TO CURE HORRORS AT BABY FARM

Iowa Humane Society Will Ask Law For Adequate Punishment of Offenders

CHILDREN ARE MURDERED

Present Law, However, Only Provides for Five Years in the Penitentiary as Punishment for Such Crimes—Inspection of Lying-in-Hospitals May Be Provided for by Law.

Special to Times-Republican. Des Moines, Nov. 13.—Imprisonment that cannot be longer than five years awaits the matron of the baby farm in this city who abandoned two little baby girls less than one month old, the abandonment resulting in the death of one from starvation. The officers of the Iowa Humane Society will lay these facts before the proper committees of the next legislature and urge them not only as a lever to get a more adequate punishment, but also for the purpose of getting a bill for an inspection of such homes.

At the last session of the legislature an effort was made to get a proper punishment provided for persons who mistreat little babies that first see the light of day in lying-in-hospitals. Some of the tales told by the officers of the Iowa Humane Society, in cases where they are convinced in their own minds, but lack sufficient evidence to prosecute, are simply horrifying. The legislature however, turned down the request for better laws at the last session.

The last case to come to public notice was the abandonment of two little baby girls in a house near Greenwood park. The persons running the lying-in-hospital moved out Friday and it was the Monday following before the babies were discovered by accident by Jackson district. Reversed. State of Iowa vs. Hatstead, appellant, Hardin district. Reversed. Westbrook, appellant, vs. Griffin, Muscatine district. Affirmed. Helin vs. Anchor Fire Insurance Company, appellant, Cerro Gordo district. Affirmed.

LABOR DECIDES TO STAY IN POLITICS

American Federation, Does Not Contemplate Forming Distinct Political Party

WILL OFTEN SUGGEST MEASURES

Latter Will Be of Character Advantageous to Labor and to Secure Election of Representatives and Senators Favorable to Their Enactment—Executive Council Makes Report.

Minneapolis, Nov. 13.—The recent political activity of the American Federation of Labor occupied a prominent place in the report of the executive council to the twenty-sixth annual convention of the federation, in session here, which was read today by Vice Pres. Jas. Duncan. While the report did not go into detail of the recent campaign for the defeat of congressional candidates, it defined clearly the attitude of organized labor toward politics, and gave a summary of the receipts and disbursements of the campaign fund subscribed by the affiliated unions of the federation. The total sum received for campaign purposes was $8,656, and expenditures $7,834. The American Federation does not contemplate the formation of a distinct political party, nor to dictate the party membership of any union man. It does propose, however, to suggest from time to time legislative measures of advantage to labor, and to secure the nomination and election of representatives and senators favorable to their enactment, and to give full publicity to action taken on these bills, that all union men may know who are their friends. Preceding this declaration of its political platform the committee outlined the political declarations of the American Federation of Labor, made since 1894, to show that its entrance into active campaigning in the late election was not a sudden departure from its former policy, but the logical culmination of a long period of evolution. "We have never opposed politics in our organization," says the report, "tho we have always opposed partisan politics. Independent voting, with an eye single to the interests of labor, is urged upon all members affiliated with unions." The report shows that progress has been made in the movement for the interchange of union cards between the unions of America, Great Britain and Europe, that an alliance has been formed with the farmers' educational effort for mutual support; that an effort has been made to secure government statistics on woman and child labor. It was recommended that Rev. Charles Stelez, superintendent of the Danes Military, Oregon and Road company, have been granted, which have long vexed the federation, the committee reported no progress, but declared that when such internal dissensions were carried to such length as to inconvenience employers who were disposed to be fair to labor, the limit had been reached.

There was a lively discussion over the hours of business for the convention.

The committee on rules recommended a half holiday Saturday. At midnight there was a storm of protest. One faction wished to stick to business the entire six days, and the other stood for a half holiday, while another and smaller crowd favored no business on Saturdays. The report of the committee was finally adopted, after a poll of the house, that unless business presses the entire delegate body will have leisure to witness the Minnesota-Carilliss foot ball game. There was a mass resolution on various subjects presented, but all were referred to the committee on resolutions without reading.
