

FIND OUT YOURSELF.

Why ask a physician to find out whether your kidneys are diseased. Take a glass tumbler and fill it with urine. If there is a sediment after standing twenty-four hours your kidneys are sick. If you have a desire to urinate often, a pain in the back, or if your urine stains linen you should at once take Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, as delay is dangerous. There is no question about it being the best and surest medicine in the world for any and all diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and of the urinary passages, rheumatism, dyspepsia or constipation of the bowels. It quickly relieves inability to hold urine and the necessity of getting up often during the night. It stops that scalding pain when passing urine and corrects the bad effects of whisky and beer. It is sold by all druggists at $1 a bottle. You can have a trial bottle and pamphlet of valuable medical advice sent free by mail, postpaid, by mentioning this paper and sending your address to the Dr. Kennedy Corporation, Rondout, N. Y.

FURS

Bring in your furs and have them made over in the latest style.

H. SINGER, 108 EAST MAIN.

AN EXPERT OPTICIAN

Can often relieve one of a good deal of suffering. When your eyes trouble you it is wise to always seek the best optical expert in the country and have your eyes treated. With his many delicate instruments the exact difficulties can be located by a good optician, and in most cases glasses can be fitted that will relieve the pains, correct the vision and make life worth living once again.

Geo. J. Allen, 14 EAST MAIN.

Eye and Ear Infirmary.

DR. B. F. KIERULFF, EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT 104 East Main Street.

F. A. GILLETTE,

Dray and Expressman.

PIANO MOVING A SPECIALTY.

W. T. MAXEY, LAWYER.

Will practice in all state and federal courts. Criminal practice a specialty. 10 EAST MAIN STREET - OVER LEE & BENEDETTI STORE - MARSHALLTOWN IOWA

W. H. DRAPER, ATTORNEY AT LAW, MARSHALLTOWN, IOWA. Room 9 City Bank Building.

DR. L. CLARK-MIGHELL, EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT. Over 10 West Main Street, MARSHALLTOWN, IOWA

J. M. PARKER, ATTORNEY AT LAW. Practices in State and Federal Courts. OFFICE OVER 27 WEST MAIN ST. COPPOSITE TREMONT, MARSHALLTOWN, IOWA

South Dakota Real Estate

FOR SALE BY D. W. BURRIGHT, OF MITCHELL, SOUTH DAKOTA. Choice Farms and Cattle Ranches for Sale in Different Parts of the State. Write for Prices.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Don't fail to try BEECHAM'S PILLS when suffering from any kind of constipation. 10 cents and 25 cents at drug stores.

SUSPECTS IN DAKOTA

Sheriff Receives Word that Men Are Under Arrest There Suspected of Being Murderers.

Telegram Says the Suspects Committed an Offense Similar to That Here.

Detective Cleary Again in the City - A Smart Communication From Grinnell.

A telegram came this morning to Sheriff McPherson from Parker, S. D., asking for a description of the men supposed to have murdered Brakemen Wilson and Matthews, of the Great Western. The telegram read as follows: "Parker, S. D., Sept. 7.-J. W. McPherson, Sheriff: Wire description of murderers of Great Western brakemen. Have men who committed similar offense. H. H. KIRK, Sheriff."

The description of the men was sent, as requested, but the officers have little faith that the arrests will prove of importance. Detective Cleary, of the Chicago Great Western, who was detailed by the company to work on the case, is again in the city, and is investigating some of the matters in connection with the statements of Charles Fitzgerald, the former Central employe who was doing a great deal of talking and who disappeared when he was asked to bring in his evidence against the strangers arrested on his claims that they were the murderers.

A FUNNER FOR THE SHERIFF. Latin and Greek had no place in the curriculum of the schools that the sheriff and his assistants attended. Grinnell College, Dr. Herron and applied christianity were unheard of during their school days, so when the following letter, with a Grinnell postmark, and written in two different languages, reached the sheriff's office there was much speculation. Enclosed with the letter was a clipping from a newspaper containing an account of the double murder two weeks ago. The sheriff passed up the first portion as a Chinese puzzle, but the second paragraph, as Dutch. County Attorney Stone pronounced the first Greek and the second Latin, and said the statements in each were the same. The first portion cannot be reproduced, as newspaper plants are not equipped with similar hieroglyphics, but the second paragraph in the letter was as follows: "Operamini non obum, qui perit, sed qui permanet in vitam aeternam, quem Filius hominis dicit vobis. Hunc enim Pater signavit Deus."

Jack insisted that this is about what the Grinnell meant. "Operate no more with the bums; quit perisping; give permanent invitation to you to come here, fill up on hominy, rabbit, pie, ham, onions. Signed, Pat and Duce." At least he considered that about as sane as the correct interpretation, which was furnished by the T.-R., as follows: "Work not on that material which vanished, but on that which remained in the continuous existence, which the son of man gave to you. This, indeed, God, the father, has pointed out. With whom will you be written by a fool, by some smart student who thinks the sheriff's officers have nothing to do but study the languages, or by a spiritualistic medium is a question the officers have not yet determined, and will not try to determine. COMMENT FROM DES MOINES. The Des Moines capital, commenting on the killing of the two brakemen near this city, says: "The American people have long tolerated the tramp. The public at one time believed that the tramp was not responsible for his condition; that he was a victim of adverse circumstances and deserving of sympathy and assistance. This belief grows out of the fact that hard times some years ago threw many men out of employment, and the city that was stirred then has lasted all through these years of good times and steady work for those who honestly seek it. This old world has the reputation of being cold and heartless, but the consideration that is shown the professional tramp proves that the world is not rightly judged. The fellow that shuns honest labor, that beats his way about the country, that loafs around water towers and depots all through the long days of summer and the short days of winter, and who seeks food to fill his worthless carcass and clothing to cover it at the homes of honest toilers is rarely turned away empty-handed. The good housewife fears to refuse lest a deserving man be denied something at her hands. The world is not so cruel after all when it will feed lazy and worthless vagabonds who insist that the railroads should transport them from place to place free of charge and who will murder the train employe who disputes that right. Everybody knows that the men who are 'tramping' it now are not the men who were thrown out of employment years ago, but the tramp is still tolerated, still fed and clothed. The trappers and Debs encourage the tramp to believe that the world has committed a great wrong against him; that our social and economic conditions are such that a poor man stands no show whatever, and that idleness will bring practically the same results as industry. The teachings of these men are partly responsible for the tramps and do much to keep alive the sympathy that was created when men were idle for cause. The tramp at the present time is a crime against society. He is no more to be defended in levying tribute on the industrious classes by begging than he is when stealing his passage on trains. He is a nuisance and a dangerous one."

At least he considered that about as sane as the correct interpretation, which was furnished by the T.-R., as follows: "Work not on that material which vanished, but on that which remained in the continuous existence, which the son of man gave to you. This, indeed, God, the father, has pointed out. With whom will you be written by a fool, by some smart student who thinks the sheriff's officers have nothing to do but study the languages, or by a spiritualistic medium is a question the officers have not yet determined, and will not try to determine. COMMENT FROM DES MOINES. The Des Moines capital, commenting on the killing of the two brakemen near this city, says: "The American people have long tolerated the tramp. The public at one time believed that the tramp was not responsible for his condition; that he was a victim of adverse circumstances and deserving of sympathy and assistance. This belief grows out of the fact that hard times some years ago threw many men out of employment, and the city that was stirred then has lasted all through these years of good times and steady work for those who honestly seek it. This old world has the reputation of being cold and heartless, but the consideration that is shown the professional tramp proves that the world is not rightly judged. The fellow that shuns honest labor, that beats his way about the country, that loafs around water towers and depots all through the long days of summer and the short days of winter, and who seeks food to fill his worthless carcass and clothing to cover it at the homes of honest toilers is rarely turned away empty-handed. The good housewife fears to refuse lest a deserving man be denied something at her hands. The world is not so cruel after all when it will feed lazy and worthless vagabonds who insist that the railroads should transport them from place to place free of charge and who will murder the train employe who disputes that right. Everybody knows that the men who are 'tramping' it now are not the men who were thrown out of employment years ago, but the tramp is still tolerated, still fed and clothed. The trappers and Debs encourage the tramp to believe that the world has committed a great wrong against him; that our social and economic conditions are such that a poor man stands no show whatever, and that idleness will bring practically the same results as industry. The teachings of these men are partly responsible for the tramps and do much to keep alive the sympathy that was created when men were idle for cause. The tramp at the present time is a crime against society. He is no more to be defended in levying tribute on the industrious classes by begging than he is when stealing his passage on trains. He is a nuisance and a dangerous one."

At least he considered that about as sane as the correct interpretation, which was furnished by the T.-R., as follows: "Work not on that material which vanished, but on that which remained in the continuous existence, which the son of man gave to you. This, indeed, God, the father, has pointed out. With whom will you be written by a fool, by some smart student who thinks the sheriff's officers have nothing to do but study the languages, or by a spiritualistic medium is a question the officers have not yet determined, and will not try to determine. COMMENT FROM DES MOINES. The Des Moines capital, commenting on the killing of the two brakemen near this city, says: "The American people have long tolerated the tramp. The public at one time believed that the tramp was not responsible for his condition; that he was a victim of adverse circumstances and deserving of sympathy and assistance. This belief grows out of the fact that hard times some years ago threw many men out of employment, and the city that was stirred then has lasted all through these years of good times and steady work for those who honestly seek it. This old world has the reputation of being cold and heartless, but the consideration that is shown the professional tramp proves that the world is not rightly judged. The fellow that shuns honest labor, that beats his way about the country, that loafs around water towers and depots all through the long days of summer and the short days of winter, and who seeks food to fill his worthless carcass and clothing to cover it at the homes of honest toilers is rarely turned away empty-handed. The good housewife fears to refuse lest a deserving man be denied something at her hands. The world is not so cruel after all when it will feed lazy and worthless vagabonds who insist that the railroads should transport them from place to place free of charge and who will murder the train employe who disputes that right. Everybody knows that the men who are 'tramping' it now are not the men who were thrown out of employment years ago, but the tramp is still tolerated, still fed and clothed. The trappers and Debs encourage the tramp to believe that the world has committed a great wrong against him; that our social and economic conditions are such that a poor man stands no show whatever, and that idleness will bring practically the same results as industry. The teachings of these men are partly responsible for the tramps and do much to keep alive the sympathy that was created when men were idle for cause. The tramp at the present time is a crime against society. He is no more to be defended in levying tribute on the industrious classes by begging than he is when stealing his passage on trains. He is a nuisance and a dangerous one."

At least he considered that about as sane as the correct interpretation, which was furnished by the T.-R., as follows: "Work not on that material which vanished, but on that which remained in the continuous existence, which the son of man gave to you. This, indeed, God, the father, has pointed out. With whom will you be written by a fool, by some smart student who thinks the sheriff's officers have nothing to do but study the languages, or by a spiritualistic medium is a question the officers have not yet determined, and will not try to determine. COMMENT FROM DES MOINES. The Des Moines capital, commenting on the killing of the two brakemen near this city, says: "The American people have long tolerated the tramp. The public at one time believed that the tramp was not responsible for his condition; that he was a victim of adverse circumstances and deserving of sympathy and assistance. This belief grows out of the fact that hard times some years ago threw many men out of employment, and the city that was stirred then has lasted all through these years of good times and steady work for those who honestly seek it. This old world has the reputation of being cold and heartless, but the consideration that is shown the professional tramp proves that the world is not rightly judged. The fellow that shuns honest labor, that beats his way about the country, that loafs around water towers and depots all through the long days of summer and the short days of winter, and who seeks food to fill his worthless carcass and clothing to cover it at the homes of honest toilers is rarely turned away empty-handed. The good housewife fears to refuse lest a deserving man be denied something at her hands. The world is not so cruel after all when it will feed lazy and worthless vagabonds who insist that the railroads should transport them from place to place free of charge and who will murder the train employe who disputes that right. Everybody knows that the men who are 'tramping' it now are not the men who were thrown out of employment years ago, but the tramp is still tolerated, still fed and clothed. The trappers and Debs encourage the tramp to believe that the world has committed a great wrong against him; that our social and economic conditions are such that a poor man stands no show whatever, and that idleness will bring practically the same results as industry. The teachings of these men are partly responsible for the tramps and do much to keep alive the sympathy that was created when men were idle for cause. The tramp at the present time is a crime against society. He is no more to be defended in levying tribute on the industrious classes by begging than he is when stealing his passage on trains. He is a nuisance and a dangerous one."

At least he considered that about as sane as the correct interpretation, which was furnished by the T.-R., as follows: "Work not on that material which vanished, but on that which remained in the continuous existence, which the son of man gave to you. This, indeed, God, the father, has pointed out. With whom will you be written by a fool, by some smart student who thinks the sheriff's officers have nothing to do but study the languages, or by a spiritualistic medium is a question the officers have not yet determined, and will not try to determine. COMMENT FROM DES MOINES. The Des Moines capital, commenting on the killing of the two brakemen near this city, says: "The American people have long tolerated the tramp. The public at one time believed that the tramp was not responsible for his condition; that he was a victim of adverse circumstances and deserving of sympathy and assistance. This belief grows out of the fact that hard times some years ago threw many men out of employment, and the city that was stirred then has lasted all through these years of good times and steady work for those who honestly seek it. This old world has the reputation of being cold and heartless, but the consideration that is shown the professional tramp proves that the world is not rightly judged. The fellow that shuns honest labor, that beats his way about the country, that loafs around water towers and depots all through the long days of summer and the short days of winter, and who seeks food to fill his worthless carcass and clothing to cover it at the homes of honest toilers is rarely turned away empty-handed. The good housewife fears to refuse lest a deserving man be denied something at her hands. The world is not so cruel after all when it will feed lazy and worthless vagabonds who insist that the railroads should transport them from place to place free of charge and who will murder the train employe who disputes that right. Everybody knows that the men who are 'tramping' it now are not the men who were thrown out of employment years ago, but the tramp is still tolerated, still fed and clothed. The trappers and Debs encourage the tramp to believe that the world has committed a great wrong against him; that our social and economic conditions are such that a poor man stands no show whatever, and that idleness will bring practically the same results as industry. The teachings of these men are partly responsible for the tramps and do much to keep alive the sympathy that was created when men were idle for cause. The tramp at the present time is a crime against society. He is no more to be defended in levying tribute on the industrious classes by begging than he is when stealing his passage on trains. He is a nuisance and a dangerous one."

At least he considered that about as sane as the correct interpretation, which was furnished by the T.-R., as follows: "Work not on that material which vanished, but on that which remained in the continuous existence, which the son of man gave to you. This, indeed, God, the father, has pointed out. With whom will you be written by a fool, by some smart student who thinks the sheriff's officers have nothing to do but study the languages, or by a spiritualistic medium is a question the officers have not yet determined, and will not try to determine. COMMENT FROM DES MOINES. The Des Moines capital, commenting on the killing of the two brakemen near this city, says: "The American people have long tolerated the tramp. The public at one time believed that the tramp was not responsible for his condition; that he was a victim of adverse circumstances and deserving of sympathy and assistance. This belief grows out of the fact that hard times some years ago threw many men out of employment, and the city that was stirred then has lasted all through these years of good times and steady work for those who honestly seek it. This old world has the reputation of being cold and heartless, but the consideration that is shown the professional tramp proves that the world is not rightly judged. The fellow that shuns honest labor, that beats his way about the country, that loafs around water towers and depots all through the long days of summer and the short days of winter, and who seeks food to fill his worthless carcass and clothing to cover it at the homes of honest toilers is rarely turned away empty-handed. The good housewife fears to refuse lest a deserving man be denied something at her hands. The world is not so cruel after all when it will feed lazy and worthless vagabonds who insist that the railroads should transport them from place to place free of charge and who will murder the train employe who disputes that right. Everybody knows that the men who are 'tramping' it now are not the men who were thrown out of employment years ago, but the tramp is still tolerated, still fed and clothed. The trappers and Debs encourage the tramp to believe that the world has committed a great wrong against him; that our social and economic conditions are such that a poor man stands no show whatever, and that idleness will bring practically the same results as industry. The teachings of these men are partly responsible for the tramps and do much to keep alive the sympathy that was created when men were idle for cause. The tramp at the present time is a crime against society. He is no more to be defended in levying tribute on the industrious classes by begging than he is when stealing his passage on trains. He is a nuisance and a dangerous one."

At least he considered that about as sane as the correct interpretation, which was furnished by the T.-R., as follows: "Work not on that material which vanished, but on that which remained in the continuous existence, which the son of man gave to you. This, indeed, God, the father, has pointed out. With whom will you be written by a fool, by some smart student who thinks the sheriff's officers have nothing to do but study the languages, or by a spiritualistic medium is a question the officers have not yet determined, and will not try to determine. COMMENT FROM DES MOINES. The Des Moines capital, commenting on the killing of the two brakemen near this city, says: "The American people have long tolerated the tramp. The public at one time believed that the tramp was not responsible for his condition; that he was a victim of adverse circumstances and deserving of sympathy and assistance. This belief grows out of the fact that hard times some years ago threw many men out of employment, and the city that was stirred then has lasted all through these years of good times and steady work for those who honestly seek it. This old world has the reputation of being cold and heartless, but the consideration that is shown the professional tramp proves that the world is not rightly judged. The fellow that shuns honest labor, that beats his way about the country, that loafs around water towers and depots all through the long days of summer and the short days of winter, and who seeks food to fill his worthless carcass and clothing to cover it at the homes of honest toilers is rarely turned away empty-handed. The good housewife fears to refuse lest a deserving man be denied something at her hands. The world is not so cruel after all when it will feed lazy and worthless vagabonds who insist that the railroads should transport them from place to place free of charge and who will murder the train employe who disputes that right. Everybody knows that the men who are 'tramping' it now are not the men who were thrown out of employment years ago, but the tramp is still tolerated, still fed and clothed. The trappers and Debs encourage the tramp to believe that the world has committed a great wrong against him; that our social and economic conditions are such that a poor man stands no show whatever, and that idleness will bring practically the same results as industry. The teachings of these men are partly responsible for the tramps and do much to keep alive the sympathy that was created when men were idle for cause. The tramp at the present time is a crime against society. He is no more to be defended in levying tribute on the industrious classes by begging than he is when stealing his passage on trains. He is a nuisance and a dangerous one."

At least he considered that about as sane as the correct interpretation, which was furnished by the T.-R., as follows: "Work not on that material which vanished, but on that which remained in the continuous existence, which the son of man gave to you. This, indeed, God, the father, has pointed out. With whom will you be written by a fool, by some smart student who thinks the sheriff's officers have nothing to do but study the languages, or by a spiritualistic medium is a question the officers have not yet determined, and will not try to determine. COMMENT FROM DES MOINES. The Des Moines capital, commenting on the killing of the two brakemen near this city, says: "The American people have long tolerated the tramp. The public at one time believed that the tramp was not responsible for his condition; that he was a victim of adverse circumstances and deserving of sympathy and assistance. This belief grows out of the fact that hard times some years ago threw many men out of employment, and the city that was stirred then has lasted all through these years of good times and steady work for those who honestly seek it. This old world has the reputation of being cold and heartless, but the consideration that is shown the professional tramp proves that the world is not rightly judged. The fellow that shuns honest labor, that beats his way about the country, that loafs around water towers and depots all through the long days of summer and the short days of winter, and who seeks food to fill his worthless carcass and clothing to cover it at the homes of honest toilers is rarely turned away empty-handed. The good housewife fears to refuse lest a deserving man be denied something at her hands. The world is not so cruel after all when it will feed lazy and worthless vagabonds who insist that the railroads should transport them from place to place free of charge and who will murder the train employe who disputes that right. Everybody knows that the men who are 'tramping' it now are not the men who were thrown out of employment years ago, but the tramp is still tolerated, still fed and clothed. The trappers and Debs encourage the tramp to believe that the world has committed a great wrong against him; that our social and economic conditions are such that a poor man stands no show whatever, and that idleness will bring practically the same results as industry. The teachings of these men are partly responsible for the tramps and do much to keep alive the sympathy that was created when men were idle for cause. The tramp at the present time is a crime against society. He is no more to be defended in levying tribute on the industrious classes by begging than he is when stealing his passage on trains. He is a nuisance and a dangerous one."

At least he considered that about as sane as the correct interpretation, which was furnished by the T.-R., as follows: "Work not on that material which vanished, but on that which remained in the continuous existence, which the son of man gave to you. This, indeed, God, the father, has pointed out. With whom will you be written by a fool, by some smart student who thinks the sheriff's officers have nothing to do but study the languages, or by a spiritualistic medium is a question the officers have not yet determined, and will not try to determine. COMMENT FROM DES MOINES. The Des Moines capital, commenting on the killing of the two brakemen near this city, says: "The American people have long tolerated the tramp. The public at one time believed that the tramp was not responsible for his condition; that he was a victim of adverse circumstances and deserving of sympathy and assistance. This belief grows out of the fact that hard times some years ago threw many men out of employment, and the city that was stirred then has lasted all through these years of good times and steady work for those who honestly seek it. This old world has the reputation of being cold and heartless, but the consideration that is shown the professional tramp proves that the world is not rightly judged. The fellow that shuns honest labor, that beats his way about the country, that loafs around water towers and depots all through the long days of summer and the short days of winter, and who seeks food to fill his worthless carcass and clothing to cover it at the homes of honest toilers is rarely turned away empty-handed. The good housewife fears to refuse lest a deserving man be denied something at her hands. The world is not so cruel after all when it will feed lazy and worthless vagabonds who insist that the railroads should transport them from place to place free of charge and who will murder the train employe who disputes that right. Everybody knows that the men who are 'tramping' it now are not the men who were thrown out of employment years ago, but the tramp is still tolerated, still fed and clothed. The trappers and Debs encourage the tramp to believe that the world has committed a great wrong against him; that our social and economic conditions are such that a poor man stands no show whatever, and that idleness will bring practically the same results as industry. The teachings of these men are partly responsible for the tramps and do much to keep alive the sympathy that was created when men were idle for cause. The tramp at the present time is a crime against society. He is no more to be defended in levying tribute on the industrious classes by begging than he is when stealing his passage on trains. He is a nuisance and a dangerous one."

At least he considered that about as sane as the correct interpretation, which was furnished by the T.-R., as follows: "Work not on that material which vanished, but on that which remained in the continuous existence, which the son of man gave to you. This, indeed, God, the father, has pointed out. With whom will you be written by a fool, by some smart student who thinks the sheriff's officers have nothing to do but study the languages, or by a spiritualistic medium is a question the officers have not yet determined, and will not try to determine. COMMENT FROM DES MOINES. The Des Moines capital, commenting on the killing of the two brakemen near this city, says: "The American people have long tolerated the tramp. The public at one time believed that the tramp was not responsible for his condition; that he was a victim of adverse circumstances and deserving of sympathy and assistance. This belief grows out of the fact that hard times some years ago threw many men out of employment, and the city that was stirred then has lasted all through these years of good times and steady work for those who honestly seek it. This old world has the reputation of being cold and heartless, but the consideration that is shown the professional tramp proves that the world is not rightly judged. The fellow that shuns honest labor, that beats his way about the country, that loafs around water towers and depots all through the long days of summer and the short days of winter, and who seeks food to fill his worthless carcass and clothing to cover it at the homes of honest toilers is rarely turned away empty-handed. The good housewife fears to refuse lest a deserving man be denied something at her hands. The world is not so cruel after all when it will feed lazy and worthless vagabonds who insist that the railroads should transport them from place to place free of charge and who will murder the train employe who disputes that right. Everybody knows that the men who are 'tramping' it now are not the men who were thrown out of employment years ago, but the tramp is still tolerated, still fed and clothed. The trappers and Debs encourage the tramp to believe that the world has committed a great wrong against him; that our social and economic conditions are such that a poor man stands no show whatever, and that idleness will bring practically the same results as industry. The teachings of these men are partly responsible for the tramps and do much to keep alive the sympathy that was created when men were idle for cause. The tramp at the present time is a crime against society. He is no more to be defended in levying tribute on the industrious classes by begging than he is when stealing his passage on trains. He is a nuisance and a dangerous one."

afternoon a divorce granted to Mrs. Adelaide Norton from Arthur H. Norton on the grounds of inhuman treatment. Continuances were taken in the suits of Frank Hoffman vs. Matilda Hoffman, Herman Kobbe, administrator, vs. C. & N. W. railway, and D. Denmead vs. John Bieg, James Andrews et al. The case of John Bieg and James Andrews against Mr. Denmead was dismissed. B. F. Cummings was appointed guardian of Vern Dillon, son of the late H. E. Dillon, a former Iowa Central employe.

TO PLAY DES MOINES.

Members of Country Club to Meet a Golf Club in Capitol City. Four members of the Marshalltown Country Club-Frank V. Friend, Eugene Blinford, Harry R. Cammack and Chemist Mummer of the Glucose Sugar Refining Company-will meet at Des Moines on Monday next, where they have been challenged to meet golf players of the capital city club in a thirty-six-hole game. Eighteen holes will be played in the forenoon and the same number in the afternoon. The match is not for any special prize, neither for the championship, but just for the friendly purpose of ascertaining which of the teams is superior. The Des Moines club members will play a return game here later in the fall, the exact date of which is not yet determined upon. Arrangements are also in progress for two match games with a team from the Cedar Rapids club, one to be played in this city and the other in Cedar Rapids.

SUCCESS IN A YEAR.

Today Marks the First Anniversary of Mr. Hellberg's "New Jewelry Store."

Has Achieved Success Beyond All Expectation-Thanks the People For It.

The people of any town are always glad to welcome new blood into the business circles of their city. In many instances they even go so far as to offer very material inducements to encourage business men to locate among them, but it is with an even greater pride that the citizens of any community are wont to point to a man who has achieved an honorable success among them. Just one year ago today Mr. William Hellberg opened the doors of his jewelry palace to the people of Marshalltown and was greeted with such a rousing reception as to almost take his breath away. All that day and the next eager sight seers filed in and out of his store, including the best elements of the town. It was a memorable day for the jeweler.

After the rush was over and the new tradesman had collected his wits he wondered whether the attention paid to him on the opening day was an indication of what he should expect thereafter. It was. Never has a store in Marshalltown been accorded more hearty support than has been given Mr. Hellberg's during every day of every week since that famous opening day. And well it might, for his store was ready to welcome a jewelry store first class in every respect. Mr. Hellberg was shrewd enough to perceive it and straightaway gave the people what they wanted. Thereafter, being a gentleman himself, he quickly won friends by his courteous, honest ways and when people found out that he could return any purchase made at his store and receive the cash whenever they were not entirely satisfied, they quickly realized that there was a store at which it was safe to trade.

Mr. Hellberg is somewhat peculiar in his ways, but people like him for his honesty. No one, not even a child, ever bought anything at his store without being told just what it was. If an article was plated Mr. Hellberg said so; if it was cheaply made Mr. Hellberg said so; if it was so expensive as to prove a foolish purchase Mr. Hellberg said so; and the people by their trade thanked him for it. His business has grown month by month. He has worked all the days and half the nights himself, has increased his help and yet the customers keep coming so fast as to almost swamp him. He started with a magnificent stock, but today has a better one. The wholesalers say that he is one of their best customers because he buys so many goods and always pays the cash for them. In turn he gets the inside price on everything and, content with a small profit, the people are made to wonder why they buy anything so cheap. Mr. Hellberg has made money in Marshalltown and on this, the first anniversary of his career here, wishes to express to the people of this city his gratitude for their most welcome support.

MORE INSTRUCTIONS RECEIVED.

Capt. C. S. Aldrich Advised Further as to Reorganization of Co. H. Capt. C. S. Aldrich received today a letter from Adj. Gen. M. H. Byers containing further instructions as to the reorganization of Company H for enlistment in the Forty-ninth Iowa regiment of Iowa National Guards, the preliminary steps for which were taken last month. The instructions are principally in regard to enlistment and indicate that those who participated in the Spanish war, either as regulars or volunteers, and who received honorable discharges, are not required to take the usual surgical examinations. Further, the fee of 50 cents, heretofore paid by the applicant for physical examination, will be paid by the state.

Capt. Aldrich has also been advised of the appointment of Dr. H. L. Gons as examining surgeon for this city for those who desire to enlist in the guard.

Woodman Meeting and Street Fair. At Waterloo, Ia., September 4 to 9, the Chicago Great Western street fair will on September 4 place excursion tickets on sale for these two celebrations, good to September 10, at one fare for the round trip. For further information inquire of any Chicago Great Western agent of P. H. Lora, G. P. and T. A., 115 Adams street, Chicago.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is a scientific compound having the endorsement of eminent physicians and the medical press. It "digests what you eat" and positively cures dyspepsia. M. A. Keaton, Bloomington, Ind., writes: "I cured him of indigestion of ten years' standing. F. B. Wiley, postoffice druggist, and G. P. Powers."

THE CENTRAL'S FUTURE

Annual Meeting of the Directors of the Road to Be Held in Chicago Friday.

The Appointment of a General Manager of the Road Will Mean No Sale in Immediate Future.

Des Moines Still Speculating on the Future of the Line-Some Tall Guessing.

The annual meeting of the board of directors of the Iowa Central railway will be held Friday in Chicago. Acting General Manager J. N. Tiltmore and General Auditor T. I. Wasson will be present from this city, as will also Col. L. M. Martin, of Des Moines, until recently general manager of the property. The report of the business done by the road during the fiscal year ending June 30 will be submitted by Mr. Martin, who has been engaged upon its compilation for the past three weeks, or since his return from New York. It is possible the directorate will take some action regarding the appointment of a successor to Col. Martin, and this action may give some intimation as to the present negotiations for the sale of the property.

Des Moines has looked with envious eyes upon the Central for some time, and has acted as though it had a mortgage on the line. While the situation is now such as to indicate that Des Moines will never secure the Central, the capital city newspapers are still doing considerable speculating as to the future of the road. The leader of this morning indulges in this gossip: "If Mr. Tiltmore is appointed general manager, as is thought to be probable by some and improbable by others, it will be taken as an indication that the men who control the property are not in any particular hurry to dispose of it, but rather that the existing management will be somewhat indefinitely or until a deal for the sale of the property to one or more of the Iowa trunk lines can be made upon terms satisfactory to the investors who have their money tied up in the road."

"If, on the other hand, Mr. Tiltmore is permitted to retain his present title of 'acting general manager' it will be construed to imply that repeated flirtations of the Central with the trunk lines have resulted in a definite proposition for the absorption of the property into one or more of the latter, probably the Chicago & St. Paul and the Burlington, to be divided between them and merged into their respective systems. Latterly there has been some talk that the Rock Island might decide to take a hand in the game of acquisition and attempt to secure a controlling interest in the Central, but this is regarded as mere idle speculation. The probabilities are that the Central will continue under independent management for a year or two, since it is known by those well informed that there have been no serious negotiations between the Central, the Chicago and the Milwaukee & St. Paul for the purchase of the former by the latter, the story that there had been the outgrowth of the statement by Col. L. M. Martin to the Leader several weeks ago that an attempt would be made to dispose of the property to the Milwaukee. Such negotiations would, of necessity, be conducted in New York city between Russell Sage, President Kimball and the representatives of the Morse syndicate, which at present owns a controlling interest in the bonds of the Central, and Pierpont Morgan, representing the Milwaukee, and would not become public property until after the consummation of the deal. Negotiations of this character are not delegated to head brakemen and local attorneys, as some of the accounts contained in the newspapers would imply."

After the meeting in Chicago, it is stated, the finance committee of the board will visit Marshalltown for the purpose of meeting a similar committee of the company building for the Central the Algona extension from Belmont. At the same time the question of extending the line from Algona into Minnesota will be considered and perhaps determined upon.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mr. W. M. Clarke spent the day in Ames. Mr. F. L. Meeker was in Grinnell overnight on business. Miss Hettie Hauser, of Liscomb, visited in the city Wednesday. Misses Vera Smith and Emma Kersey spent the day in LaMoille. Mr. Fred Spaulding, of Grinnell, spent Wednesday evening in the city. Mrs. George Allen, of Des Moines, is the guest of Mrs. Clara Hickok. Mrs. Harriet Miller spent the day in Union with Miss Margaret Boylan. Mrs. Isaac Myers and daughter May, of Liscomb, visited in the city Wednesday. Mrs. D. Homer and daughter Mary, of State Center, spent Wednesday in the city. Mr. H. D. Wiley, of Elgin, Ill., is visiting his sons, Messrs. C. R. and F. B. Wiley. Misses Dora and Anna Wall, of Montour, were guests Wednesday of Miss Bessie Bills. Mrs. F. A. Benjamin left this morning for Chicago for a two weeks' stay on business. Mr. S. C. Blake went to Des Moines Wednesday evening, where he spent today on business. Mrs. H. M. Weeks went home to Rhodes this morning after a week's visit with relatives. Mrs. J. A. Bashaw, after a week's visit here, left this morning for her home in Lyle, Minn. Mr. W. T. Baily went Wednesday evening to Cedar Rapids to spend some time there on business. Mrs. R. W. McBride and little daughter Marie returned Wednesday evening from their visit in Boone. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Johnston spent Wednesday night in Baxter with their daughter, Mrs. George Wanberg. Mrs. R. W. McBride and daughter Marie arrived home Wednesday evening from their three weeks' visit in Boone with the former's aunt, Mrs. J. C. Meidel, and at Blue City with Mrs. E. A. King, sister of Mr. McBride. Mrs. F. G. Holly went to State Center this morning to spend a few days with her sister, Mrs. G. T. Shauce. Mrs. Charles Bernstein and son Maurice returned from Des Moines Wednesday night after their two weeks' visit. Miss Annette Brown, after a summer's vacation at home, left this morning for her school work in Salt Lake City. Miss Edith Stickle went home to Grinnell this morning after a week's visit with her sister, Mrs. E. M. Williams. Mrs. J. A. Gillette left for Chicago this morning and will visit seven weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Cheville. Mr. E. E. Babcock, of Rollinsville, Col., after a short visit at the home of Mrs. M. E. Rogers, left this morning for Ipava, Ill. Mrs. E. C. Fiske went home to Britt today after a fortnight's visit with her sisters, Mrs. Erastus Cornell and Mrs. F. W. Hargrave. Mrs. Lavina Boggie went to Oskaloosa Wednesday evening, where she will visit for a week at the home of her son, Mr. H. C. Boggie. Miss Amanda Rogers went to Gilbert Station this morning for a ten days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Nelson, formerly of this city. Mrs. M. A. Bentley and children, George and Marie, went to Fort Madison this morning to spend some time with Mrs. K. Pranger. Mrs. T. B. Seeley and daughter Edith, of Superior, Wis., arrived this morning from Cedar Falls to visit Mrs. Seeley's sister, Mrs. N. V. Adams. Mrs. S. E. Chapman, of Mason City, arrived Wednesday evening and will visit her sons, Messrs. F. M. and Will Chapman, for a short time. Miss Annie Gregg and Miss Anna Woodworth, of Monroe, La., went to LaMoille this morning to spend two days at the L. Curtis home. Miss Nora Kelly, of Cedar Falls, spent Wednesday night in the city as the guest of Mrs. J. E. Shaver, being on her way home from an Eldora visit. Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Clarke and children went Wednesday evening to Mount Vernon to visit the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wherry. Miss Edith Nealey, of Gilman, who has been spending a few days in the city as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. G. Brown, returned home Wednesday evening. Mr. John Fuller, of Waterman, Ill., spent Wednesday in the city with his cousin, Dr. N. E. Mighell. He went to city in the evening to look after some business matters. Miss Maude Roland, of Colo., who has been spending the past two weeks in the city with her cousins, Misses Nora and Ruy McCure, returned home Wednesday evening. Miss Gertrude Tracey, of Chicago, who for nearly three weeks has been visiting her uncle, Nathan John M. Donald, of the Soldiers' Home, left for her home Wednesday evening. Miss Gertrude Mable, of Montour, spent Wednesday in the city, being on her way home from Melbourne, where she has been visiting two weeks as the guest of Miss Lenora Crane. Mrs. J. Rauch, of Cedar Rapids, arrived in the city Wednesday afternoon and went to Lurray in the evening to visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Hughes, for three weeks.