House of Hapsburg to Have a Saint

Although the dynasties of Savoy and of Bourbon have furnished a number of saints to the Roman Catholic Church, and even England is able to number some of them among its ancient kings, the imperial house of Hapsburg has until now been without any such distinction. This neglect is in a fair way to be repaired, and the necessary and somewhat tedious procedure for the canonization of the Archduchess Magdalene of Hapsburg is now in progress at Rome and being followed with much interest by all the members of the imperial family.

She lived and flourished some 300 years ago; was renowned for her boundless charity, for her good works, and for her piety. In fact, both during her lifetime and ever since her death she has been revered throughout the Tyrol as a saint, and her beautiful tomb in the All Saints' Church of the ancient town of Hall, at the foot of Salzberg, has ever since been the bourne of pilgrimages on the part of the peasantry of the district. The archduchess spent all the closing years of her life as a Sister of Mercy, having taken the vows of a nun.

Emperor at Her Tomb.

The emperor on his way to Innsbruck the other day for the celebration of the centenary of the Tyrol's war of liberation from the French invaders stopped off at Hall, in order to visit the tomb of this archduchess, who is now on the eve of beatification, and found resting on her tomb the remains of a wreath of edelweiss, which the empress had placed there before her death.

Hall was also the residence of Archduke Ferdinand, Count of the Tyrol, whose romantic marriage to Philippina Welsler has furnished the inspiration to numerous poets and novelists. Philippina was the daughter of Franz Welsler, a wealthy merchant of Augsburg. The archduke first saw her at the diet held at Augsburg in 1547, and in the following year made her his wife.

The marriage was regarded as a terrible mesalliance by his father, Emperor Ferdinand, and it was not until twelve years later that Philippina succeeded in procuring access to him, when, throwing herself on her knees, she so moved him by her tears and beauty that he acknowledged her as his daughter, and elevated the two sons which she had borne to the archduke to the rank of margraves. During all the early years of her marriage Philippina found the utmost affection and the kindest support from her husband's sister, Archduchess Magdalene, and the two women were united throughout their respective lives by bonds of the warmest friendship.

IF SHE SHOULD ASK.

She told me to fly, and I flew.
She begged me to lie, and I lew.
I'll allow her to tack me,
But if she should ask me
To die, I'll be durned if I dew.

SCANDINAVIA BELTING

Is solid woven and cannot, under any circumstances, go to pieces.

It is far more uniform than leather belting and is entirely free from any side to side wavering, but runs true as an arrow.

The proved tensile strength is approximately 40 per cent greater than the best quality short lapped leather belt.

A special feature is the impregnation. The composition is such that it gives a superior grip, keeps the belt well lubricated and pliable, as well as rendering it impervious to moisture of any kind. It will run through water or oil.

Compare Scandinavia to rubber or stitched canvas belts. Scandinavia is far stronger, far more durable, far more pliable and will transmit far more power.

Write to us, or call at our office, and we will be glad to give you information as to the right belt for your needs.
