Tom Sayers.

"Let us hear about it, m'sieu; let us hear about it, by all means!" "All right", then. Last Monday I go to Anson's Liver' stable requiring a horse for the afternoon. Only one horse not engaged, Anson tell me— Tom Sayers. After the prize-fighter he is named? I ask. No; one name was as good as another; he might have been called Napoleon Buona-parté—only he was not. Quel espece de caractere a-t-il?—his disposition! —temperament? Ho! why, I could ask his man Tom about that. I ask Tom, and Tom says his disposition is that of pet lambs. 'Produce your pet lamb, then; I'll ride him!' He is produced, and I say to myself, 'He has the most sinister 'ed I have seen yet. N'importe, however.'

"With infinite labor I am at length mounted on this immense, devilish 'orse. After which he immediately rush out of the stable and crush my laque against the gate-post. 'Disposition of a lamb,' I ejaculate; 'brigands, liars!' I hear them laugh, and Anson say it's as good as a play! We shall see!

"So soon as he is in the road he commences to retrograde—ma foi, I should think so, rather! My sacred word, he retrograde ten miles an hour—yes! I encourage him: 'Restez tranquille, Sayers! Allez! forward, little one! Proceed!' Not 'im proceed, by gar! 'Is it then that you are possessed always of a retrogressive devil, Sayers?' For answer he snorts and retrogrades up a cul-de-sac—a cul-de-sac overflowing with children, my friends, who retreat screaming from beneath the monstre. A father of one, emerging furious, asks me what I mean—to clear out pretty quick, or it will be worse! 'Mean?' I exclaim. 'I mean nothing. This devil inside a 'orse 'ide knows why I am here!' Crae, then! and the father hits Sayers a terrific blow on his sinister 'ed. Sayers bounds with rage, and precipitates himself on his enemies!

"We fly! No longer a horse and rider, we are a tornado, destructive, irresistible! How many we trample under foot irreparably I knw not. I see nothing. I am delirious with rage and terror. 'Sayers!' I shriek, 'evidently you are possessed with more devils than one; you are going back to 'ades, where you belong! You take a short cut, also alligator! for Sayers suddenly deflect up a lane terminated by a gate insurmountable, impossible.

"An eternal of insensibility. Eventually, I discover myself on one side of the gate and Sayers on the other. He is regarding me with his glaucous alligator's eye. 'Go 'ome, p'ti ange; go 'ome by yourself! This also, pourboire, and I dash the heaviest stone at him full in the face.

"Peruse this letter, gentlemen; it is from the proprietor of the wild beast."

Sir,—You hired a horse from Me on Monday and never returned him, he came home with a sweld Eye and Lather and had been cruel ill Used as witness My man. Fifty dollars will not cover it but if you send will take no Proceedings. yours Obedly. —Life. WILLIAM ANSON.

ED. THE INDEPENDENT:—

The following from the San Francisco News Letter, appears to have a Punahou "Rub it in" Hosmer ring about it. Blood relation, perhaps:

"The Rev. Dr. C. O. Brown is variously distinguished. Some months ago he made himself eminently odious because of his outrageous attacks upon a fellow preacher who had the unhappiness to differ with him. And now the good doctor is again prominent as the dictator of a little church society. There was for a week or two some discord in the organization, but the deacons of Dr. Brown's church have been pleased to announce that harmony has been entirely restored. Those who disagreed with the reverend boss have retired, and he now has his own way."

The peculiar religion of many members and their parsons of the Puritan churches of to-day, smacks more of the doings of old Diabolus than the teachings of our Savior.

ANTI-CALVIN.
