ORPHEUM JAMMED AND BIG MEETING OUTSIDE

Oratory, Music and Applause Show That the Party Spirit Is Rising.

Leading Republicans Appeal for Votes to Immense Audiences In Which There Are Many Ladies—Hot Shot for the Democracy.

There was a sign of the old time Republicanism in the mass meeting at the Orpheum last night, not only in the size of the audience which crowded the pit and flowed upon the stage, but in the eloquence and patriotism of the speeches and in the general enthusiasm. The addresses from beginning to end were of a stirring sort and at times a deafening roar of applause swept the hall as the audience was moved by a striking phrase. Throughout the meeting there was an alternation of good speechmaking, campaign music and cheers.

The virtues of the local Republican platform were extolled, the shortcomings and absurdities of the Democratic platform were exposed, the greatness of the Republican party was set forth, and the administration of Governor Carter was, by the applause of the audience whenever his name was mentioned, heartily upheld.

There were many ladies, who occupied boxes and the central portion of the theater. Upon the stage were representative men of the party as well as the candidates. The stage was given over largely to seating people who could find no other place to listen. The corridor and entrance were jammed and an overflow meeting of several hundred was addressed by various speakers in the street outside the theater. In fact, it was one of the largest political meetings ever held in town. The meeting was preceded by a torchlight procession headed by a band, which caught the popular fancy down town and brought in its train a crowd of people to the theater.

George W. Smith, one of the organizers of the local Republican party, presided at the meeting. Upon the stage were also U. S. District Attorney R. W. Breckons, Chairman A. G. M. Robertson of the Republican committee, Hon. Samuel Parker, J. A. Gilman, Attorney General Lorrin Andrews, Major Camara, M. A. Gonsalves, J. A. Hughes, Dr. C. B. Cooper, Dr. W. C. Wile of Danbury, Conn., C. L. Crabbe, C. M. White, W. C. Achi, S. F. Chillingworth, J. H. Fisher, A. V. Gear, Major Zeigler, Wm. Isaacs, C. M. V. Forster, J. A. Pianaia, A. Gartley, George A. Davis, Captain Dabel, W. C. Roe, H. E. Murray, E. A. Douthitt, Sam Johnson, W. C. Peacock, Mr. Hertsche, Clem Quinn and members of the Fourth and Fifth District Republican tickets for the House of Representatives. W. O. Smith, Col. Soper, J. M. Oat and many other prominent citizens were in the boxes.

Alternating with the speakers the Ellis Glee Club, assisted by Mr. Cutting at the piano, rendered some excellent campaign music, the solos being sung by Wm. Ellis to a delighted audience.

CHAIRMAN SMITH'S REMARKS.

Chairman Smith, in opening the meeting, spoke as follows:

Fellow Citizens: President Roosevelt, in his letter accepting the nomination for the Presidency, used the following words referring to the Republican party:

"We make our appeal to no class and to no section, but to all good citizens in whatever part of the land they dwell, and whatever may be their occupation or worldly condition. . . . We stand for enforcement of the law and for obedience to the law; our Government is a government of orderly liberty."

THE CAMPAIGN BARD ATTUNES HIS LYRE

The following campaign song was rendered last evening at the Republican mass meeting at the Orpheum, by Mr. William Ellis, assisted by Mr. Cutting and the Ellis Quintet:

Iaukea sits upon the fence, hoo!
His aspirations are immense, hoo!
He wants to serve his native land, hoo!
In any job that comes to hand, hoo!
His party he finds all right,
He'd be a Populist, or any old flopulist.
If there's a job in sight,
We laugh, etc.

Chorus.
Ain't you a wise old owl;
Curtis, you make us howl.
In your spotted skirt,
With each party you flirt,
You Near-Democratic old owl.
Now times are hard and money's tight,
hoo!
We need a Delegate that's right, hoo!
We'll put his shoulder to the wheel,
hoo!
And to our Congress make a spiel, hoo!
Can Curtis Iaukea, with his brand of hot air
Perform all these things at D. C.?
Can Notley get busy and strike them all dizzy?
Well, Kubio will do for me.
We laugh, etc.

equally alien to tyranny and to anarchy; and its foundation stone is the observance of the law alike by the people and by the Public Servants."

In a like manner, fellow citizens, does the Republican party of this territory stand before you today.

Organized here when the change of sovereignty took place it was formed as a nucleus around which could gather those whose affiliations had been with the party before, around which could gather men of all parties and of no party, formed at a time when men were coming out from under the bitterness of spirit and chaos of Provisional Government and a weak Republic into a larger and fuller measure of self-government; it offered an organization that makes no distinction of color or race, occupation or condition. And it has justified its formation.

Without any apologies, without necessity for explanations, it offers you a platform, to which its candidates are pledged, that treats of the live issues and needs of the territory in which we are all interested.

It offers you a ticket representative of all the people, of all conditions, of all occupations from the man of capital controlling large interests to that of the humblest calling on our streets. YOUR MANIFEST DUTY IS TO SUPPORT THIS TICKET AS A WHOLE.

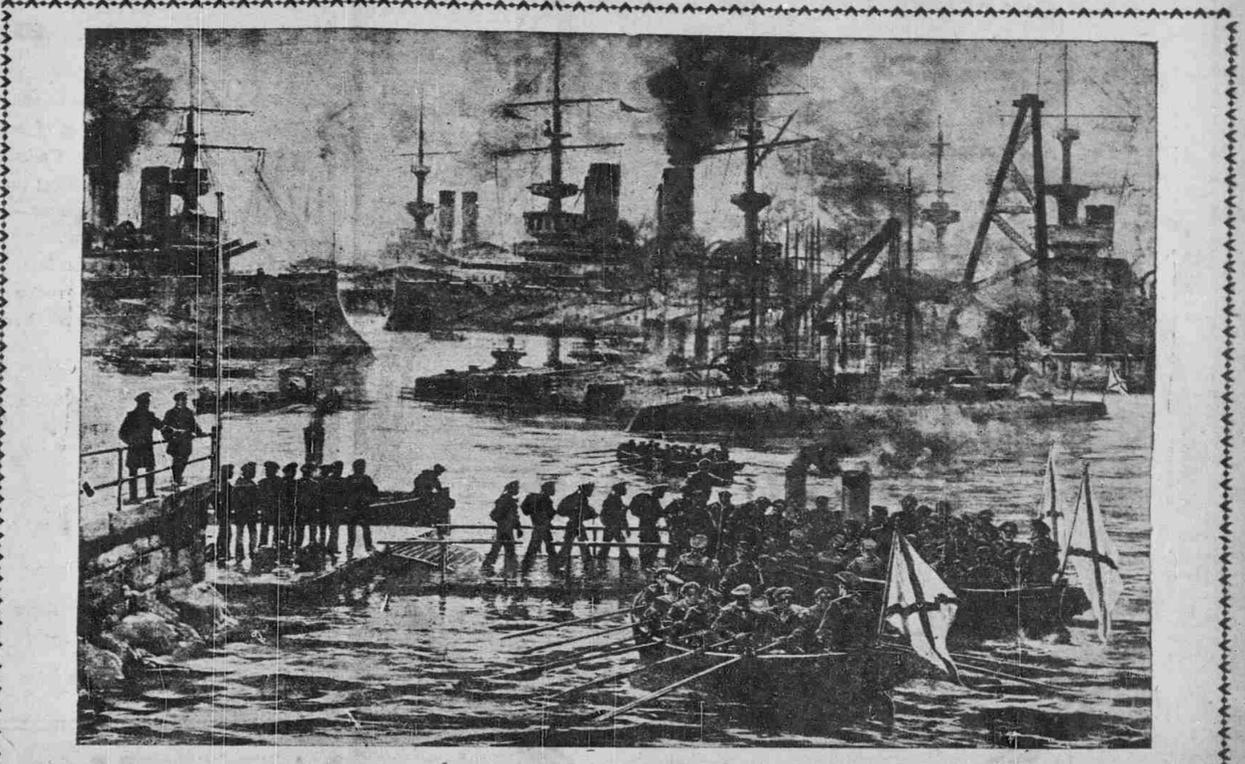

A Republican Executive requires the support of a Republican Legislature to carry out the policy of the administration, to live up to the demands of the platform, to make good its promises to the people, and in order that a faithful stewardship may be rendered to the National Executive that has placed the parties representative at the head of the Government of the Territory.

It needs a Republican Legislature in order that its work may be done decently, harmoniously and with expedition. A house divided cannot work in harmony, has little responsibility and accounts to no one.

To a Republican Legislature, in the event of delay, procrastination or inactivity, we who elect them can, with propriety, approach them with demands that the public business be carried out. To a house divided, and divided by our votes or lack of votes, we cannot go, we cannot demand, we cannot impugn, they would not be responsible to us, would repudiate our platform and laugh at our promises.

To those among you who feel that they can benefit their party, or the territory by "scratching" the ticket, let me say that the place to improve your party is from within, not from without, from the center not from the circumference. It is the earnest men who work not for gain, but faithful to their party, seek from within the ranks by precept, by example, by argument to hold their party to its ideals and purposes, to the destiny that has been foretold for it.

To the people's candidates that are present here tonight let me remind you and ask you to adopt the President's words, "the foundation stone of the Government is obedience to the law alike by the people and the public servants."

Public men arise, pass quickly on and are lost in the past. Measures are changed and adjusted to meet the exigencies of the times, but the Republican party and its principles, welded in the heat of war, tried at the bar of time, moving ever onward and upward must and shall go on; not by its own momentum, but upheld and moved by the hands and the votes of those who are its friends, by the example and precept, you who are here tonight, shall set for those who come after you.

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

Chairman A. G. M. Robertson of the Republican Central Committee was the next speaker, the title of his address being, "The Republican Platform." Mr. Robertson spoke for a long time, clearly enunciating the principles upon which the party was making its campaign. He said in part:

"A week ago tonight I happened to drop in here at the Democratic meeting. The first thing that caught my eye was a large picture of Abraham Lincoln, the first and foremost of our Republican Presidents (applause). It was not the only odd thing that struck me at that meeting. I listened with rapt attention for a few moments to Chairman W. A. Kinney. He made this statement referring to something in connection with the Republican campaign we were conducting: "When a whale spouts blood you may be sure that you have reached his vitals."

Mr. Robertson then told a story of his youth. The statement reminded him of a cheap chromo in a cheap frame which he remembered having seen in a billiard hall. It had a deep blue sky and some white clouds doing lofty tumbling. There was a representation of a sea and in the foreground a ship and a whale. Nearby was a boat and in it a couple of harpooners. The man, whose harpoon had already been thrown, looked very much like Curtis Iaukea, and the other man resembled W. A. Kinney. The latter was waiting to know the effect of Iaukea's shot. To his great satisfaction the whale began to spout, and amongst the salt water that was spouted was some blood, and then Kinney is supposed to have uttered the words as given above. But these pictures come in pairs, a sort of before and after style. In the next picture the harpoonists were seen flung the boat with his tail, smashing it. The harpoonists were seen floundering in the wreckage. Mr. Robertson said he believed the story told on those pictures would be repeated in the present campaign for the whole was the Republican party and on November 8 it would turn and sweep Iaukea, Kinney and the rest of the crew into the deep blue salt sea.

The speaker then turned his attention to the Republican platform and went through it paragraph by paragraph. (Continued on page 10.)
