ROOSEVELT COMING TO IOWA

Planning a State Reception for President at Keokuk in October.

Keokuk, July 22.—At a meeting of the executive committee of fifteen, appointed for the purpose of mapping out a plan for the entertaining of President Roosevelt when he comes to Keokuk on the morning of October 1, held Friday night, and which did not break up until about the midnight hour, it was decided to send Mayor Srimback and Alderman McCormick to Des Moines to consult with Governor Cummins with reference to the advisability of making the most magnificent state affair of purely local character.

President Roosevelt has indicated that he will not listen to anything in the line of entertainment here, as he has announced that he proposes to deliver an address which will outline the program of the day, this being the reason why the committee has been named to go to Des Moines in the near future and confer with the governor.

It is for this reason that the local committee have decided that it would be no more than proper for the governor of the Hawkeye state to take some official part in the making of the program of the day, this being the reason why the committee has been named to go to Des Moines in the near future and confer with the governor.

Special to Times-Republican. Sioux City, July 22.—While 200 awe-struck young society people, tragically deterred in their intention to enjoy a dancing party, thronged the porches and crowded at the windows of the Commercial Men's Boat club at 10 o'clock last night, the corpses of Mrs. Fannie Healy, of Lincoln, Ill., and Frank Cane, her cousin and twenty years her senior, who lived at 311 Iowa street, were brought in from the Big Sioux river, into which they had fallen from their canoe, several hours before, and were laid side by side upon the boat dock.

Special to Times-Republican. Clinton, July 22.—A coroner's jury is today investigating the death of William McLaughlin, the Kansas City man who lost his life in the first accident in connection with the construction of a new bridge over the Mississippi by the Chicago & Northwestern.

A hugh pile driver, with the engine and boiler, jumped from its track over the river, and went into the water beneath, crushing McLaughlin, who died an hour after he was taken to a Clinton hospital. Fred Lewis, of Kansas City, engineer of the driver, had a remarkable escape from death. He was pinned on the bottom of the river, under the engine and dug his way out with great difficulty, the soft mud in the river bottom proving his salvation. He sustained a bad scalp wound. Two helpers were injured, receiving bruises and cuts.

The Foundation Company of New York and Kansas City has an order on hand in raising the great driver and machinery from the bottom of the river. It lies in about fifteen feet of water. Work has already commenced on the raising of the machinery.

It is believed that he either is insane and wandering about the country, or that he has taken his own life while temporarily deranged mentally. He has a wife and two small children.
