ENUMERATORS TO BE TESTED

MUST TAKE EXAMINATIONS

Method of Choosing Men Who Are to Collect Census Statistics.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 19.—U. S. Census Director E. Dana Durand stated today that the primary responsibility for securing efficient enumerators must rest with the supervisors of the census.

"It has been suggested from time to time," said the director, "that more efficient enumerators might be secured by competitive examination open to everybody. There is no doubt that if the expense and time required were not prohibitive, it would be advantageous to hold such an examination, although it would be necessary, instead of merely selecting those whose ranking in the examination was the highest, to refer all candidates who passed to the supervisor, and allow him to select those whose personal characteristics, such as can not be tested by any written examination, were most suitable. The difficulty with such an open examination is the expense and delay involved. It is probable that for the 65,000 places there would be several hundred thousand candidates, and the grading of their papers would require a large force for a long time. At some future census this plan might be worth a trial, but it can scarcely be attempted at the present census within the limits of time and appropriations set by law.

"The census bureau does, of course, undertake to protect itself," he continued, "against such obviously incompetent enumerators as the supervisors, through political influence or through oversight, may happen to choose. At the last census the enumerators recommended by the supervisors were all subjected to a test examination, and the same policy will be pursued this time. About one-sixth, or 9000, of the candidates selected by the supervisors were rejected as a result of this test in 1900. It may be wise to make the test at the present census a trifle more severe than at the twelfth census. At best, however, such an examination can do no more than eliminate those who can not write plainly and who are clearly lacking in an understanding of their duties. It can do little to assure the selection of men of industry, tact or honesty. The judgment, efficiency and integrity of the supervisors must be the prime reliance for securing enumerators who possess these fundamental qualifications.

"I hope and believe that the supervisors at the present census are on the whole a higher type of men than those at any preceding census. The compensation offered to supervisors is somewhat more than ever before, but it is not really an adequate remuneration for men of the character needed. I believe that a very considerable proportion of the supervisors who have been appointed are men who in their regular occupations or professions are able to earn much more than the supervisor's pay, and who have accepted the positions because of the honor and responsibility involved, or from patriotic motives. There has, however, been no new departure with respect to the general method of selecting supervisors, save only that in large cities, or most of them, selections have largely been made independently of political recommendations.

"It may not be inappropriate here to explain the reason why so-called political recommendations must be sought in the appointment of supervisors in most of the districts. The supervisor, in order to do his work properly, must be a resident of the district over which he has charge. The position is not one which can be filled by civil service examination. A supervisor should be a man of executive ability, such as no examination can test, and he should be a man well known in his community. Indeed, men of the type desired would not in most instances be willing to submit themselves to a civil service examination. Neither the director of the census, his superior officer; the secretary of commerce and labor, nor the President, can possibly have personal acquaintance throughout the country with men suitable to fill these positions, nor even with men, outside of political positions, whose advice they can seek. The representative of the district in congress or the party leaders in the district have the necessary knowledge of local conditions and local men, and it is not only natural, but practically necessary, as a matter of good administration, that they should be asked to make recommendations for positions of this character.

"Fortunately, members of congress and party leaders are coming more and more to appreciate the importance of accurate census statistics. The spoils idea of appointments is growing constantly less dominant. The director of the census has done everything possible to impress upon those whose opinions were asked regarding the supervisors, the importance of the necessity of having men of marked executive ability and of absolute integrity. The information furnished by members of congress and party leaders regarding the candidates whom they have recommended has been supplemented by full personal statements required from each candidate, and in most cases by numerous letters of indorsement from business and professional men.

"In the large cities the administration is evidently less dependent than in the country districts upon members of congress and party leaders for information regarding available material for such positions as that of supervisor of the census, and the President and the secretary of commerce and labor have joined with the director of the census in establishing the policy of making selections, whenever the information on which to act was available, without depending on the recommendations of political leaders."

CZOLGOSZ FLEES TO JAIL'S PROTECTION

Brother of Man Who Murdered President McKinley Seeks Shelter.

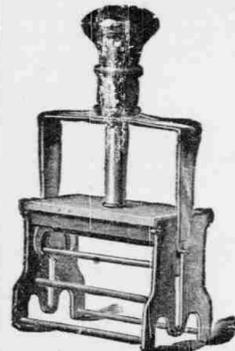

LOS ANGELES, October 12.—"Lock me up; I don't want to be shadowed all day," said a clean-looking, well-dressed laboring man, who walked into Los Angeles police headquarters alone yesterday. "What do you want to be locked up for?" asked the captain in charge. The man hesitated, glanced about to see that he was not overheard, and said, quietly: "My name is Czolgosz." It was the police captain's turn to hesitate, but he caught himself quickly. "Well, go over there and sit down," he said. And so it happened that the brother of the man who died for having robbed the nation of the life of one of its Presidents voluntarily sat in a police station while President Taft was driven through the streets. Aside from his relationship to one whose name is mentioned only in shame, the man has nothing about his life which he need hide.

RUSSIANS GIVING GENERAL SATISFACTION

Maui News—Nineteen families were assigned to the Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company and arrived in Kahului Saturday night on the Mauna Kea.

The Russians were taken at once to Camp 1, Spreckelsville, where they were told to select their own site for a camp where their homes will be. This they did, selecting a site not far from the new stables.

The people are giving excellent satisfaction so far and it is believed will prove a valuable asset to the Territory.
