to have been some recovered from a French woman.

Boyd told other stories, among them one implicating "Joe," the policeman, who he said was to have done the job with him. He also is said to have acknowledged that he had attempted other robberies on the Waikiki road, but the light was too bright and he abandoned that job.

Brady Clemons was afterwards arrested and denied all knowledge of the crime. Boyd is being held on a charge of being unlawfully on the Chillingworth premises. Clemons is simply held for investigation.

There were dozens of wild and improbable stories floating about the city yesterday, chief of which was that an attempt had been made on Chillingworth's life and that the negroes were working for some one who wanted him out of the way. Little credence is placed in these stories, though all are being investigated.

CHINESE BOY DIVED TOO DEEP

Edward Ping Chong, a Chinese boy twenty years of age had a narrow escape from death while bathing at Long Branch yesterday afternoon. He dived off the platform just above the Hawaiian Hotel Annex and stuck his head into the sand with such force as to paralyze both his arms and legs. Some boys that were in the water at the time saw his plight and pulled him out.

The water at that point is not very deep, and even at high tide there is not over six or seven feet. The sand shifts so much in that vicinity as to make it almost impossible to tell just how deep the water is. Yesterday when the accident occurred it could not have been over four or five feet deep.

The Chinese jumped headfirst from the platform, which is about six feet above the water. He struck the sand at the bottom with much force, and when he arose to the surface appeared to be unconscious. Bathers in the vicinity assisted him out of the water and he was taken to shore and the police ambulance sent for. The boy was taken to Queen's Hospital where it was reported later that he was paralyzed in both his arms and legs. The lower part of his body seems most affected. It is not believed that the injuries will be permanent.

TURKISH TROOPS AGAIN RAVAGE THE BULGARIAN BORDER

Villages Razed After the Inhabitants Are Put to the Sword Inhumanely.

Russian Troops Now in Korea—Disastrous Train Wreck in Spain—Christian Scientists in Convention in Boston.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLEGRAMS.)

VIENNA, Austria, June 28.—The Turkey-Bulgaria situation has reached an acute stage. Bulgaria is preparing to issue a strong protest to the powers, fearing that the Turks will so act that serious internal consequences may follow in Bulgaria. Turkish troops are being massed in many sections of northern European Turkey, and small bands of troops are persecuting people along the Bulgarian border and razing the villages. The Turks have brought large numbers of soldiers and munitions of war to Salonica, and are moving these further up country to advantageous positions in northern Macedonia and Turkey to be ready in case of war.

GREAT DOCK SYSTEM IS PLANNED AT RIO JANEIRO

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, June 28.—The government has planned an enormous system of docks for this port. Bonds to the amount of $42,000,000 will be issued to meet the expense of the scheme. The enormous increase in the exports of Brazil is said to be responsible for the new venture, Brazilian exports now amounting to over two hundred million annually. Brazil has lacked many public improvements in the past through the unwillingness of cabinets to go into debt but the new cabinet, which came into office with President Alves last November, is determined to make all it can out of Brazil's export industries.

Rio Janeiro is situated upon one of the finest natural harbors known. It is the coffee emporium of the world. The harbor is about one hundred miles in circumference, but in the past its system of dock has been poor although it has had to accommodate a large amount of shipping. With railway communication to the north and east Rio can draw a tremendous amount of products for shipment to foreign countries. The port is known as the "Liverpool of South America."
