

THE DAILY Honolulu Press Will be for sale Daily at the Following Places:

TO-DAY'S ENGAGEMENTS. Lyons & Cohen will have their regular cash sale at 10 A. M.

LOCAL NEWS. Last night was prayer-meeting night. Some of the boys forgot to go home the other night.

It is reported that sharks are daily seen off the Pacific Mail dock. The steamer Alameda will leave at noon to-day for San Francisco.

Almost a blaze in Mrs. Green's house on Garden Lane night before last.

Chief Justice Judd and family enjoyed a private picnic at Pawaa yesterday.

Herbert Mossman has resigned his seat in the six-oared crew of the Eclipse Boat Club.

Don't forget the grand ball of Engine Co. No. 1, to be held at the Yosemite Skating Rink to-night.

Two large lattice gables were yesterday carted away from Lincoln's carpenter shop on King street.

The Hawaiian Bell Telephone Co. have issued new lists which contain the names of 450 subscribers.

Mrs. A. F. Morris has started a dress-making establishment in one of the rooms over the new bank on Fort street.

It is rumored that the battery on Punchbowl hill is to be renewed. For the protection of what and whom, please?

Mr. D. M. Crowley has gotten out hand bills for temperance lectures, which, it is understood, he will deliver through the other islands this fall.

It seems very strange that the owners of the Ka Mo'i, waited seven days before they sent another vessel to look for the missing schooner.

A new and strange fish has been caught at Pepeekeo Plantation, Hawaii; the specimen has been preserved and a water color drawing of it has been sent here.

From the Gazette we learn that Mr. D. D. Baldwin has resigned his position under the Government as Inspector of Schools and has been appointed to teach at Lahainaluna.

A Chinaman who arrived in town about half-past seven o'clock last night reported that he saw a man lying drunk in the middle of the road, near the Long Branch Baths.

The Chinese melon raisers of Puna-hou are watching their crops by moonlight to assist the chances of the melons getting ripe. The Chinese say "Melican man no good; melon way up."

Last night while the church bells were ringing somebody asked the central office where the fire was and the bell boy answered that they would find out in the sweet mahope—or words to that effect.

Of course, it will do no earthly good, but it is only justice to suggest that if the road supervisor will take a drive through School street at a sharp trot, he will see the necessity of repairs, which residents already wot of.

Punchbowl street had a quiet little runaway of its own yesterday afternoon. A native hack driver succeeded in demolishing part of a picket fence and one of his hack lamps before he got his "Arabian steed" into the middle of the street.

Mr. Charles Furneaux has just finished and has on exhibition at Williams & Co's photograph gallery on Fort Street, a fine portrait in oil, of Mr. A. J. Cartwright. The portrait is life-size and is one of the best productions of Mr. Furneaux's pen.

Yesterday afternoon the Station House was closed up in front while the policemen were being paid off in the rear. The back stairs seemed in a constant jingle and every dusky guardian of the public peace was wreathed in a half a dozen smiles.

The regular monthly sociable of the Union Bethel Church will be held this evening at the residence of the pastor, Rev. E. C. Oggel, on Nuuanu street, at 7:30 o'clock. There will be refreshments and a good musical and literary programme. Everybody is invited.

Some of the British men-of-war's-men came ashore yesterday, and took down the flag-staff at the British Consulate on Emma street. After it was taken down it was scrapped and oiled and replaced in position again. It can be seen shining like a Hawaiian dollar this morning.

A drunken native tried to clean out the composing rooms of the Press office yesterday afternoon. He was promptly ejected by the foreman, and after standing on the outside using vile and profane language until every policeman within two blocks ought to have heard him, some of his friends took him away.

Mr. Wm. Gillespie, an old newspaper man, who came here to work on the Daily Hawaiian when it was started, and who has been in ill health lately, will return to the coast by the Alameda to-day. Mr. Gillespie's home is at Virginia City, Nevada.

Native maiden do you know Where your velvet footies go? Do they lead you down to poi In the fullness of your joy?

Yesterday afternoon one of the English man-of-war's-men hired a horse to see and enjoy the sights of the town. He was seen by a passer coming along Hotel street, trying to induce his fiery steed to go, and was asked, "What is the trouble?" He immediately replied: "The old blooming bloody luggar of an old 'orse won't go."

A half dozen native children were engaged yesterday on Merchant street playing "smuggling opium." It seems to be catching. These youngsters were "playing" that one yard was the sea and that the next one to it was Honolulu. The merry smugglers were getting the best of it at last advice. Moral: The child is father of the man.

At the lecture on General Grant, given Monday evening, September 28th, delivered by Major Dane at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, the avails, after deducting actual expenses were one hundred and three dollars and seventy five cents, which is to be divided equally between the two organizations before mentioned. Many thanks to Major Dane.

It was rumored on the street yesterday that as there was no more money to pay the hand boys with, there will be no more note blowing for some time to come. It is a pity if it turns out that a "paternal Government" can not even afford to pay for its own amusements—but then it does its own blowing to be sure, as almost every body else does.

If the young gentlemen who pulled pistols on each other the night before last on Beretania street will be considerate enough to use them the next time they get mad, they will do the community in general a great favor—provided always that they shoot straight. By the way, how is the law about irresponsible persons carrying deadly weapons?

An old native relic was found in the Waianae Mountains a few weeks ago. It is made of smooth, polished stone, is about fourteen inches long, round, and tapering from the centre to both ends. What it was used for and what age it belongs to are merely conjectured. The gentleman who found it will probably place it in the Government museum.

It is reported that Mr. Jim Sherwood who drives the Waikiki bus has decided to get a large patent mousethipe for his fish horn, so that he will be able to wake people up three blocks away, instead of one as at present. It is further reported that this designing busman intends to build a monument to his cheek, in the memories of the people, by asking for donations to said patent mousethipe.

The Board of Health has lately been engaged in fixing a water pipe which was making a swamp back of the store of Goo Kim. The Board of Health has done all it could in this instance with the limited funds at its disposal, by turning this filthy waste into a small water-closet vault back of the store of Mr. T. G. Thrum. The next move of the property owners will probably be to have this new nuisance abated.

Last evening about seven o'clock the hack driven by a Chinaman ran into the stone parapet of the first Nuuanu street bridge. The hack contained two native women and a child. When it struck the parapet it was careened and the child was thrown to the ground and received several severe bruises about the head. Instead of helping the woman and child the Chinaman left them to themselves and began to right his hack. The child was picked up by a passer and the women took it away.

Since Mr. Henry Hart has refitted the Elite Ice Cream Parlors on Hotel street and has succeeded, by importing a first class confectioner from San Francisco, in improving the grade of Honolulu creams and iced drinks, his trade has so materially increased that almost every evening a right merry crowd of young people may be seen enjoying themselves behind his doors. One of the neatest things in the new parlors is the unique automatic soda fountain. It is a real treat to ye tired and thirsty scribbles to drop into Henry's about eleven P. M. and fill up on a dish or two of mixed ice creams.

They say: that the sharks seen in the bay were at one time bottled up with the snakes; that one of Jimmie Williams' photo-takers struck a negative and got into trouble; that the next elections will be decided before they come off; that a "fancy" suit will be commenced to-day; that is, if somebody's courage doesn't fail; that the true business of rulers is to protect the interests of their subjects; that revolutions seldom occur where the people have bread to cut with their knives; that the joke of the season is to be seen on Hotel street; that one of the handsomest men in town is one of the brownest; that the sprinkler makes too much mud on Merchant street; that the best time to catch fish is at 5 A. M.—in the Market; that the man who writes nonsense for the newspapers knows better, but that he can't help it.

Mr. William Oliphant died yesterday afternoon at about a quarter before two o'clock at his residence in Honolulu. He had been sick only three days. On last Monday Mr. Oliphant injured himself while lifting a heavy box in his butcher shop on Hotel street. He was immediately taken home and placed under the doctor's care. Shortly before two o'clock yesterday he suddenly vomited blood and almost immediately expired. It is supposed that the strain of lifting had ruptured a blood vessel. Mr. Oliphant was a highly respected citizen, was 33 years and 6 months of age and was a native of Scotland. The funeral will take place this afternoon at two o'clock from his late residence at No. 3 Kukui Place.
