FALLS VICTIM TO PNEUMONIA

Tilton Had Lived in Paris Since Close of Case Which Caused Sensation on Two Continents—His Last Literary Work a Poem Entitled "Fading of the Mayflower."

Paris, May 25.—Theodore Tilton died today.

Theodore Tilton, author and journalist, was born in New York, October 2, 1835. He was graduated from the college of the City of New York. He was editor of the Independent, the Golden Age, and the Brooklyn Union, between 1855 and 1876. In August, 1874, Tilton sued Henry Ward Beecher with whom he had been associated, for many years, for $100,000 damages for alienation of Mrs. Tilton's affections. The trial lasted 112 days and resulted in a disagreement.

Tilton had lived in Paris since 1888. His last known work was a poem, published last year, entitled "Fading of the Mayflower." For some days past Tilton had been suffering from double pneumonia, complicated with heart trouble.

The Tilton-Beecher scandal attracted wide attention on two continents, having been the most famous court trial of the country at the time.

Car Strike Prevents Official Interference With Mob, Which Wrecked Restaurant and Bath House—Government at Washington Trusted by Officials to Handle Situation.

Tokio, May 25.—A report from the consul for Japan in San Francisco confirms the news of attacks made recently upon Japanese restaurant-keepers in that city. The public here is indignant, but the press refrains from any hostile comment, trusting to the Washington government to prevent a repetition of similar occurrences.

The disturbance occurred in a restaurant conducted by Japanese on Polk street, and was followed by an attack upon a Japanese bath house on the opposite side of the street. The trouble arose over the expulsion of two white men from the Japanese restaurant on Eighth street. They were followed by a mob when they went around to the place on Polk street, and the mob wrecked both places, the men themselves escaping through a rear entrance.

The police say the reason there was no interference was because all of the patrolmen on the street had been drawn for duty to other sections of the city, where disturbances prevailed owing to the strike of carmen.

Root Takes Up Matter.

Washington, May 25.—The state department was informed today by Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador, of the recent abuses of Japanese restaurant-keepers in San Francisco. Secretary Root at once took the matter up with the department of justice, with the request that an immediate investigation be made.

MCKINLEY MEMORIAL FUND

Inquiry Proves Chain Letter Donations Do Reach the Association.

Cleveland, May 25.—An endless chain letter inviting the members of the Masonic order to contribute to the permanent committee on temperance was under inquiry in the past week, as to whether such collections reached the memorial association. The letters asked that small sums, usually two cents, be sent to Judge Day, of Canton, to aid in building a memorial. The chain has been exceptionally successful, and thousands of Masons have responded, as the martyred president was a member of that order. Inquiry at the office of former governor Egan, treasurer of the fund, develops the fact that the letters and contributions so sent, do actually reach the association.

The officers declare the union leaders are opposed to the piec work plan, because its application has resulted in many men withdrawing their active support from the union. ## STATE HEALTH BOARD TOO MUCH POWER

So Much So That Its Rulings Are Sometimes Without Force

ANOMALOUS CONDITION RESULT

Therefore Board Will Ask Changes in Law Taking Away Some of Its Authority in Order to Give It More Force

Quarantine Rules to be Revised and Rewritten—Women's Club House.

Special to Times-Republican.

Des Moines, May 25.—The Iowa state board of health has so much power that it hasn't scarcely any. For that reason it will ask the next legislature to enact a law taking away some of its power and thus giving it more.

The law under which the board operates is too general, is the trouble. The law gives the state board of health authority to make rules and regulations for the protection of the public health and it can call on the courts and machinery of justice to enforce its orders, too. Attorney General Multer in interpreting the law for the benefit of the board at one time told the board that it had almost unlimited power in everything affecting the public health of the state.

But the state board of health forced the removal of a doctor up in Bremer county from the position of health officer because he insisted in treating a case of scarlet fever as the 19th century, not according to the latest orders of the state board of health. After being out of office for a few months the local board of health there has put the man back into office and the state board of health has no means of preventing them from doing so.

If the state board of health finds that a contagious disease is prevalent in a community it can order the cases quarantined. It can send one of its members to investigate and report the extent of the disease, and the county nearly always refuses or at least strenuously objects to paying the bills, and the board experiences great difficulty in making the collections.

Furthermore, the state board of health has unlimited power and authority, it has considerable difficulty in enforcing its rules as to reports of the vital statistics of the state. The vital statistics of Iowa are practically unknown, and have been for several years. In the first place the method of gathering the statistics has been changed several times which in itself is enough to cause failure to make the reports and in addition many do not get the reports when they find it is their duty.

The board at its next regular meeting in July will take up the question of its rules and will entirely revise the rules and rewrite them. It will then ask the legislature to give it the power to enforce the matter of the rules and how all quarantines should be handled. It will seek to impress the reasonableness of its rules on the minds of all officers of the state and enforce them with what strength it can besides.

STORM DAMAGE HEAVY.

Rail and Highway Bridges Washed Away Near Lehigh.

Fort Dodge, May 25.—The heavy rain was general all over this section and was hard south of here. Much havoc was wrought at Lehigh and south of that town. It is estimated that in the town the flooding of cells, caving of embankments, washouts, and other miscellaneous damage may cause an outlay of $2,000. The people living there did not realize how destructive the rain was as it descended. They knew that the water was falling heavily and that it continued all night long, but it did not appear to be a cloud-burst.

South of the town of Lehigh the loss is approximated at fully $10,000. The Crooked Creek Railway Company is a particularly heavy loser. They lost four bridges, which spanned Crooked creek. Two county bridges between the town and the manufacturing plant at south of there, were washed out and clean. The Chicago Great Western lost two bridges between the town and the manufacturing plant at south of there. One of these bridges had an earth embankment approaching it sixty feet long which was taken out by the water, so it would take a span one hundred feet long today to cross the open space.

The damage will be particularly felt at the McClure coal mine for it will probably take a good Western a month or more to repair the damages so they can get cars to the plant.
