WATER FRANCHISE HAS NEW PHASES
 Not only has the sale of the Kohala water franchise been postponed, but a new condition has been inserted in the notice. The sale is now announced to take place on Friday, the 26th inst. It is stipulated, as an additional condition to those originally made, that the successful bidder furnish a bond that the required work within stated periods shall be performed in due time. This is to prevent the liability of a speculative purchase of the franchise.
 Two ditch companies have articles of association filed in the office of the Treasurer—the "Hamakua" and the "Oohala"—naming identical incorporators, viz.: John Hind, J. T. McCrosson, F. Wundenberg, J. S. Low and J. K. Clark. Smith & Lewis are solicitors for both companies. Probably only one of them will bid for the Kohala franchise. Whether or not the Hawaii Ditch Co., whose claim of a settled right to the franchise A. C. Gehr went to Washington to uphold, will show up at the sale is a problem in the meantime.

SEQUOYAH'S BONES FOUND
 In a letter to the Kansas City Times from Snyder, Okla., comes a story that a farmer named Franche, in crossing the mountains about seven miles from there, discovered the bones of a human being, supposed to have been killed by the Indians about a century ago. On the ground near the bones were the iron parts of a flintlock rifle, a pair of bullet molds, three bars of lead and a Jefferson medal, bearing the date of 1801. When Sequoyah departed from the Cherokee nation, he is supposed to have gone south or west. With him he took an old-time flintlock rifle and was said to be the proud possessor of a Jefferson medal bearing the date of 1801. Nothing has ever been learned of the end of Sequoyah—where he journeyed, how long he lived, or how he passed away.
 Now comes the Rev. W. A. Duncan, a Cherokee of the old school, and says these are not the bones of Sequoyah, the Cadmus of the Cherokees. Sequoyah went off into the Southwest in search of health, as far as New Mexico, and possibly as far as the Rio Grande. Becoming ill, Sequoyah remained somewhere in the Southwest and sent his son back for aid. When the son's party returned in search of the old man no trace of him could be found, nor has his last resting place ever been discovered. When the news of the recent Oklahoma find was made public, Mrs. L. L. Keys, of this place, a distant relative of Sequoyah, wrote to Mr. Franche about the discovery, and the latter offered to pay her expenses to Oklahoma if she would go and view the find. She, however, was unable to go.
 The Rev. Mr. Duncan discredits the story. He says the medal dates too far back; Jefferson was made president in 1801, but Sequoyah did not invent his alphabet until 1821, and no one at Washington could have known of the invention until after that date. The United States government learned of the invention in 1825, when Thomas L. McKinney, commissioner of Indian affairs, December 13, in a letter addressed to the Secretary of War, described the new invention and sent a copy of the new Cherokee alphabet. On March 3, 1824, the American board of commissioners for foreign missions submitted a report of their work, asking for aid in carrying on their work among the Cherokees, but make no mention of the new invention, hence they did not know of it at that time.
 Sequoyah was greater than Cadmus; the latter did not invent his letters. He only picked them up from the Phoenicians, who had borrowed from the Hebrews. But who ever aided Sequoyah? Locked up in the Cherokee language alone without an idea of the vast research by scholars in the field of linguistic science; without the aid of any pen to jot down his notes in aid of his memory, he undertook the work of deducing from the nebulous elements of the Cherokee tongue the eighty-six principal sounds of which it is composed, and marking them down in letters.

RED HEADS SELDOM BALD.
 Redheaded people are less subject to baldness than others. A doctor explains the matter thus: The hair of the red-headed is relatively thick, one red hair being almost as thick as five fair or three brown hairs. With 30,000 red hairs the scalp is well thatched, whereas with the same number of fair hairs, one is comparatively bald. It takes nearly 100,000 fair and 105,000 brown hairs to cover adequately an ordinary head.
 A Japanese c-ook is reported to have given $50 and a yardboy $25 to the war funds being raised here.

GAMBLING STOPPED
Police Raid Konahi Chinatown Games.
Theater Closed by Order of Court While Play Was on.
Lively Times in Oriental Section as a Starter for the Year.

There were lively times in Chinatown yesterday. The Chinese thought that the police would permit them to conduct gambling openly on account of the day being the first of the Chinese New Year, and daylight had hardly made its appearance before dozens of small tables, laden with gambling devices, were in shape. By eight o'clock hundreds of people were gathered in the lanes leading to the Chinese theater off Hotel street and to the Chinese theater off Liliha street.
 For several years it has been the custom for the Chinese to gamble openly in these lanes on the first day of the year. The law has usually been reefered up for a day in order to permit what is almost a national custom to be carried out by them. Last year Gov. Carter, then Secretary of the Territory, and High Sheriff Brown swooped down on these places and stopped the sport. Yesterday the High Sheriff early issued instructions that these men should not be allowed to conduct their operations.
 Very early in the day Officer Rinear and several others visited the lane leading into the Hotel street theater. The place was packed with people, all surrounding numerous small tables on which the game known as "Russian War," a gamble with big odds in favor of the "bank" winning, was being played. Rinear scattered the Chinese right and left. One gambler became angry and defied Rinear. There was a moment's scuffle and Rinear started to push his opponent through the crowded lane and out into the street. A couple of hundred Chinese immediately commenced to shout and made a rush for Rinear but as it happened that there was no leader among the crowd a riot was averted. The Chinese stood in groups discussing the affair and roundly scoring the police for breaking up their games on a day so sacred to them.
 Leaving Hotel street the officers went to Liliha street. From the street nothing could be seen of gamblers there but the police found that the long lanais in back of the big lodging houses on each side of the theater were crowded with natives who were putting up their good money in order to assist the Chinaman in celebrating his New Year. This game was stopped. The police returned to Hotel street and found the gamblers there at the game again. Rinear got an axe. He smashed one table in a twinkling and a moment later the Chinese had all the other tables out of the way.
 In the theater a play was in full blast. Several Chinese in gorgeous costumes were on the stage and were about to kill each other with their wooden swords when the police entered. There were few people within, and most of them were women and

PREVENTS BAD FIGURES.
 A narrow, hard bed is said to be the best preventive of bad figures. If one can also forego pillows, so much the better.
 Women with round shoulders and double chins have a means provided for their cure if they are heroic enough to give up the downy couch in which they revel. When one thinks of it, the place and position in which one spends a third of every twenty-four hours must have an effect upon the figure.
Children enjoy feeding the monkeys on the Heights.

children, and when the police ordered that the play stop and that everyone leave the theater there was consternation on every hand. A Chinese actor, dressed as a gladiator of the time of Confucius, with bare breast and fondling a knife about three feet long, turned in pained surprise as an inter-preter shouted that the play must stop. Several days ago an execution was secured against the owners of the theater for a sum of about $1,700. An appeal had been taken which acted as a stay of execution. The appeal was knocked out in court yesterday and the execution was again in force. But the play people could not understand such a kink in their affairs and there was considerable noise before the theater could be closed. An old actor sadly approached the front of the stage and lighted three sticks of punk which were intended to ward off the devil until the actors could again present their story on the boards. Poor actors sorrowfully left the theater. At the best of times their wages are but little better than those of men working on plantations and to be deprived of the New Year treat by the closing of the theater filled their cup of bitterness to the brim.
 But the closing of the Hotel street theater gave fresh impetus to the one on Liliha street. The latter was crowded all day and during last evening.
 During the entire day the police and gamblers played hide and seek. The police would no sooner break up one game and start after another than the first one broken up would again be going in full blast.
 The club-houses in Chinatown entertained a great many people during the day. Business houses were closed for visitors and in each business place, whether a small store or a large one, dainty Chinese refreshments were served for callers.
 Every young Chinese in Honolulu seemed to have a lei around his hat. He was happy. Small boys were decked out gaily and smoked long Manila cigars with the same zest that an older man would have done.
 A reporter visited the home of two Chinese families on River street. The home was occupied by the two families jointly and consisted of one room about ten by twelve feet in size. Mosquito nets covered two large bunks which had been built up on one side of the room. There were clean mats on the floor and a small table at one side contained a varied collection of fruits, nuts, candies and other edibles. There was also a bottle of whiskey and glasses and a couple of cigars. The wives of the two Chinese were resplendent in colors, not even excepting their faces for these had been painted in half the colors of a Tantalus rainbow. And those two men and women were as proud and happy as anyone could be while they offered the whiskey, the cigars, the fruit, and candies to their guest, and the two women merrily insisted that the guest should go away with his pockets well filled with sweet-meats.

BASEBALL LEAGUE TAKES NO ACTION
 The meeting of the Baseball League last evening at Elks' Hall failed to take any action in the matter of the application of the Marine baseball team to enter the League for the season's games.
 This was due to a misunderstanding of the instructions to the team managers who met last Saturday to confer on the matter. J. O. Carter, Jr., manager of the Punahou team, and chairman of the managers' meeting, was not present at the opening of the meeting last evening owing to the weather, but came in later. In the meantime it was shown that at the meeting of the managers, Lieut. Harlee, representing the Marine team, had not been present to give his argument in favor of his team playing, and also to make a definite statement of what he expected from League in the way of expenses.
 The motion made at the League meeting last Friday, which created the special committee, clearly stated that the managers were to meet in conference with Lieut. Harlee.
 On this showing, the matter was referred back to the managers to report at some future time. Mr. Carter came in as the meeting was about to adjourn. On hearing what had been done, Mr. Carter stated that he did not understand the original motion creating the special committee, carried with it the proviso that Lieut. Harlee was to have been present at the meeting.
 The matter of umpires was also set over to a future meeting.
 President Isenberg stated that he intended going to Kauai today and would not be back for some time, and he advised that a member of the trustees be elected by the League to act as president temporarily. Harry Whitney was unanimously elected. As Secretary Lorrin Andrews leaves today on the Sierra en route to Washington, Frank E. Thompson was elected temporary secretary.
 The temporary president will call a special meeting at an early date in order to hear the report of the managers on the question of the Marines playing in the League.

THE TOP PRICE FOR A COW.
 General Russell A. Alger, former secretary of war and now junior United States senator from Michigan, is said to have paid the record price for a cow—and that a dead one. Fifty-odd years ago he was an orphan in Richfield, Ohio, without a cent and with but one suit of clothes. He wanted to attend school, and went to a doctor who lived in a neighboring village to ask for a chance to work for his board. The doctor did not need the services of a boy, but was so much impressed by young Alger's earnestness that he took him into his family and sent him to school. He did no work except to care for the doctor's horse and cow. The years sped on, and Russell A. Alger became a millionaire, while his benefactor was reduced to straitened circumstances. One by one the doctor's children died, and he and his aged wife were left alone. But the old man kept his pride, and when General Alger assisted him he was forced to do so in roundabout ways. A dozen years ago the general paid the doctor a visit, determining to aid him.
 "Why, Alger, you don't owe me anything," said the old man, "and I won't take anything."
 "But I owe my education to you."
 "Bosh! You owe that to yourself."
 "But I caused you trouble and expense, for which I want to repay you."
 "The trouble need not trouble you, and there wasn't any expense worth talking about. In fact, the only expense that you caused me, so far as I can remember, was the loss of a cow. Do you know, Alger, that when you came to live with me I had the best cow in these parts, and that your awkwardness completely spoiled her? Within three weeks you had made her so skittish that no one could go near her, and I had to sell her for beef."
 "Then I owe you for that cow. I am going to pay you for her and to add a little interest for the use of the money for about forty years."
 After long argument the old man reluctantly consented to receive pay for his cow, and the check that General Alger drew to his order kept him in comfort for the remainder of his life.—Success.
 A man will turn his cuffs to save 3 cents on his laundry bill, and celebrate his economy by smoking a 15-cent cigar.
