Al. Hazzard, the celebrated wizard has a very "naughty" lot of boys in his service. One of them actually referred to the "bucket brigade" last evening in connection with the 1895 affair. Some of the boys in the audience felt "homesick."

James Monkhouse, late of the Honolulu Iron Works, leaves by the Alameda for San Francisco to have an operation performed on his eyes. Some twenty years ago a small piece of steel was projected into his left eye and is now beginning to incommode him seriously.

An Ejection Case.

An important and interesting action in ejection was concluded yesterday before Judge Stanley and an Hawaiian Jury. The suit was brought by Mary K. Tibbetts against S. Pali, guardian of Oliva Lahela a minor, claiming certain valuable pieces of land at Aipaako, Kunawai, Kapalama-uka, and for $300 damages. The case was commenced on Monday morning and was continued without interruption until half-past five yesterday afternoon when the jury returned an unanimous verdict for the defendant. A large number of witnesses and much documentary evidence were introduced on both sides, and the case was hotly contested throughout. The length of time taken up by this case shows the fallacy of our present system of limited terms and a limited number of judges. Robertson & Wilder appeared for the plaintiff, and C. F. Peterson and C. Creighton for the guardian defendant.

Seventeen persons were killed and seventy injured by a collision at Juvisy, near Paris, France, between Orleans and Lyons trains during a terrible thunderstorm.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

Wela ka Hao, Honolulu's celebrated trotter, has been sold to an undertaker in Sacramento. It is evident that the "stiffs" of California's capital have to be buried in a "whiff." Wela ka Hao's record is 2:12, and we expect the undertaker will start his services in the "speedy" legislature.

Shall we ever have public spirit enough to build and endow a hospital for incurables, especially for consumptives? The harrowing tales that reach us of the necessity for such a building would make even a millionaire sugar baron's heart bleed, while he was planning to erect a palatial palace in Paris or San Francisco out of his Hawaiian "makings."

Secretary Dan Logan appears to be getting in excellent work "with tongue and pen" at Omaha. There is one good thing about Dan, he is reliable and conservative. Major Commissioner Ed. Towse will bring up a strong cohort of reserves with a "business-like" touch of vivid and poetical romance and dream-thoughts of magnificent possibilities.

One by one the baits offered to tempt the great annexation fish are dropping off as rotten frauds since it swallowed the unexpected bait of the Spanish war and imperialistic destiny. It passed by penal labor contracts and now has dodged the "Pearl Harbor Swindle" as it was termed in the California legislatures of the early seventies. The next bait to be passed by will be "advantageous tariffs."

The Associated Charities can undoubtedly do very valuable work in detecting professional alms seekers but so can the very experienced relief committees of the several national societies. By an independent co-operation without an actual alliance (on the Anglo-American national plan) they can render better service than if actually allied under one distributive head, at least so thinks THE INDEPENDENT.

Since we have been perfunctorily annexed we receive bad people with the good. We have always had bad people as well as good but the former seem to be increasing, and they should be held a little more under restraint and not condoned with. They who keep an eye open on public affairs notice with regret that there is too much condonation of offences when the parties affected belong to the "better classes." This kind of Americanization is unhealthy for public morals.

Since the old stone wall around the Kawaiahao Church yard has been pulled down and the lawns covered with beautiful grass, the yard has been used as a free sleeping department for the dangerous class of men who have no domicile and are not wanted here. We suggest to the Marshal that instructions be given to the officers patrolling King street during the night to throw the rays of their "bull-eyes" into the sacred premises of the old stone church and then eliminate the men who sleep there, alas! above the ground. This morning, at day break the writer saw two haoles leisurely getting up, dressing themselves and even taking a wash at the water pipe (the last action was a redeeming point.) When ready they left the premises through the gate then opened and vanished. Is it safe to have the church yard of Kawaiahao used as a place of rendezvous for vagrants and doubtful characters? It would be better, we think, to rebuild the old stone-wall and do away with the beautiful improvements recently made, than having the church yard used as a sleeping place for vagrants who are a menace to the neighborhood, a disgrace to humanity and an annoyance to the authorities.

Walnutine.

Lovejoy & Co. are the sole agents for Walnutine, one of the most excellent tonics ever introduced in the local market, while it has enjoyed a great demand in all tropical countries.

The tonic has the good qualities of Blackberry Brandy, but is far more palatable and composed of purer ingredients. It is not alone a tonic and a medicinal remedy for stomach troubles, but it makes a delicious refreshing drink mixed with mineral waters.

Persons who "don't drink" except when their stomach is out of order (and their names are legion) should try a bottle of Walnutine and they will feel better ever after.
