Recent State Examination Reveals Youthfulness of Iowa Instructors

194 UNDER 18 YEARS OF AGE
Several Hundred Between Years of 18 and 19—Superintendent Riggs Compiles Interesting Statistics Concerning Teaching Forces of the State—Other News.

Special to Times-Republican.

Des Moines, Feb. 19.—Youthfulness is a feature of the more than 2,000 young women who recently took the state teachers' examination in the effort to secure certificates. State Superintendent Riggs has compiled some very interesting statistics relative to those who took examinations in January. There were 2,299 applicants for teachers' certificates in these examinations. Of this number, 194 had not yet reached 18 years of age. Under the law those who are 18 may receive certificates, but the board of educational examiners has held that those whose next birthday will make them 18, providing it falls before July 1, 1908, are permitted to take the examination.

"In age, experience and training," said Mr. Riggs yesterday, "the applicants at the January examination do not compare favorably with those who write in June and July—that is, a younger class, as a rule, write in January and the scholarship averages are lower. One of the surprises of the recent examination is in the matter of institute attendance. An institute is held each year in every county seat, the aggregate attendance being about 18,000. Yet of the 299 applicants for certificates, 1,042 had not spent a day in a normal institute."

Following are some of the statistical features of the examination just closed, compiled by Superintendent Riggs:

L. G. Hollister Candidate at Clear Lake of Anti-Young Crowd.
Special to Times-Republican.
Clear Lake, Feb. 19.—There seems to be no getting away from a factional scrap over the office of mayor of this place during the coming spring election. The compromise or harmony candidacy of F. L. Rogers, which was put forth, seemingly was not acceptable, and L. G. Hollister has announced himself for the place as a candidate of the anti-Young crowd. Mayor Young has not yet designated his intentions as to what he will do, but his friends say he will make the race. During the past ten years, save two or three interruptions, he has been at the head of affairs.

The last will and testament of C. H. Day, which left practically all his property to Hattie Day Ogden, was really his last will. The will stands. The process of law and court by which the will was probated will remain unchanged. The half brothers left out of the will are unsuccessful in their attempt to gain a share of his estate. After one more battle over the Day property it still remains as C. H. Day and Hattie Day Ogden willed that it should.

"Does it pay to advertise in my paper? You just bet it does," the editor replied. "Look at Sands, the cash grower, for instance. Sands advertised for a boy last week, and the very next day Mrs. Sands had twins—both boys."

His wife is now Mrs. Simpson, having gone thru the form of divorce and remarrying W. H. Simpson, for forty years her husband, when she learned of Dyer's existence.

The younger Dyer, who is 46 years of age, was brought up in the belief that his father had been killed in an engagement during the war shortly before the birth of the boy, and the complications which followed as the result of the reported death of the husband and parent, would furnish material for a novel of interest. When the report came that Dyer had been seen in the early '60s, and the advice had been seemingly confirmed, the young widow and her infant son, who a few years afterward, she married W. H. Simpson, who educated the boy until he reached his majority, when he started prospecting in the hills with varying success. Several other children were born.

Instead of being killed, as his relatives were led to believe, the elder Dyer was wounded and captured. He was taken a prisoner to Andersonville, where, with several other soldiers, he escaped and returned to Iowa, only to find that his wife and little son had gone west. He was unable to trace them, however, and several years after the close of the war he married again, settling in Oklahoma, where he learned of the whereabouts of his wife and child.

The elder Dyer's second wife died several years ago, and when his first wife learned of his existence, she explained matters to her second wife, and immediately went thru the form of divorce, and remarriage followed.

The younger Dyer has received several letters from his father, urging him to abandon mining and go to the farm. He has not cared to take advantage of the offer, but he will visit his father next month. He said: "When I go to Oklahoma, I want to go with a 'stake.' I have not definitely decided yet what to do. The fact that my father is now an old man and that I am his only living relative has to be taken into consideration. However, I am doing well here and will not abandon my claims."

MOTOR CARS TO AMES.

Northwestern to Install Service Between Capital and College Town.
Des Moines, Feb. 19.—Gasoline motors are to be used by the Chicago & Northwestern railroad on branch lines in Iowa and Wisconsin and later extended to other states.

A motor service is to be placed on Ames-Des Moines branch with an hourly schedule between here and the college town.

This decision is due to successful experiments with a motor car for several months on the new line between Norfolk, Neb., and Bonesteel, S. D. Saturday a successful run with the motor was completed from Omaha to Chicago, the car arriving here early in the afternoon. The start was made from Omaha Thursday and the car traveled only during the daytime. No attempt was made at a record run, but it was stated that on portions of the road between Clinton and Chicago a maximum speed of sixty miles an hour was maintained for considerable distances. The car will be put through the shops for slight repairs, when it will be put in service between Evansville and Afton, Wis., making two round trips daily, or eighty miles a day.

Ames, Feb. 19.—Notwithstanding the fact that a large number of the professors of Iowa State College are now engaged in delivering lectures, and giving demonstrations before farmers' institutes and other organizations, only about one-half of the invitations can be accepted.

Professor Holden and his corps of workers have been constantly in the field holding short courses, but so great is the demand for work of this kind that several bodies like that now directed by Professor Holden could be used advantageously, if it were possible under existing conditions to provide them. Reports come to the college that everywhere there is an intense desire on the part of farming communities to know more of scientific methods for the raising of grain and cattle. So far as it can, the college is meeting the demands of the people in this regard, but limited appropriations make it impossible to do more than is being done at the present time.

LA GRIPPE

SOME INTERESTING INFORMATION REGARDING THE DISEASE

WHAT IS THE GRIP? THREAT OF GRIP AND ITS DANGERS

These questions are best answered by several eminent medical men in published interviews. The most important points emphasized by the famous doctors are these: Grip is highly infectious. Grip stimulates other diseases. Grip has an extraordinary effect on the mental functions. Grip picks out the weak points in a person's constitution. The victims of the grip are adults who perish from pneumonia or bronchitis and the aged who sink from heart exhaustion. Children while prone to the disease, enjoy comparative immunity from its complications and dangers. Grip shows a decided tendency to relapses, a feature to which the indirect cause of the disease is in a great measure due. Alcoholic stimulants are not only harmful but positively harmful. At attack of the grip seems to render the individual more liable to contract the disease from future exposure. The attack comes on with lightning like speed. A person in apparently perfect health is suddenly overcome by a feeling of discomfort. He feels chilly or shakes with the rigor worthy of an ague. His head aches. There are pains in his eyeballs and other symptoms characteristic of the disease soon follow.

CAN GRIP BE PREVENTED? Bad Attack of the Grip COMPLETELY KNOCKED OUT

Sir William Broadbent, an eminent English Physician relates his experience in preventing the disease as follows: "From the first invasion of influenza (grip) I have found that the best remedy was quinine. I have had opportunities of obtaining extraordinary evidence of its protective power. In a large public school near London, the girls and the mistresses took their regular dose of quinine, but the servants were forgotten. The result was that scarcely a girl or mistress suffered, while the servants were all down with influenza (grip)." As a preventive, take two grains of quinine after breakfast each day.

GREAT PHYSICAL AND MENTAL AGONY DONT'S WHEN YOU HAVE THE GRIP

Don't kiss the children. Don't delay going to bed. Don't attempt to walk the attack down. Don't take a cold or even a hot bath. Don't use any alcoholic stimulants. Don't eat a heavy meal. Don't associate with the family. Don't neglect to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Don't let your bowels become constipated. Don't leave your bed until the worst is over. Do this and the grip is shorn of nearly all of its terrors.

Severe Attack of Grip Cured By One Bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"When I had an attack of the grip last winter (the second one) I actually cured myself with one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Frank W. Perry, Editor of the Enterprise, Shortsville, N. Y. "This is the honest truth. I at times kept from coughing myself to pieces by taking a teaspoonful of this remedy, and when the coughing spell would come on at night I would take a dose and it seemed that in the briefest interval the cough would pass off and I would go to sleep perfectly free from cough and its accompanying pains. To say that the remedy acted as a most agreeable surprise is putting it very mildly. I had no idea that it would or could knock out the grip, simply because I had never tried it for such a purpose, but it did, and it seemed with the second attack of coughing the remedy caused it to not only be of less duration, but the pains were far less severe, and I had not used the contents of one bottle before Mr. Grip had bid me adieu."

THE GRIP CURED AS IF BY MAGIC

"In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called the grip," says F. L. Hewett, a prominent druggist of Winfield, Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke me up, and I stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with grip." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold and ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. It is pleasant to take, too, which makes it the most desirable and one of the most popular preparations in use for these ailments.

A WELL FOUNDED RUMOR.

Have you heard the rumor current? That there is a cure for grip? One that's harmless, sure and pleasant? Why then suffer from the grip? Chamberlain's is, yes, that's the name. A remedy of world-wide fame; Druggists all will say the same. That 'twill surely cure the grip.
